No Complications In Pope's Operation

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI underwent surgery today for removal of his prostate gland and his doctors said "the holy father bore the operation very well and his awakening was swift."

Their announcement, issued by the Pope's deputy secretary of state, the Rt. Rev. Giovanni Benelli, said the surgery began at 8 a.m. and was "rapidly brought to a happy end."

First Since 1503

The statement came 5 hours and 20 minutes after the doctors arrived just before dawn to perform the first major surgery on a Roman Catholic pontiff since Pius II had an operation in 1503 for an unknown leg ailment.

The 70-year-old Pope had been suffering recurrent fever and urinary infection, caused by an enlarged prostate, for the past two months.

The Pope's swift emergence from the anesthetic was just what his doctors had counted on. As soon as he awoke, he was wheeled 90 feet down the hall to his apartment and returned to bed.

The operation lasted about 45 minutes and there were no complications, the Vatican newspaper L'Osservatore Romano said.

It said before the anesthesia was administered, the pontiff told the doctors in Latin: "Procedamus in nomine Domini"—proceed in the name of the Lord.

The bells of St. Peter's in Vatican City and in the 500 churches of Rome were still to help provide maximum silence for the Pope as he slept under a sedative before the operation.

News of the success leaked out two hours ahead of the official medical bulletin when Vatican press service chief, Raimondo Manzini, told newsmen he had received a telephone call from the Pope's apartment that "the operation is finished and went very well."

Pope Paul had imposed a news blackout on the operation's outcome pending the release of the official medical bulletin.

The operation on the spiritual head of the world's half billion Roman Catholics was performed by noted Italian surgeon Pietro Valdoni, 67, who directed a team of doctors, including three anesthesiologists.

Valdoni was regarded as the finest general surgeon the Vatican could find. His operating experience includes brain, heart, lung, kidney and spleen. He is chief of the surgery division of Rome's huge polyclinic hospital and the author of a standard work on surgery, "A Manual of Surgical Pathology."

Vatican sources said the Pope was to hear Mass celebrated in his apartment before being wheeled down the hall to the Vatican rooms that had been converted into an operating theater and anterooms. Romans, meanwhile, rose early to gather in churches and pray for successful surgery.

Normally, recuperation from a prostate operation involves total confinement to bed for 10 to 15 days and another 15 days or so of largely restricted rest.

Surgery for removing the gland is not easy but medical statistics show that 96 per cent of prostate operations succeed.

Two Big Dangers

The big danger in surgery, particularly for older patients, is hemorrhage and heart failure.

During the past week two machines were installed in the operating theater for use in case Pope Paul's heart reacted erratically. One, called the "pacemaker," is used to stimulate a flagging heart with electric shocks given through cathodes. The other uses electric shocks in a reverse function: to regulate the heart should it begin to beat wildly. With Valdoni on the operating team were the pontiff's regular physician, Dr. Mario Fontana, the three anesthesiologists and Prof. Giulio assistant.

U.S. on Red Orbital Bomb: Temptation for Attack

WASHINGTON (AP)—Some military strategists fear the Soviets' orbital bomb—if indeed they're on the verge of perfecting one—might some day tempt them into a sneak nuclear attack.

But defense officials generally discounted the significance of such a space weapon despite the fact that it could pack a warhead with the equivalent of up to three million tons of TNT.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara said Friday the Soviets are apparently testing such a weapon. He left open the possibility that the intelligence reports were wrong and that the tests are actually of a nonmilitary nature.

The United States considered developing such a weapon a few years ago but dropped the project, seeing little value in it. McNamara told a news conference.

"I am not concerned," he said. "It does not change the nuclear balance of power."

McNamara said the orbital weapon, which might be operational next year, would be designed to descend suddenly upon American targets.

But he maintained that a new U.S. "over-the-horizon" radar could detect it as quickly as Russian rockets can be detected, that antimissiles could shoot it down and that it probably is very inaccurate.

The defense chief maintained an orbital weapon could not mount a satisfactory attack on U.S. silo-protected missiles, the force designed to discourage an assault in the first place.

But, he acknowledged: "Perhaps the Soviets might feel it could provide a surprise nuclear strike against United States' soft land targets such as bomber bases."

Some officers carried the theory a step further.

During a Cuban-type missile confrontation, they speculated, Russia might be willing to gamble that their orbital weapon plus a growing fleet of long-range missiles could knock out most U.S. rockets and bombers.

Orbital bombs could be launched in low-enough flights to evade detection by the ballistic early warning system (BMEWS), a radar net across Canada. Their mission would be to catch B52s on the ground before an alerted takeoff.

Reluctant Fund Transfer

By WALTER S. CLARK

Transfer of more than $32,500 from the contingency account to the transportation-private carrier contracts account to meet the $457,595.95 bus service contracts for the school year 1967-68 in the Kingston School District Consolidated, was reluctantly approved Friday night by the Board of Education.

The Board also approved a resolution to recognize the Kingston Teachers Federation as the sole bargaining agent for negotiations, contingent on certification of a recent election by the American Arbitration Association, which supervised and conducted the election.

Voted by 273-260

The KTF was selected by the teachers as the sole bargaining agent, defeating the Kingston Teachers' Association by a ballot vote total of 273-260. Board members said the certification is expected from the AAA within a few days. The motion to recognize the KTF as the sole agent was made by Hubert Hoderath, board member, and seconded by Richard B. Boice. The vote was unanimous.

It was reported that sufficient budget appropriations were not made available to cover expenditures which have become necessary due to transportation costs, and expenditures exceeded the appropriations by $32,595.95. By resolution the Board voted to transfer $32,537.54 from the contingency account and $58.41 from the special transportation account to transportation - private carrier contracts fund, to meet the difference in the total contract figure.

Board members were disturbed about the apparent miscalculation which made the transfer of funds necessary.

James E. Tobin, assistant superintendent of transportation, noted in a report that $425,000 was included in the 1967-68 budget for contract bus service, but today the district has contracted for $457,595.95 for the school year. Tobin noted, six factors that brought about the increase in the original appropriation for contract bus service.

One factor, an item of $3,400 for transportation of five students to St. Joseph's School in Barrytown, brought comment from Trustee Ellsworth L. Johnson, that the $3,400 figure amounted to approximately $700 per student, which he said was the cost of educating a pupil for a school year.

Supt. of Schools W. Wendell Hoover said that the amount appeared high because of the few students involved, and noted that if the number of students transported to St. Joseph's increased the cost of bus service would be about the same.

Favor Closer Study

It was suggested that closer study of resolutions involving bus contracts and costs be made in the future before the resolutions are submitted for approval by the Board. Dr. Hoover commented that this is the first time in five years to his knowledge that the bus contracts had exceeded the appropriation.

In addition to voting recognition of the KTF as the sole bargaining agent for the teachers unit, the board also approved the dues deduction plan subject to an agreement between the KTF, the business (Con. on Page 6, Col. 5)

Area Church Council Opposes Constitution

The Kingston Area Council of Churches at its recent meeting expressed disapproval of the proposed new state constitution and requested a committee to submit a public statement on behalf of the Council.

This statement is as follows:

"Since the manner in which the new Constitution is presented provides no opportunity for the electorate to pass judgment on those matters upon which there was major disagreement on the floor of the convention.

"And since a number of these articles include radical innovations which, if instituted, could be rescinded only with great effort:

"And since the new education formula based on registration rather than average daily attendance, the State's assuming of welfare costs and the possibility of free tuition for all college students could eventually place a crushing tax burden on our people:

"And since a large segment of our church members believe the 'Blaine Amendment,' which has been omitted from the new document, was a safeguard against the use of public funds for sectarian education:

"We, therefore, are opposed to the adoption of the new Constitution in toto and urge a 'no' vote now and pledge our Council to work for the adoption at a later date of those sections which are commendable."

$125,000 Damage In Dutchess Fire

Fire raged through a 26-room mansion in Millbrook last night leaving in its wake an estimated $125,000 in damage.

4 Inhalation Cases

The Freeman learned today from the Dutchess County Sheriff's Department that four persons suffered from smoke inhalation from the fire which broke out at 10:40 Friday night and was brought under control at 3:30 this morning.

The mansion is owned by Roswell Miller who was taken to Sharon Hospital and admitted. His wife, Germaine, was also treated along with two firemen.

The cause of the fire was believed to be a short circuit in one of the many floodlights which surround the mansion. A guest, Mrs. Charles Vion of New York City, smelled smoke and alerted a gamekeeper who turned in the alarm.

Firemen from Millbrook, Dover Plains and Uniondale responded to find three quarters of the mansion enveloped in flames. Only the south wing remains. Lost in the fire were many antiques and paintings which a sheriff's deputy told The Freeman "cost thousands of dollars."

Fire fighters were plagued by a lack of water and had to pump from a lake a quarter of a mile from the blazing mansion.

Treasures Guarded

The mansion is located on Butts Hollow Road off Rt. 343, about 18 miles from Poughkeepsie.

Many of the house's treasures were recovered and are being guarded by the Dutchess County Sheriff's Department.

The Beat At City Hall

BY HUGH REYNOLDS

What's a voter to do? Kingstons are faced with a choice for their chief executive between a wealthy businessman who shoots from the hip and often goes it alone, and a train conductor whose battery of advisors and writers have made him a definite threat for election.

C. John Bechtold, the Republican-Liberal, sports a Common Sense for Kingston campaign slogan. It might better read Common Consensus for Kingston.

Bechtold has plenty of help on this campaign. We know of at least two advisors, his campaign manager George Svirsky and city Republican chairman John

What's A Voter to Do?

'Own Man' Garraghan or Bechtold, Aides?

Ray Mayone plus one or more writers.

THE QUESTION would appear to be, just what is it going to cost Bechtold for these advisors if he gets elected. Whether or not Bechtold can strike on an independent course after assuming office, at least for the first few months, can be questioned.

Ray Garraghan, the incumbent Democratic - Conservative mayor, on the other hand, exudes an aura of independence. He has neither a campaign manager or speech writer. Indeed, any writer would be hard pressed coming up with quotes Garraghan fires off the top of his head.

In short, Garraghan is his own man. No one talks for him or writes for him. During the campaign we've seen only one written news release by the mayor and that was at his press conference Monday where he was on hand to offer any explanations.

BUT MONEY TALKS, and it is this vital area that Garraghan's strength lies. He is recognized as an authority on bonds and his successful background as a businessman has been to the benefit of the city.

Garraghan is no spendthrift. Some people have gone as far as to call him a miser. He has carried the same thinking into city government, heading an administration that has reduced the city's debt limit by almost half a million dollars in two years.

Kingston is in fine shape as far as its debt limitations go.

The city can borrow, by law, up to $8,203,078. The debt as of April is $1,464,058. This leaves almost $6,750,000 that the city could borrow and with its triple A rating it wouldn't be too difficult.

Garraghan has been less than eager in going to the voters for money. In fact, he could have raised taxes of $2,699,000 this year. The taxes he asked for were some $625,000 less than that amount.

POINT IS, there's an awful lot of money on The Hill. Garra-

ghan knows it and Bechtold will find out if he gets elected.

GARRAGHAN'S ADMINISTRATION hasn't been ideal. Few, if any, are. He's been hit by Bechtold, and/or advisers, for his city hall plans, urban renewal, assessments, his street programs and his lack of cooperation towards the Common Council.

There is a basis for most of the charges, the seriousness of which the voters will decide but in his relations with the council, Garraghan's personality seems to be working against him.

It's a two-edged sword, but no mayor can get any of his programs through unless he cooperates with the council. We hope Garraghan has learned that lesson in the past two years.

The battle lines are drawn. Garraghan is running on his record. As for C. John for Better Government, we'll have to see John's credentials for the post he is seeking.

No Complications In Pope's Operation

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., whose Atomic Energy subcommittee will open hearings Monday dealing mainly with U.S. plans for an antimissile defense, said the orbital bomb will be covered in detail.

Jackson viewed the Soviet weapon as an attempt to outflank the northward-looking BMEWS detection line by an attack from the south.

Sens. James Pearson, R-Kan., and Daniel Brewster, D-Md., both members of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said the development pointed to a new need for going forward with the U.S. antimissile system.

Some officers carried the theory a step further. During a Cuban-type missile confrontation, they speculated, Russia might be willing to gamble that their orbital weapon plus a growing fleet of long-range missiles could knock out most U.S. rockets and bombers.

Orbital bombs could be launched in low-enough flights to evade detection by the ballistic early warning system (BMEWS), a radar net across Canada. Their mission would be to catch B32s on the ground before an alerted takeoff.

Simultaneously, a full-scale Soviet missile barrage would be directed against U.S. Minuteman and Titan ICBMs, with the Soviet antimissile defense intercepting any which weren't demolished in their launch tubes.

McNamara's announcement followed a series of defense briefings for key congressional committees.

But he maintained that a new U.S. "over-the-horizon" radar could detect it as quickly as Russian rockets can be detected, that antimissiles could shoot it down and that it probably is very inaccurate.

The defense chief maintained an orbital weapon could not mount a satisfactory attack on U.S. silo-protected missiles, the force designed to discourage an assault in the first place.

The defense chief maintained an orbital weapon could not mount a satisfactory attack on U.S. silo-protected missiles, the force designed to discourage an assault in the first place.

But, he acknowledged: "Perhaps the Soviets might feel it could provide a surprise nuclear strike against United States' soft land targets such as bomber bases."

Some officers carried the theory a step further. During a Cuban-type missile confrontation, they speculated, Russia might be willing to gamble that their orbital weapon plus a growing fleet of long-range missiles could knock out most U.S. rockets and bombers.

Orbital bombs could be launched in low-enough flights to evade detection by the ballistic early warning system (BMEWS), a radar net across Canada. Their mission would be to catch B32s on the ground before an alerted takeoff.

Simultaneously, a full-scale Soviet missile barrage would be directed against U.S. Minuteman and Titan ICBMs, with the Soviet antimissile defense intercepting any which weren't demolished in their launch tubes.

McNamara's announcement followed a series of defense briefings for key congressional committees.

But he maintained that a new U.S. "over-the-horizon" radar could detect it as quickly as Russian rockets can be detected, that antimissiles could shoot it down and that it probably is very inaccurate.

The defense chief maintained an orbital weapon could not mount a satisfactory attack on U.S. silo-protected missiles, the force designed to discourage an assault in the first place.

But, he acknowledged: "Perhaps the Soviets might feel it could provide a surprise nuclear strike against United States' soft land targets such as bomber bases."

SHAMBLES—The allied bastion at Loc Ninh lies in a shambles Friday after six days of mortar fire and successive attacks by Viet Cong guerrillas, who in some cases used civilian shields for their onrushes. The guerrillas stormed the allied position Friday only to be repulsed once more by South Vietnamese sharpshooters. U.S. spokesmen have estimated that this lopsided siege has cost the VC about 900 lives. (UPI RADIOTELEPHOTO BY JOHN STEWART)

Reluctant Fund Transfer

By WALTER S. CLARK

Transfer of more than $32,500 from the contingency account to the transportation-private carrier contracts account to meet the $457,595.95 bus service contracts for the school year 1967-68 in the Kingston School District Consolidated, was reluctantly approved Friday night by the Board of Education.

The Board also approved a resolution to recognize the Kingston Teachers Federation as the sole bargaining agent for negotiations, contingent on certification of a recent election by the American Arbitration Association, which supervised and conducted the election.

Voted by 273-260

The KTF was selected by the teachers as the sole bargaining agent, defeating the Kingston Teachers' Association by a ballot vote total of 273-260, Board members said the certification is expected from the AAA within a few days. The motion to recognize the KTF as the sole agent was made by Hubert Hoderath, board member, and seconded by Richard B. Boice. The vote was unanimous.

It was reported that sufficient budget appropriations were not made available to cover expenditures which have become necessary due to transportation costs, and expenditures exceeded the appropriations by $32,595.95. By resolution the Board voted to transfer $32,537.54 from the contingency account and $58.41 from the special transportation account to transportation - private carrier contracts fund, to meet the difference in the total contract figure.

Board members were disturbed about the apparent miscalculation which made the transfer of funds necessary.

James E. Tobin, assistant superintendent of transportation, noted in a report that $425,000 was included in the 1967-68 budget for contract bus service, but today the district has contracted for $457,595.95 for the school year. Tobin noted six factors that brought about the increase in the original appropriation for contract bus service.

One factor, an item of $3,400 for transportation of five students to St. Joseph's School in Barrytown, brought comment from Trustee Ellsworth L. Johnson, that the $3,400 figure amounted to approximately $700 per student, which he said was the cost of educating a pupil for a school year.

Supt. of Schools W. Wendell Hoover said that the amount appeared high because of the few students involved, and noted that if the number of students transported to St. Joseph's increased the cost of bus service would be about the same.

Favor Closer Study
It was suggested that closer study of resolutions involving bus contracts and costs be made in the future before the resolutions are submitted for approval by the Board. Dr. Hoover commented that this is the first time in five years to his knowledge that the bus contracts had exceeded the appropriation.

In addition to voting recognition of the KTF as the sole bargaining agent for the teachers unit, the board also approved the dues deduction plan subject to an agreement between the KTF, the business

Area Church Council Opposes Constitution

The Kingston Area Council of Churches at its recent meeting expressed disapproval of the proposed new state constitution and requested a committee to submit a public statement on behalf of the Council.

This statement is as follows: "Since the manner in which the new Constitution is presented provides no opportunity for the electorate to pass judgment on those matters upon which there was major disagreement on the floor of the convention.

"And since a number of these articles include radical innovations which, if instituted, could be rescinded only with great effort;

"And since the new education formula based on registration rather than average daily attendance, the State's assuming of welfare costs and the possibility of free tuition for all college students could eventually place a crushing tax burden on our people;

"And since a large segment of our church members believe the 'Blaine Amendment,' which has been omitted from the new document, was a safeguard against the use of public funds for sectarian education;

"We, therefore, are opposed to the adoption of the new Constitution in toto and urge a 'no' vote now and pledge our Council to work for the adoption at a later date of those sections which are commendable."

$125,000 Damage In Dutchess Fire
Fire raged through a 26-room mansion in Millbrook last night leaving in its wake an estimated $125,000 in damage.

4 Inhalation Cases
The Freeman learned today from the Dutchess County Sheriff's Department that four persons suffered from smoke inhalation from the fire which broke out at 10:40 Friday night and was brought under control at 3:30 this morning.

The mansion is owned by Roswell Miller who was taken to Sharon Hospital and admitted. His wife, Germaine, was also treated along with two firemen.

The cause of the fire was believed to be a short circuit in one of the many floodlights which surround the mansion. A guest, Mrs. Charles Vion of New York City, smelled smoke and alerted a gamekeeper who turned in the alarm.

Firemen from Millbrook, Dover Plains and Uniondale responded to find three quarters of the mansion enveloped in flames. Only the south wing remains. Lost in the fire were many antiques and paintings which a sheriff's deputy told The Freeman "cost thousands of dollars."

Fire fighters were plagued by a lack of water and had to pump from a lake a quarter of a mile from the blazing mansion.

Treasures Guarded
The mansion is located on Butts Hollow Road off Rt. 343, about 18 miles from Poughkeepsie.

Many of the house's treasures were recovered and are being guarded by the Dutchess County Sheriff's Department.

The Beat At City Hall

BY HUGH REYNOLDS

What's a voter to do? Kingstons are faced with a choice for their chief executive between a wealthy businessman who shoots from the hip and often goes it alone, and a train conductor whose battery of advisors and writers have made him a definite threat for election.

C. John Bechtold, the Republican-Liberal, sports a Common Sense for Kingston campaign slogan. It might better read Common Consensus for Kingstons.

Bechtold has plenty of help on this campaign. We know of at least two advisors, his campaign manager George Svirsky and city Republican chairman John

What's A Voter to Do?

'Own Man' Garraghan or Bechtold, Aides?

Ray Mayone plus one or more writers.

THE QUESTION would appear to be, just what is it going to cost Bechtold for these advisors if he gets elected. Whether or not Bechtold can strike on an independent course after assuming office, at least for the first few months, can be questioned.

Ray Garraghan, the incumbent Democratic - Conservative mayor, on the other hand, exudes an aura of independence. He has neither a campaign manager or speech writer. Indeed, any writer would be hard pressed coming up with quotes Garraghan fires off the top of his head.

In short, Garraghan is his own man. No one talks for him or writes for him. During the campaign we've seen only one written news release by the mayor and that was at his press conference Monday where he was on hand to offer any explanations.

BUT MONEY TALKS, and it is this vital area that Garra-

ghan's strength lies. He is recognized as an authority on bonds and his successful background as a businessman has been to the benefit of the city.

Garraghan is no spendthrift. Some people have gone as far as to call him a miser. He has carried the same thinking into city government, heading an administration that has reduced the city's debt limit by almost half a million dollars in two years.

Kingston is in fine shape as far as its debt limitations go.

The city can borrow, by law, up to $8,203,078. The debt as of April is $1,464,058. This leaves almost $6,750,000 that the city could borrow and with its triple A rating it wouldn't be too difficult.

Garraghan has been less than eager in going to the voters for money. In fact, he could have raised taxes of $2,699,000 this year. The taxes he asked for were some $625,000 less than that amount.

POINT is, there's an awful lot of money on The Hill. Garra-

ghan knows it and Bechtold will find out if he gets elected.

GARRAGHAN'S ADMINISTRATION hasn't been ideal. Few, if any, are. He's been hit by Bechtold, and/or advisers, for his city hall plans, urban renewal, assessments, his street programs and his lack of cooperation towards the Common Council.

There is a basis for most of the charges, the seriousness of which the voters will decide but in his relations with the council, Garraghan's personality seems to be working against him.

It's a two-edged sword, but no mayor can get any of his programs through unless he cooperates with the council. We hope Garraghan has learned that lesson in the past two years.

The battle lines are drawn. Garraghan is running on his record. As for C. John for Better Government, we'll have to see John's credentials for the post he is seeking.

Ecumenical Youth Program Launched

Sunday 2 p.m. in the gymnasium of St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church, young people from area CYO groups and churches of the Kingston Area Council of Churches will be meeting to organize a local Up with People group.

This group will be composed of youth in ninth through 12th grades who are interested in folk music, who like to sing, or who play instruments such as guitars and banjos. While not related to the national organization called Up with People, much of the music used comes from that source. The only purpose of the Kingston Up with People group is to draw Christian young people in the community and their friends together for fellowship and a good time.

Oct. 15 nearly 500 young people from area churches filled the sanctuary of the Fair Street Reformed Church to hear a program presented by the Youth Fellowship of the First Presbyterian Church of Poughkeepsie. It was after listening to, and joining in, the singing of the 70-voice mass chorus, that young people in the area asked that the Council of Churches to begin work that would lead into having such a similar organization here.

After the initial meeting, young people from area Roman Catholic churches will be explaining to representatives of Protestant youth fellowships their program of visiting local nursing homes and will be seeking to expand the program through a broader participation of the church.

Continuing its emphasis on congregational fellowship, the 70th anniversary committee of the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer has arranged a congregational hymn sing for Sunday 7:30 p. m. in the assembly room of the church.

Le Roy S. Stoothoff, chairman of the committee has extended an invitation to the people from St. Mary's parish to join Redeemer's people in this musical event to strengthen the ecumenical ties in the community.

Presbyterians Slate Annual Breakfast Fete

The second annual communion breakfast for women at the First Presbyterian Church, Elmendorf Street and Tremper Avenue, takes place Sunday with the communion service at 7 a. m. in the sanctuary, followed by the breakfast in lower hall of Ramsey building.

Officiating for the communion service will be the minister, the Rev. William J. McVey, assisted by four elders, and the senior choir will offer the anthem, I Will Sing of Thy Mercy, by Mendelssohn.

During the breakfast, which is to be prepared and served by members of the Senior Youth Fellowship, Miss Ann Vree of Saugerties will be guest speaker, and tell of her experiences as a Peace Corps member while in Nigeria for 18 months. Her message will be highlighted by colored slides of scenes and experiences in Nigeria. Miss Vree is a fourth grade teacher in the Port Ewen Elementary School, and a member of the Reformed Church of the Comforter.

This program is sponsored by the Dorfieldman Society of the Church, and is supported by the Fellowship Guild and the World Friendship Study Circle. All women of the Church and their guests may attend.

Methodists to Hear New Paltz Professor

FAMILY NIGHT SPEAKER

Dr. Robert J. Decker, professor of political science at New Paltz State University College, and has his PhD degree from Indiana University. In addition to positions at universities in this country, he has also been president of the Universite Libre du Congo, Stanleyville and executive vice president of the National School of Law and Administration at Kinshasa, Congo. In the latter position he was also program specialist with the Ford Foundation.

Redeemer Sets Hymnsing for Sunday Night

Continuing its emphasis on congregational fellowship, the 70th anniversary committee of the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer has arranged a congregational hymn sing for Sunday 7:30 p. m. in the assembly room of the church.

Le Roy S. Stoothoff, chairman of the committee has extended an invitation to the people from St. Mary's parish to join Redeemer's people in this musical event to strengthen the ecumenical ties in the community.

The singing will be led by the director of music at Redeemer, J. Anthony Hummel Jr., with Paul R. Markle accompanying at the piano. Those present will be invited to request their favorite hymns and the periods of singing will be interspersed with devotions by the Rev. Edward I. Farrelly of St. Mary's. Brief commentaries on some of the hymns by the pastor, the Rev. Dr. David C. Gaise, and with refreshments arranged by the committee and served by members of the Luther League.

Mission Series Starts Sunday At Alliance

A week of mission services will start Sunday night at the Christian and Missionary Alliance Church, 90 Miller's Lane.

First speaker will be the Rev. Gerald McGarvey who has completed two terms of service in the Mali Upper Volta mission field in Africa. Alternating throughout the week will be Mrs. Arthur L. Hammond, long time missionary to Cameroon. Meetings will be held through Wednesday with services 7 p. m. Sunday and 7:30 p. m. on weekdays. The Rev. Mr. McGarvey has served in the African mission field for the past 10 years. The Rev. George B. Osborne, pastor, invites the public to attend the mission meetings.

Mission Sister Returns From Post

Sister Carolyn DMHS, has returned to the United States after two years of working among the Quiche Indians in Guatemala.

Sister was stationed at El Novillero, with three other Daughters of Mary, Health of the Sick, whose motherhouse is at Cragmoor, Ulster County. Besides working in the clinics there, Sister also helped in the health education program using classes, films, and home visiting to teach disease prevention and sanitation.

The Altar-Rosary Society of St. Joseph's Church, Kingston, has sent a monthly stipend to the mission since it began in 1965.

In 1959 Sister graduated from St. Vincent's Hospital School of Nursing, New York, and in February will begin studies for a BS in Nursing.

Underground Chapel

LONDON (AP) — Work has started on the new underground chapel at London Airport, which is expected to be in use by June of next year. The chapel, costing $252,000, is designed to resemble a Roman catacomb. Roman Catholics, Anglicans and Protestants will each have their own altar facing a central congregation.

Ecumenical Youth Program Launched

Sunday 2 p. m. in the gymnasium of St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church, young people from area CYO groups and churches of the Kingston Area Council of Churches will be meeting to organize a local up with People group.

This group will be composed of youth in ninth through 12th grades who are interested in folk music, who like to sing, or who play instruments such as guitars and banjos. While not related to the national organization called up with People, much of the music used comes from that source. The only purpose of the Kingston Up with People group is to draw Christian young people in the community and their friends together for fellowship and a good time.

Oct. 15 nearly 500 young people from area churches filled the sanctuary of the Fair Street Reformed Church to hear a program presented by the Youth Fellowship of the First Presbyterian Church of Poughkeepsie. It was after listening to, and joining in, the singing of the 70-voice mass chorus, that young people in the area asked that the Council of Churches to begin work that would lead into having such a similar organization here.

After the initial meeting, young people from area Roman Catholic Church will be explaining to representatives of Protestant youth fellowships their program of visiting local nursing homes and will be seeking to expand the program through a broader participation of the church.

Presbyterians Slate Annual Breakfast Fete

The second annual communion breakfast for women at the First Presbyterian Church, Elmendorf Street and Tremper Avenue, takes place Sunday with the communion service at 7 a. m. in the sanctuary, followed by the breakfast in lower hall of Ramsey building.

Officiating for the communion service will be the minister, the Rev. William J. McVey, assisted by four elders, and the senior choir will offer the anthem, I Will Sing of Thy Mercy, by Mendelssohn.

During the breakfast, which is to be prepared and served by members of the Senior Youth Fellowship, Miss Ann Vree of Saugerties will be guest speaker, and tell of her experiences as a Peace Corps member while in Nigeria for 18 months. Her message will be highlighted by colored slides of scenes and experiences in Nigeria. Miss Vree is a fourth grade teacher in the Port Ewen Elementary School, and a member of the Reformed Church of the Comforter.

This program is sponsored by the Dorfieldian Society of the Church, and is supported by the Fellowship Guild and the World Friendship Study Circle. All women of the Church and their guests may attend.

Redeemer Sets Hymnsing for Sunday Night

Continuing its emphasis on congregational fellowship, the 70th anniversary committee of the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer has arranged a congregational hymn sing for Sunday 7:30 p. m. in the assembly room of the church.

Le Roy S. Stoothoff, chairman of the committee has extended an invitation to the people from St. Mary's parish to join Redeemer's people in this musical event to strengthen the ecumenical ties in the community.

The singing will be led by the director of music at Redeemer, J. Anthony Hummel Jr., with Paul R. Markle accompanying at the piano. Those present will be invited to request their favorite hymns and the periods of singing will be interspersed with devotions by the Rev. Edward I. Farrelly of St. Mary's, brief commentaries on some of the hymns by the pastor, the Rev. Dr. David C. Gaise, and with refreshments arranged by the committee and served by members of the Luther League.

Mission Series Starts Sunday At Alliance

REV. GERALD MCGARVEY

A week of mission services will start Sunday night at the Christian and Missionary Alliance Church, 90 Miller's Lane.

First speaker will be the Rev. Gerald McGarvey who has completed two terms of service in the Mali Upper Volta mission field in Africa. Alternating throughout the week will be Mrs. Arthur L. Hammond, long time missionary to Cambodia.

Meetings will be held through Wednesday with services 7 p. m. Sunday and 7:30 p. m. on weekdays.

The Rev. Mr. McGarvey has served in the African mission field for the past 10 years.

Mission Sister Returns From Post

Sister Carolyn, DMHS, has returned to the United States after two years of working among the Quiche Indians in Guatemala.

Sister was stationed at El Novillero, with three other Daughters of Mary. Health of the Sick, whose motherhouse is at Cragmoor, Ulster County. Besides working in the clinics there, Sister also helped in the health education program using classes, films, and home visiting to teach disease prevention and sanitation.

The Altar-Rosary Society of St. Joseph's Church, Kingston, has sent a monthly stipend to the mission since it began in 1965.

In 1959 Sister graduated from St. Vincent's Hospital School of Nursing, New York, and in February will begin studies for a BS in Nursing.

Chamber's Candidate Series

Two County, Two City Issues Reviewed

Peter O. Allen, executive vice president of the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce today released the last of a series of position statements by the candidates for the county legislature and the city's common council.

All candidates for the positions of county legislator, aldermen of Kingston and city mayoralty and alderman-at-large candidates were polled. In this last statement the Chamber reviews the county issues of the establishment of an Ulster County Airport and the adoption of a county executive form of government.

On the city level two questions regarding the Kingston city police force are reviewed. The first concerns the candidates' position regarding an increased pay scale for law enforcement officers. The other concerns the question of the feasibility of accepting non-resident applications for position on the Kingston police force.

Only From Replies

Allen noted that only those candidates who responded to the questionnaire are mentioned in today's release. If a particular candidate is not mentioned as being in favor or opposing or undecided regarding any particular issue, then that candidate did not reply.

The city candidates were asked for a statement of position regarding the proposals for increased pay scales for law enforcement officers within the city and their willingness to accept non-residents of the city within a reasonable distance to serve as members of the Kingston city police force. From the First Ward, Florence Shea Ludlow took no position regarding the pay scale issue while agreeing that non-residents should be allowed to serve on the force. The Second Ward, Thomas F. Riley, opposed a pay increase as well as opposing the non-resident provision. From the Fifth Ward both Joan Belser and Stanley J. Petro Jr. favored the pay increases and acceptance of non-resident applications as did Ronald F. Cole of the Fourth Ward and Frank Fabbie of the Fifth Ward.

In the Sixth Ward, Richard K. Fox spoke in favor of a pay increase and non-resident applications while Joseph Epstein was undecided regarding the pay issue but favored non-resident applications. Seventh Ward aldermanic candidate, Richard Burns favored the pay increase study but reserved decision on allowing non-residents to serve. Peter Mancuso of the Eighth Ward favored both proposals. James Madden was undecided on the residence issue but favored the pay scale increase as did William B. Merrill, who also favored the non-residents proposal.

In the Tenth Ward, Peter Fisher favored giving the ability to reach outside the city for personnel, while he was undecided on the issue of increased pay scale. His opponent, Solly C. Present favored both the pay increase and non-resident provisions. No replies were received from the 11th, 12th or 13th Ward candidates.

In a joint statement, mayoralty candidate C. John Bechtold and alderman-at-large candidate, Louis J. Smith, indicated that both police and fire personnel should receive adequate compensation for the positions which they man, requiring as they do, personal exposure to danger and many other factors beyond those found in other types of employment. They indicated as did many of the respondents that both departments should be considered and that a survey of salary scales used in other parts of the State should be made. They expressed the feeling that it was probable that increases were in order for both departments.

Most of the candidates listed as undecided on these two city issues relating to fire and police protection, agreed that the two departments were inter-related and that the two questions were related. The general feeling was expressed that if salaries were increased it should be possible to attract city residents to the positions offered. If increased salaries and benefits still did not attract a sufficient number of qualified candidates to the two departments, then it would be necessary to go outside the city.

County Questions

The remaining two county legislative questions to be considered deal with the study for establishment of an Ulster County Airport and with the proposal for a county executive form of government. All candidates responding to the Chamber's questionnaire favored development of a county airport with the exception of U. Parker Decker, Philip H. Davis and Ernest J. Gardner. Most of those candidates who responded favorably to the question of the development of the Ulster County Airport however, included the proviso that the airport would have to be well-located so as to serve the greatest number of residents and businesses of the county.

They also indicated that such a location should not detract from the present land uses in the area selected. With those general qualifications acknowledged, the following favored the establishment of an Ulster County Airport: William D. Brinnier, Richard J. Luther, Harry S. Hoffman and Donald J. Morgan of the First District; John E. Marquardt, Lester C. Elmendorf, Orville E. Norman, Frank L. Miller, William A. Jackson, Kenneth Osterhoudt, Fred Kuhnel, S. Robert Kelder Sr. and Richard Nace of the Second District and E. Sterling Potter and Roger Mabie of the Seventh District; also George Majestic, Eighth District; Brian R. White, Edgar Florsheim, Anthony Pagano and Dominick Palladino of the Ninth District and city candidates Melvin Mones, Addison Jones, Daniel Smith, Orrie R. Riehl, William F. Edelmuth and Joseph B. Scully.

Concerning the county executive form of government again, no responding candidates opposed the implementation of this form of government. Those favoring the county executive form, generally agreed that county government today is big business and, as such, requires a trained, full-time executive. Generally speaking, those candidates favoring the county executive form also felt that he should be elected not appointed. Those favoring the county form of government included Marquardt, Elmendorf, Norman, Miller, Jackson, Osterhoudt, Kuhn, Kelder and Nace, all of the Second Legislative District.

In the Seventh Legislative District, Mabie favored such a proposal, as did Jedd S. Resner of the Eighth District. In the Ninth District, White, Pagano, Palladino and U. Parker Decker all favored the county executive form as did both Philip H. Davis and Ernest J. Gardner of the Eleventh District.

Among the city candidates, Mones, Smith, Riehl, Edelmuth and Scully all favored the county executive form.

Those candidates who chose to remain undecided as to their feeling concerning the county executive form included First District candidates Brinnier, Luther, Hoffman and Morgan,

In the Seventh District, Potter remained undecided as did Majestic of the Eighth District and Florsheim of the Ninth District. In the city Jones chose to remain undecided regarding the subject of a county executive.

In conclusion, Allen expressed his extreme appreciation to all the candidates who responded to the Chamber's inquiry regarding the subjects covered in yesterday's and today's releases. He expressed the hope that, as a result of the information provided by the candidates and released through the Chamber of Commerce, area voters would be able to make better choices when they go to the polls next Tuesday.

Makes Esopus JP Run After Dargie Death

Charles D. Montafia has been designated as the Republican candidate for justice of the peace in the Town of Esopus.

The committee on vacancies, composed of GOPers Frank W. Kelly, Clifford Every, and E. Sterling Potter, announced that Montafia's designation would fill the vacancy created by the death of Allan S. Dargie who died on October 28.

The committee stated that Montafia "has been actively engaged in business in the town for the past 15 years and is fully familiar with the civic and political affairs of the town which makes him well qualified for the town office of justice of the peace."

CITY CANDIDATE FOR COUNTY LEGISLATOR

VOTERS OF THE TOWN OF ULSTER

Nov. 2, 1967

To the Voters of the Town:

The letter of Percy Bush appearing on Page 31 of The Freeman of Thursday, November 2nd deserves clarification.

Mr. Bush's assumption that the Democratic candidates are against the raising of the salaries of Town Officials is incorrect.

The figures presented in the Freeman advertisement were PUBLISHED AS A PUBLIC SERVICE because a majority of the Town's citizens cannot "review" the budget at the Town Clerk's office and Mr. Bush knows this.

He neglected to mention that the committee consisted of 6 members—3 Democrats and 3 Republicans. This is the first time in 30 years that the Town Administration has shown such concern for the Democrats!

If it is a "must" that the budget be published, we are sorry Mr. Bush did not mention when and where it was published so that voters MIGHT EXAMINE IT AT THEIR LEISURE.

Mr. Bush, you don't object to the voters of the Town seeing budget figures before election, do you? LET'S REALLY BE FAIR TO ALL CONCERNED—ESPECIALLY TO THE VOTERS!

Sincerely,

EDWARD CROSBY

The Second Ward, Thomas F. Riehl, opposed a pay increase as well as opposing the non-resident provision. From the Fifth Ward both Joan Belser and Stanley J. Petro Jr. favored the pay increases and acceptance of non-resident applications as did Ronald F. Cole of the Fourth Ward and Frank Fabbie of the Fifth Ward.

In the Sixth Ward, Richard K. Fox spoke in favor of a pay increase and non-resident applications while Joseph Epstein was undecided regarding the pay issue but favored non-resident applications. Seventh Ward aldermanic candidate, Richard Burns favored the pay increase study but reserved decision on allowing non-residents to serve. Peter Mancuso of the Eighth Ward favored both proposals. James Madden was undecided on the residence issue but favored the pay scale increase as did William B. Merrill, who also favored the non-residents proposal.

In the Tenth Ward, Peter Fisher favored giving the ability to reach outside the city for personnel, while he was undecided on the issue of increased pay scale. His opponent, Solly C. Present favored both the pay increase and non-resident provisions. No replies were received from the 11th, 12th or 13th Ward candidates.

In a joint statement, majority candidate C. John Bechtold and alderman-at-large candidate, Louis J. Smith, indicated that both police and fire personnel should receive adequate compensation for the positions which they man, requiring as they do, personal exposure to danger and many other factors beyond those found in other types of employment. They indicated as did many of the respondents that both departments should be considered and that a survey of salary scales used in other parts of the State should be made. They expressed the feeling that it was probable that increases were in order for both departments.

Most of the candidates listed as undecided on these two city issues relating to fire and police protection, agreed that the two departments were inter-related and that the two questions were related. The general feeling was expressed that if salaries were increased it should be possible to attract city residents to the positions offered. If increased salaries and benefits still did not attract a sufficient number of qualified candidates to the two departments, then it would be necessary to go outside the city.

County Questions

The remaining two county legislator questions to be considered deal with the study for establishment of an Ulster County Airport and with the proposal for a county executive form of government. All candidates responding to the Chamber's questionnaire favored development of a county airport with the exception of U. Parker Decker, Philip H. Davis and Ernest J. Gardner. Most of those candidates who responded favorably to the question of the development of the Ulster County Airport however, included the proviso that the airport would have to be well located so as to serve the greatest number of residents and businesses of the county.

They also indicated that such a location should not detract from the present land uses in the area selected. With those general qualifications acknowledged, the following favored the establishment of an Ulster County Airport, William D. Brinnier, Richard J. Luther, Harry S. Hoffman and Donald J. Morgan of the First District; John E. Marquardt, Lester C. Elmen-dorf, Orville E. Norman, Frank L. Miller, William A. Jackson, Kenneth Osterhoudt, Fred Kuhnel, S. Robert Kelder Sr. and Richard Nace of the Second District and E. Sterling Potter and Roger Mabie of the Seventh District; also George Majestic, Eighth District; Brian R. White, Edgar Florsheim, Anthony Pagano and Dominick Palladino of the Ninth District and city candidates Melvin Mones, Addison Jones, Daniel Smith, Orrie R. Riehl, William F. Edelmuth and Joseph B. Scully.

Concerning the county executive form of government again, no responding candidates opposed the implementation of this form of government. Those favoring the county executive form, generally agreed that county government today is big business and, as such, requires a trained, full-time executive. Generally speaking, those candidates favoring the county executive form also felt that he should be elected not appointed. Those favoring the county form of government included Marquardt, Elmendorf, Norman, Miller, Jackson, Osterhoudt, Kuhn, Kelder and Nace, all of the Second Legislative District.

In the Seventh Legislative District, Mabie favored such a proposal, as did Jedd S. Resiner of the Eighth District. In the Ninth District, White, Pagano, Palladino and U. Parker Decker all favored the county executive form as did both Philip H. Davis and Ernest J. Gardner of the Eleventh District.

Among the city candidates, Mones, Smith, Riehl, Edelmuth and Scully all favored the county executive form.

Those candidates who chose to remain undecided as to their feeling concerning the county executive form included First District candidates Brinnier, Luther, Hoffman and Morgan,

In the Seventh District Potter remained undecided as did Majestic of the Eighth District and Florsheim of the Ninth District. In the city Jones chose to remain undecided regarding the subject of a county executive.

In conclusion, Allen expressed his extreme appreciation to all the candidates who responded to the Chamber's inquiry regarding the subjects covered in yesterday's and today's releases. He expressed the hope that, as a result of the information provided by the candidates and released through the Chamber of Commerce, area voters would be able to make better choices when they go to the polls next Tuesday.

Makes Esopus JP Run After Dargie Death

Charles D. Montafia has been designated as the Republican candidate for justice of the peace in the Town of Esopus.

The committee on vacancies, composed of GOPers Frank W. Kelly, Clifford Every, and E. Sterling Potter, announced that Montafia's designation would fill the vacancy created by the death of Allan S. Dargie who died on October 28.

The committee stated that Montafia "has been actively engaged in business in the town for the past 15 years and is fully familiar with the civic and political affairs of the town which makes him well qualified for the town office of justice of the peace."

VOTERS OF THE TOWN OF ULSTER

Nov. 2, 1967

To the Voters of the Town:

The letter of Percy Bush appearing on Page 31 of The Freeman of Thursday, November 2nd deserves clarification.

Mr. Bush's assumption that the Democratic candidates are against the raising of the salaries of Town Officials is incorrect.

The figures presented in the Freeman advertisement were PUBLISHED AS A PUBLIC SERVICE because a majority of the Town's citizens cannot "review" the budget at the Town Clerk's office and Mr. Bush knows this.

He neglected to mention that the committee consisted of 6 members—3 Democrats and 3 Republicans. This is the first time in 30 years that the Town Administration has shown such concern for the Democrats!

If it is a "must" that the budget be published, we are sorry Mr. Bush did not mention when and where it was published so that voters MIGHT EXAMINE IT AT THEIR LEISURE.

Mr. Bush, you don't object to the voters of the Town seeing budget figures before election, do you? LET'S REALLY BE FAIR TO ALL CONCERNED—ESPECIALLY TO THE VOTERS!

Sincerely,

EDWARD CROSBY

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, NOVEMBER 4, 1967

Vote on Proposals

The only statewide offices to be filled in the general election next Tuesday are two associate judges of the Court of Appeals and two of the candidates, Charles D. Breitel, Republican and Matthew J. Jansen, Democrat have been endorsed by the two major parties. These endorsements are tantamount to election. Kenneth J. Mulane has been endorsed by the Conservative Party.

However, there are statewide issues of vital importance to be decided in this election. Appearing at the top of the ballot will be Proposition No. 1, known as the transportation bond issue, authorizing the sale of $2.5 billion of state bonds to meet the rapidly growing transportation requirements of the state. We recommend approval.

There also will be two amendments—No. 1, known as Job Development Authority, would increase the lending capacity of the State Job Department Authority from the present $50 million to $200 million. We recommend a "Yes" vote.

Amendment No. 2 would permit the state to build a ski center on the Blue Ridge range in the Adirondack Forest Preserve. We recommend a "No" vote.

Question No. 1 is for a proposed New York State Constitution. This proposal should be defeated because of the number of provisions being presented in a one-package deal, thereby depriving the people of their right to vote for what they approve and to vote against what they disapprove. Vote "No."

The Freeman in earlier editions has given its reasons for the stand taken on these issues.

In the past, the percentage of voters who took time to vote on amendments and propositions was very low. The result was that a small minority determined the fate of proposals affecting all the people of the state.

Don't let it happen this year. The Freeman as a public service has printed the highlights of these proposals together with legal notices detailing the abstract and form of submission. Every voter has had ample time to get acquainted with these vital issues and to form an opinion which will be the basis for his decision.

The outcome of these proposals will profoundly affect your life and the lives of your children. Don't default on your responsibility. It is equally as important, if not more so, to vote on these issues as it is to cast your vote for any candidate on the ballot.

Tax Dodgers' School

Rep. Wright Patman of Texas, who has long sought to discredit foundations formed for the purpose of evading income taxes, now sites an organization called Americans Building Constitutionality, known as ABC, which he says is operating a school for tax dodgers.

As chairman of a House Small Business subcommittee, Patman called Robert D. Hayes of Barrington, Ill., one of three trustees of ABC, who acknowledged that his organization had taught members how to avoid taxes by setting up foundations. For this, he said ABC charged membership fees ranging from $1,050 to $10,500.

"In ABC, we teach our members that they must do those things which will benefit mankind, and that this is the only way in which foundations can gain tax exemptions," Hayes testified. "The manner in which they are taught to work for the benefit of mankind are those prescribed by law—namely in the field of charity, science, literature, education, testing for public safety and prevention of cruelty to children and animals. In short, ABC's concept of foundations is definitely not how to dodge taxes, but how to benefit others and thereby gain tax benefits."

Patman was not impressed. He cited reports that the school claimed to have 800 members who were taught how to create personal foundations and then to transfer their assets to the foundation set up under its tutelage. Accusing the Treasury Department of laxity in supervising and regulating tax-exempt foundations, Patman said, "We have had reports of foundation founders who lived lives of luxury, send their offsprings to college and give bountiful gifts to friends through so-called charitable foundations."

Hayes refused to identify any but one of a list of 62 foundations as members of ABC. Hayes' attorney, William E. Ray, said the Internal Revenue Service is conducting a "criminal investigation," without ruling whether ABC itself is entitled to tax exemption. Patman also threatened to cite Hayes for contempt of Congress for non-cooperation. Between these two actions, the real role of ABC should be uncovered. If it is school for tax dodging, as Patman charged, then the tax loophole it has found should be plugged.

"By the Way, Fellows, Who Won?"

Henry J. Taylor Says

Williams and Black Power Advocates

By HENRY J. TAYLOR. BALTIMORE. Black Power insiders here reveal a hardly known fact. When insurrectionist American advocates of their program, including Stokely Carmichael, go to Hanoi they hit straight for Robert F. Williams. Our country should know more about this typical stooge and the whys of what's he's doing.

Williams, 42, one of the rottenest apples in the whole barrel, is a black nationalist. I first wrote about (July 7, 1965) when he was in Castro's pay in Havana. He had fled the United States (via Canada under indictment for kidnapping at gunpoint and was a Federal fugitive.

Williams was Castro's pet anti-American propagandist, superseding a previous pet who was a Chinese Red. He broadcast over radio to the American Negro population in our Southern states.

Williams and other stooges gushed out a weekly half-hour program called "The Voice of Free Dixie." Free Dixie's voice in Castro's Cuba; Free Dixie's voice where if your neighbor dislikes you his word may kill you!

Black Power advocates are pro-Castro, pro-Red China oriented, and Williams has moved on to North Vietnam. He has been broadcasting to our Negro troops in South Vietnam over Radio Hanoi, although the majority clearly detest him.

Williams calls on Negro soldiers to revolt—"you helpless G.I.s ordered by your white officers to die." He claims the South Vietnamese regard the North Vietnam government as their liberator.

(More than a million Vietnamese fled to South Vietnam when Red Ho Chi Minh took over in the north.) Williams shouts Black Power's standard explanation for Negro riots in the United States: "police brutality." He calls his voice the Negroes' voice against the police.

In truth, Black Power advocates here begrudgingly admit the correctness of nationwide independent polls which confirm a totally different picture of Negro feelings. The overwhelming majority of Negroes are sympathetic to the problems of law and order, scorn the charges of police brutality as being the cause of Negro riots and want more police protection.

Anarchy is what the Negroes fear, and ever fear, as we all do. And when Black Power or any other Negro leaders urge turning civil rights demonstrations into anti-Vietnam war protests, this again defies the over-all national Negro sentiment.

Williams glorifies to our troops the draft card burners. "They're the heroes back home; you're the patsies," he states. "The Negro community knows it takes more courage to burn a draft card handed you by the whites than to fight where you are—under orders." This is the straight Black Power line.

He tells Negro soldiers how to avoid battle duty by a self-inflicted wound: "Shoot yourself in the toe." He tells them to write an objectors' list in Philadelphia for anti-war material to distribute secretly in their barracks.

What Williams does not state is who controls him and other such stooges in the domestic and international Black Power structure.

They have three masters. One is Red China's international propaganda and subversive apparatus known as the Teh Wu Section of Peking's over-all Hai-Wai-Tiao Cha Pu espionage organization. The second is the First Main Directorate of the Kremlin's State Security Committee (KGB) at 19 Stanislavskaya Street, opposite the East German Embassy, in Moscow.

This KGB section is called Department D. It stands for "Disinformation Bureau." Literally, the "Disinformation Bureau." The function is disinformation, insurrection, etc. worldwide.

Their third control is the Viet Cong propaganda headquarters near the old French mansion in the center of Hanoi where Ho Chi Minh lives.

It is nearly incredible that our country fails to fully realize that Black Power's involvement with foreign powers is indisputable. Black Power insiders make no bones about this. An enemy fifth column is on the march here. It is thoroughly structured in our college demonstrations, militant civil rights cadres and city-burning groups. Moreover, Black Power is only one of the fifth column's many fronts.

The purpose of the insurrectionists is to be the greatest uncontrolled threat to America's anti-Communist foreign policy. The ultimate objective is the military defeat, or political surrender, of the United States through weakness from within.

I plan to write next from Washington about the political side of this fifth-column attack.

Even before Johnson went to work on him an individual senator was more than likely already indebted to him for a past favor, like Johnson's help in getting through some legislation the senator wanted.

If he couldn't get full agreement, Johnson was willing to compromise. He took special pride in this. It was one of his favorite tactics, perhaps his most important one.

His philosophy about getting legislation through the Senate was simple. He was realistic. He didn't operate on Cloud 9, insisting that a majority of the Senate had to give him exactly what he wanted as he wanted it.

If necessary, he was willing to settle for less than all he wanted in order to get some of it, believing that in time he could get the rest of it.

Two aides to moderate governors not eager for Reagan's nomination described his performance in shipboard Republican caucuses as "clear, forceful and aggressive." Some found him impressive but, aloof, a smiling "cold fish."

His popular support is obviously large and growing in the South and West. Any stumbling by Nixon would find conservative professionals turning to him in droves, though some would hang back. Only a few think weak showing in Wisconsin, Nebraska and Oregon primaries would doom him, since he could argue his effort there was (as planned) merely token.

NIXON: On paper the present leader, as measured by public and private polls, organization commitments, leadership appraisals. Yet he seems to need really smashing primary victories, plus consistent poll margins over Lyndon Johnson to wipe out deep skepticism in the party over his capacity to win.

Nevertheless, moderates shaken by a defeated Romney and unable to mount a draft for Rockefeller might throw in with Nixon rather than hand the prize to Reagan.

Drew Pearson Says Has Gov. Reagan Introduced GOP Credibility Gap?

WASHINGTON — Gov. Ronald Reagan's recent press conference, at which he denied easing homosexuals out of his official family, raises this double-barreled issue: 1. Did he have appointments to his staff screened by a competent government agency?

2. Has he introduced a Republican credibility gap? These questions are important because the public has both the right and duty to form a judgement regarding presidential candidates. How a man performs as governor gives an indication of what he may do as president much more than his ability to appear before TV cameras.

In Reagan's case, Attorney General Tom Lynch offered to check on prospective appointees to Reagan's cabinet and staff, as Lynch had done for other governors.

Reagan strangely declined. The public therefore is entitled to know whether appointees were screened at all and how Reagan would screen federal appointees if he became president. Reagan doesn't deny that two of his staff, one very close to him, were dropped without explanation last August. The public has a right to know whether they were screened in advance and if so by whom.

The second question has to do with simple truth. There has been a lot of discussion of the so-called credibility gap in Washington. Is there now a more brazen credibility gap in California? The answer can easily be ascertained from some of the newspapermen who accompanied Reagan to the Governors' conference in the Virgin Islands and heard Lyn Nofziger, Reagan's public relations director, discuss the firing of the two homosexuals from Reagan's staff.

Nofziger, Reagan's prodding, denied any such discussions. Yet Julius Duschka of the Washington Post, who attended the Sacramento Press Conference, reported that this denial "came as a surprise to reporters who had heard the Reagan aide address himself to the recent firings on several occasions during the Governors' Conference cruise."

Louis Lomax, the respected Negro columnist, also has written: "Early last week, a close Reagan advisor hinted to me that homosexuality was involved. During a trip to the East Coast, I directly confronted one of the nation's leading conservatives, a man high in the Reagan-for-President drive, with the information I had obtained. He not only confirmed the story but commented, 'Thank God the truth is now known. I don't know why in hell Ronnie couldn't be honest, and surface it several weeks ago.'"

This it should be fairly easy to find out who is telling the truth and whether there is one standard of credibility gap for a Democratic President in Washington and another for a would-be Republican President in California.

Fairfax Wheeler-Dealers

Another of the bright young boys who worked for LBJ in the Senate, Stanford E. Parris, has made a small fortune wheeling and dealing. Unlike Bobby Baker, however, Parris abandoned Lyndon Johnson, moved across the Potomac into Republican circles and is now widely regarded as the heir apparent to Rep. Joel Brothill, R-Va.

For the past four years, the likeable Parris has promoted some profitable real estate deals at the same time that he has served on the Fairfax County, Va., Board of Supervisors which passes on real estate matters. Now Brothill, in a "dear neighbor" letter to county residents, is boosting him for the board chairmanship.

As a supervisor, Parris has championed valuable zoning changes for real estate promoter Ralph H. Stowe. At the same time, Parris collected a retainer fee as Stowe's attorney, flew around in Stowe's private plane and became involved in a curious $93,000 financial transaction with him.

This column has obtained a loan application, signed by Parris, listing as an asset a $93,000 note payable on demand from Ralph H. Stowe, also cancelled checks from Stowe to Parris. One check for $2,500, dated April 12, 1967, has word "curtail" scribbled in a corner.

Parris explained that he had loaned $93,000 to the wealthy real estate promoter, that the word "curtail" must have referred to a "phase" of the loan since it has not entirely been paid off. He agreed that Stowe had an excellent credit rating and could easily have borrowed the money from a bank. The reactor simply preferred a personal loan, Parris suggested.

Real Estate Finaglings

He also claimed that he had voted against some of Stowe's zoning applications and cited one example. He had always tried, he said, to judge each application by its merits. As one of seven supervisors, he contended, he could not work his will with the board.

In at least one case, however, he made the motion on July 29, 1964, to permit Stowe to build high-rise apartments on a valuable tract, then pushed the motion through the board by a 4 to 3 vote. Parris also led the move to grant Stowe permission to build garden apartments on a 120-acre agricultural tract near Ft. Belvoir, Va.

Parris denied that, in addition to the $93,000 transaction, Stowe had built a $140,000 auto showroom and building for him. The builder said Parris had been the Wilcap Corporation. A secretary in Stowe's office told this column that Wilcap Corporation was owned principally by Stowe.

In his loan application, Parris listed his assets at $907,337, his net worth as $605,187.

The World Today

LBJ Has Traveled Long Road From Master to Petitioner

By JAMES MARLOW

AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has traveled a long road from master to petitioner.

When he was Democratic leader in the Senate in the 1950s, he had a detailed knowledge of every senator from both parties: His strong point, his weak ones and his special interests.

He made it his business to know, which is one of the reasons why he was probably the most effective Senate leader in American history.

In the Senate cloakroom, on the telephone or in his office Johnson twisted the arms of senators who objected to legislation he was shepherding.

Even before Johnson went to work on him an individual senator was more than likely already indebted to him for a past favor, like Johnson's help in getting through some legislation the senator wanted.

If he couldn't get full agreement, Johnson was willing to compromise. He took special pride in this. It was one of his favorite tactics, perhaps his most important one.

His philosophy about getting legislation through the Senate was simple. He was realistic. He didn't operate on Cloud 9, insisting that a majority of the Senate had to give him exactly what he wanted as he wanted it.

If necessary, he was willing to settle for less than all he wanted in order to get some of it, believing that in time he could get the rest of it.

An outstanding example is the 1957 Civil Rights Act, the first such legislation approved in this century. Nobody before Johnson had been able to do it.

It was the product of compromise, winding up being a lot less forceful than the civil rights measure the Senate started out to consider. Negroes were unhappy about it, and some were intensely angry at Johnson.

But Southern resistance, which had been able to block every other civil rights bill in this century, was broken and could never be the same again. Thus the 1957 act, less than perfect, was a foot in the door.

In those Senate years Johnson, completely on top of domestic problems, was never noted as a foreign affairs authority. He didn't have to be, since foreign affairs bills had been worked over in detail by specialized committees before reaching the Senate for a vote.

Then Johnson moved out of the Senate and into the vice presidency and finally into the presidency where the problems were quite different, as Johnson learned in a hurry, particularly with Vietnam.

For a while time was on his side, letting him still run Congress—now from the White House. The proof was what happened in 1965 after the year-earlier elections gave Democrats overwhelming control of both House and Senate.

In 1965 Congress achieved its most productive year, ramming through a miracle of legislation under Johnson's prodding and maneuvering. He still had time for that. Vietnam was only just beginning to boil over.

Congress tapered off in 1966, mainly perhaps because by then Johnson had become so deeply involved in Vietnam. His difficulties were compounded by the 1966 elections in which Republicans regained 47 seats from the Democrats.

His lack of experience in foreign affairs was one of the biggest monkeys on his back at the right moment expertness was needed in handling the Vietnam war.

Instead of being a master, as he was in Congress, he had to depend on government experts to advise him. Like President John F. Kennedy before him, he was sometimes far from graceful with foreign problems.

And bit by bit, as he got more deeply soaked in foreign affairs, his grip on Congress diminished. He has confessed it without saying it in so many words.

His news conference Wednesday was a good example. There he did what he had done at least once before. He criticized Congress for dragging its feet on major legislation he wanted.

For Johnson to have done this when he was in Congress is unthinkable. But he went further.

No president could have more thoroughly admitted his frustration in trying to bend Congress to his will than Johnson did Thursday when he made a public appeal to Americans to put pressure on Congress.

Hudson Valley Ski Club Poughkeepsie, N. Y. Nov. 2, 1967

For Amendment 2

Editor, The Freeman:

Unfortunately, many voters do not realize that despite its numerous ski centers, our state is actually losing money on one of the country's fastest growing sports. Why? Because the demand for more major ski areas is on the rise, and there is a lack of sufficient MAJOR ski centers, with challenge and variety, in New York State. The most desirable peaks, such as Hoffman Mountain, lie within state lands and are not available to private enterprise for development. So we are losing skiers, and the revenue they bring, to the mountains of Vermont and Canada.

The Hudson Valley Ski Club Inc. would like to remind the voter that millions of dollars have been voted by the people of this state to acquire more lands in the Adirondacks, and last year a bond issue was voted by the people to develop their recreational potential. The development of Hoffman Mountain as a major ski center is in line with these proposals; has been approved by the Legislature; and recommended by the Governor.

Many tax dollars have already been spent by the state in developing spring, summer and fall recreational facilities. Why ignore the winter season and the more than one million taxpayers who are skiers and skiers? After all, these state lands were meant to be used by the greatest number of people. And even though most of us classify ourselves as recreational skiers, we take our sport as seriously as any hunter, fisherman, golfer, camper, swimmer, etc., who now uses state-owned land.

We feel that the New York skier is entitled to better and bigger facilities on his own home ground. Studies by the New York State Conservation Department and designers of ski areas have shown it to be possible to construct a ski center on Hoffman Mountain that would be on a par with the most competitive centers in the east and able to accommodate every class of skier. The development of a major ski area such as this would attract many skiers and bring to this state monies which would otherwise be spent in out-of-state areas. And not just in the winter-time, the facilities could be used throughout the year by sightseers, hikers, picnickers and nature lovers in general. Witness Belleayre Mountain.

As for the "forever wild" concept, no deer wintering yards, water sheds, true wilderness, or "High Peak" area will be affected by the development of Hoffman Mountain.

In view of these facts, we urge the voters to drop the YES lever on Amendment 2.

Yours truly, Hudson Valley Ski Club Inc. Daniel Panessa, President

The only statewide offices to be filled in the general election next Tuesday are two associate judges of the Court of Appeals and two of these candidates, Charles D. Breitel, Republican and Matthew J. Jansen, Democrat have been endorsed by the two major parties. These endorsements are tantamount to election. Kenneth J. Mulane has been endorsed by the Conservative Party.

However, there are statewide issues of vital importance to be decided in this election. Appearing at the top of the ballot will be Proposition No. 1, known as the transportation bond issue, authorizing the sale of $2.5 billion of state bonds to meet the rapidly growing transportation requirements of the state. We recommend approval.

There also will be two amendments—No. 1, known as Job Development Authority, would increase the lending capacity of the State Job Department Authority from the present $50 million to $200 million. We recommend a "Yes" vote.

Amendment No. 2 would permit the state to build a ski center on the Blue Ridge range in the Adirondack Forest Preserve. We recommend a "No" vote.

Question No. 1 is for a proposed New York State Constitution. This proposal should be defeated because of the number of provisions being presented in a one-package deal, thereby depriving the people of their right to vote for what they approve and to vote against what they disapprove. Vote "No."

The Freeman in earlier editions has given its reasons for the stand taken on these issues.

In the past, the percentage of voters who took time to vote on amendments and propositions was very low. The result was that a small minority determined the fate of proposals affecting all the people of the state.

Don't let it happen this year. The Freeman as a public service has printed the highlights of these proposals together with legal notices detailing the abstract and form of submission. Every voter has had ample time to get acquainted with these vital issues and to form an opinion which will be the basis for his decision.

The outcome of these proposals will profoundly affect your life and the lives of your children. Don't default on your responsibility. It is equally as important, if not more so, to vote on these issues as it is to cast your vote for any candidate on the ballot.

Tax Dodgers' School

Rep. Wright Patman of Texas, who has long sought to discredit foundations formed for the purpose of evading income taxes, now sites an organization called Americans Building Constitutionality, known as ABC, which he says is operating a school for tax dodgers.

As chairman of a House Small Business subcommittee, Patman called Robert D. Hayes of Barrington, Ill., one of three trustees of ABC, who acknowledged that his organization had taught members how to avoid taxes by setting up foundations. For this, he said ABC charged membership fees ranging from $1,050 to $10,500.

"In ABC, we teach our members that they must do those things which will benefit mankind, and that this is the only way in which foundations can gain tax exemptions," Hayes testified. "The manner in which they are taught to work for the benefit of mankind are those prescribed by law—namely in the field of charity, science, literature, education, testing for public safety and prevention of cruelty to children and animals. In short, ABC's concept of foundations is definitely not how to dodge taxes, but how to benefit others and thereby gain tax benefits."

Patman was not impressed. He cited reports that the school claimed to have 800 members who were taught how to create personal foundations and then to transfer their assets to the foundation set up under its tutelage. Accusing the Treasury Department of laxity in supervising and regulating tax-exempt foundations, Patman said, "We have had reports of foundation founders who lived lives of luxury, send their offsprings to college and give bountiful gifts to friends through so-called charitable foundations."

Hayes refused to identify any but one of a list of 62 foundations as members of ABC. Hayes' attorney, William E. Ray, said the Internal Revenue Service is conducting a "criminal investigation," without ruling whether ABC itself is entitled to tax exemption. Patman also threatened to cite Hayes for contempt of Congress for non-cooperation. Between these two actions, the real role of ABC should be uncovered. If it is school for tax dodging, as Patman charged, then the tax-loophole it has found should be plugged.

The Soviet feat of linking up two unmanned satellites in space by radio guidance is another step toward sending cosmonauts to the moon and to station semi-permanent military observation posts above the earth. The United States puts its faith in its own manned rendezvous and link-up method, which was accomplished months ago.

"By the Way, Fellows, Who Won?"

Henry J. Taylor Says

By HENRY J. TAYLOR
BALTIMORE — Black Power insiders here reveal a hardly known fact. When insurrectionist American advocates of their program, including Stokely Carmichael, go to Hanoi they hit straight for Robert F. Williams. Our country should know more about this typical stooge and the whys of what's he's doing.

Williams, 42, one of the rottenest apples in the whole barrel, is a black nationalist I first wrote about (July 7, 1965) when he was in Castro's pay in Havana. He had fled the United States (via Canada under indictment for kidnapping at gunpoint and was a Federal fugitive.

Williams was Castro's pet anti-American propagandist, superseding a previous pet who was a Chinese Red. He broadcast over radio to the American Negro population in our Southern states.

Williams and other stooges gushed out a weekly half-hour program called "The Voice of Free Dixie." Free Dixie's voice in Castro's Cuba; Free Dixie's voice where if your neighbor dislikes you his word may kill you.

Black Power advocates are pro-Castro, pro-Red China oriented, and Williams has moved on to North Vietnam. He has been broadcasting to our Negro troops in South Vietnam over Radio Hanoi, although the majority clearly detest him.

Williams calls on Negro soldiers to revolt—"you helpless G.I.s ordered by your white officers to die." He claims the South Vietnamese regard the North Vietnam government as their liberators.

tor. (More than a million Vietnamese fled to South Vietnam when Red Ho Chi Minh took over in the north.) Williams shouts Black Power's standard explanation for Negro riots in the United States: "police brutality." He calls his voice the Negroes' voice against the police.

In truth, Black Power advocates here begrudgingly admit the correctness of nationwide independent polls which confirm a totally different picture of Negro feelings. The overwhelming majority of Negroes are sympathetic to the problems of law and order, scorn the charges of police brutality as being the cause of Negro riots and want more police protection. Anarchy is what the Negroes fear, and ever fear, as we all do. And when Black Power or any other Negro leaders urge turning civil rights demonstrations into anti-Vietnam war protests, this again defies the over-all national Negro sentiment.

Williams glorifies to our troops the draft card burners. "They're the heroes back home; you're the patsies," he states. "The Negro community knows it takes more courage to burn a draft card handed you by the whites than to fight where you are—under orders." This is the straight Black Power line.

He tells Negro soldiers how to avoid battle duty by a self-inflicted wound: "Shoot yourself in the toe." He tells them to write an objectors' group in Philadelphia for anti-war material to distribute secretly in their barracks.

What Williams does not state is who controls him and other such stooges in the domestic and international Black Power structure.

They have three masters. One is Red China's international propaganda and subversive apparatus known as the Teh Wu Section of Peking's over-all Hai-Wai-Tiao Cha Pu espionage organization. The second is the First Main Directorate of the Kremlin's State Security Committee (KGB) at 19 Stanislavskaya Street, opposite the East German Embassy, in Moscow.

This KGB section is called Department D. It stands for "Dezinformatsiia Bureau," literally, the "Disinformation Bureau." The function is disinformation, insurrection, etc. worldwide.

Their third control is the Viet Cong propaganda headquarters near the old French mansion in the center of Hanoi where Ho Chi Minh lives. It is nearly incredible that our country fails to fully realize that Black Power's involvement with foreign powers is indisputable. Black Power insiders make no bones about this. An enemy fifth column is on the march here. It is thoroughly structured in our college demonstrations, militant civil rights cadres and city-burning riots. Moreover, Black Power is only one of the fifth column's many fronts.

The purpose of the insurrectionists is to be the greatest uncontrolled threat to America's anti-Communist foreign policy. The ultimate objective is the military defeat, or political surrender, of the United States through weakness from within.

I plan to write next from Washington about the political side of this fifth-column attack.

Drew Pearson Says
Has Gov. Reagan Introduced
GOP Credibility Gap?

WASHINGTON — Gov. Ronald Reagan's recent press conference, at which he denied easing homosexuals out of his official family, raises this double-barreled issue:
1. Did he have appointments to his staff screened by a competent government agency?
2. Has he introduced a Republican credibility gap?

These questions are important because the public has both the right and duty to form a judgement regarding presidential candidates. How a man performs as governor gives an indication of what he may do as president much more than his ability to appear before TV cameras.

In Reagan's case, Attorney General Tom Lynch offered to check on prospective appointees to Reagan's cabinet and staff, as Lynch had done for other governors.

Reagan strangely declined. The public therefore is entitled to know whether appointees were screened at all and how Reagan would screen federal appointees if he became president. Reagan doesn't deny that two of his staff, one very close to him, were dropped without explanation last August. The public has a right to know whether they were screened in advance and if so by whom.

The second question has to do with simple truth. There has been a lot of discussion of the so-called credibility gap in Washington. Is there now a more brazen credibility gap in California? The answer can easily be ascertained from some of the newspapermen who accompanied Reagan to the Governors' conference in the Virgin Islands and heard Lyn Notziger, Reagan's public relations director, discuss the firing of the two homosexuals from Reagan's staff. Notziger, at Reagan's prodding, denied any such discussions.

Yet Julius Duschka of the Washington Post, who attended the Sacramento Press Conference, reported that this denial "came as a surprise to reporters who had heard the Reagan aide address himself to the recent firings on several occasions during the Governors' Conference cruise."

Louis Lomax, the respected Negro columnist, also has written: "Early last week, a close Reagan advisor hinted to me that homosexuality was involved. During a trip to the East Coast, I directly confronted one of the nation's leading conservatives, a man high in the Reagan-for-President drive, with the information I had obtained. He not only confirmed the story but commented, 'Thank God the truth is now known. I don't know why in hell Ronnie couldn't be honest, and surface it several weeks ago.'"

This it should be fairly easy to find out who is telling the truth and whether there is one standard of credibility gap for a Democratic President in Washington and another for a would-be Republican President in California.

Fairfax Wheeler-Dealers

Another of the bright young boys who worked for LBJ in the Senate, Stanford E. Parris, has made a small fortune wheeling and dealing. Unlike Bobby Baker, however, Parris abandoned Lyndon Johnson, moved across the Potomac into Republican circles and is now widely regarded as the heir apparent to Rep. Joel Brothman, R-Va.

For the past four years, the likeable Parris has promoted some profitable real estate deals at the same time that he has served on the Fairfax County, Va., Board of Supervisors which passes on real estate matters. Now Brothman, in a "dear neighbor" letter to county residents, is boosting him for the board chairmanship.

As a supervisor, Parris has championed valuable zoning changes for real estate promoter Ralph H. Stowe. At the same time, Parris collected a retainer fee as Stowe's attorney, flew around in Stowe's private plane and became involved in a curious $93,000 financial transaction with him.

This column has obtained a loan application, signed by Parris, listing as an asset a $93,000 note payable on demand from Ralph H. Stowe, also cancelled checks from Stowe to Parris. One check for $2,500, dated April 12, 1967, has word "curtail" scribbled in a corner.

Parris explained that he had loaned $93,000 to the wealthy real estate promoter, that the word "curtail" must have referred to a "phase" of the loan since it has not entirely been paid off. He agreed that Stowe had an excellent credit rating and could easily have borrowed the money from a bank. The realtor simply preferred a personal loan, Parris suggested.

Real Estate Finaglings

He also claimed that he had voted against some of Stowe's zoning applications and cited one example. He had always tried, he said, to judge each application by its merits. As one of seven supervisors, he contended, he could not work his will with the board.

In at least one case, however, he made the motion on July 29, 1964, to permit Stowe to build high-rise apartments on a valuable tract, then pushed the motion through the board by a 4 to 3 vote. Parris also led the move to grant Stowe permission to build garden apartments on a 120-acre agricultural tract near Ft. Belvoir, Va.

Parris denied that, in addition to the $93,000 transaction, Stowe had built a $140,000 auto showroom and building for him. The builder, said Parris, had been the Wilcap Corporation. A secretary in Stowe's office told this column that Wilcap Corporation was owned principally by Stowe.

In his loan application, Parris listed his assets at $907,337, his net worth as $605,187.

LBJ Has Traveled Long Road
From Master to Petitioner

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has traveled a long road from master to petitioner.

When he was Democratic leader in the Senate in the 1950s, he had a detailed knowledge of every senator from both parties; his strong points, his weak ones and his special interests.

He made it his business to know, which is one of the reasons why he was probably the most effective Senate leader in American history. In the Senate cloakroom, on the telephone or in his office Johnson twisted the arms of senators who objected to legislation he was shepherding.

Even before Johnson went to work on him an individual senator was more than likely already indebted to him for a past favor, like Johnson's help in getting through some legislation the senator wanted.

If he couldn't get full agreement, Johnson was willing to compromise. He took special pride in this. It was one of his favorite tactics, perhaps his most important one.

His philosophy about getting legislation through the Senate was simple. He was realistic. He didn't operate on Cloud 9, insisting that a majority of the Senate had to give him exactly what he wanted as he wanted it.

If necessary, he was willing to settle for less than all he wanted in order to get some of it, believing that in time he could get the rest of it.

An outstanding example is the 1957 Civil Rights Act, the first such legislation approved in this century. Nobody before Johnson had been able to do it.

It was the product of compromise, winding up being a lot less forceful than the civil rights measure the Senate started out to consider. Negroes were unhappy about it, and some were intensely angry at Johnson.

But Southern resistance, which had been able to block every other civil rights bill in this century, was broken and could never be the same again. Thus the 1957 act, less than perfect, was a foot in the door.

In those Senate years Johnson, completely on top of domestic problems, was never noted as a foreign affairs authority. He didn't have to be, since foreign affairs bills had been worked over in detail by specialized committees before reaching the Senate for a vote.

Then Johnson moved out of the Senate and into the vice presidency and finally into the presidency where the problems were quite different, as Johnson learned in a hurry, particularly with Vietnam.

For a while time was on his side, letting him still run Congress—now from the White House. The proof was what happened in 1965 after the year-earlier elections gave Democrats overwhelming control of both House and Senate.

In 1965 Congress achieved its most productive year, ramming through a miracle of legislation under Johnson's prodding and maneuvering. He still had time for that. Vietnam was only just beginning to boil over.

Congress tapered off in 1966, mainly perhaps because by then Johnson had become so deeply involved in Vietnam. His difficulties were compounded by the 1966 elections in which Republicans regained 47 seats from the Democrats.

His lack of experience in foreign affairs was one of the biggest monkeys on his back at the right moment expertness was needed in handling the Vietnam war.

Instead of being a master, as he was in Congress, he had to depend on government experts to advise him. Like President John F. Kennedy before him, he was sometimes far from graceful with foreign problems.

And bit by bit, as he got more deeply soaked in foreign affairs, his grip on Congress diminished. He has confessed it without saying it in so many words.

His news conference Wednesday was a good example. There he did what he had done at least once before. He criticized Congress for dragging its feet on major legislation he wanted.

For Johnson to have done this when he was in Congress is unthinkable. But he went further.

No president could have more thoroughly admitted his frustration in trying to bend Congress to his will than Johnson did Thursday when he made a public appeal to Americans to put pressure on Congress.

Nov. 2, 1967

For Amendment 2

Editor, The Freeman:

Unfortunately, many voters do not realize that despite its numerous ski centers, our state is actually losing money on one of the country's fastest growing sports. Why? Because the demand for more major ski areas is on the rise, and there is a lack of sufficient MAJOR ski centers, with challenge and variety, in New York State. The most desirable peaks, such as Hoffman Mountain, lie within state lands and are not available to private enterprise for development. So we are losing skiers, and the revenue they bring, to the mountains of Vermont and Canada.

The Hudson Valley Ski Club Inc. would like to remind the voter that millions of dollars have been voted by the people of this state to acquire more lands in the Adirondacks, and last year a bond issue was voted by the people to develop their recreational potential. The development of Hoffman Mountain as a major ski center is in line with these proposals; has been approved by the Legislature, and recommended by the Governor.

Many tax dollars have already been spent by the state in developing spring, summer and fall recreational facilities. Why ignore the winter season and the more than one million taxpayers who are ski enthusiasts? After all, these state lands were meant to be used by the greatest number of people. And even though most of us classify ourselves as recreational skiers, we take our sport as seriously as any hunter, fisherman, golfer, camper, swimmer, etc., who now uses state-owned land.

We feel that the New York skier is entitled to better and bigger facilities on his own home ground. Studies by the New York State Conservation Department and designers of ski areas have shown it to be possible to construct a ski center on Hoffman Mountain that would be on a par with the most competitive centers in the east and able to accommodate every class of skier. The development of a major ski area such as this would attract many skiers and bring to this state monies which would otherwise be spent in out-of-state areas. And not just in the winter-time... the facilities could be used throughout the year by sightseers, hikers, picnickers and nature lovers in general. Witness Belleayre Mountain.

As for the "forever wild" concept, no deer wintering yards, water sheds, true wilderness, or "High Peak" area will be affected by the development of Hoffman Mountain.

In view of these facts, we urge the voters to drop the YES lever on Amendment 2.

Yours truly,
Hudson Valley Ski Club Inc.

Rieley added that it was "too bad" the "ghost writers didn't think a little more about what to say."

Rieley was replying to a statement issued by the incumbent 2nd Ward Alderman Robert D. Schantz.

"Mr. Schantz states that the constitutional system of checks and balances makes it perfectly all right for his party's mayoral candidate to institute an 'advisory board' should he be elected.

"Mind you," the Conservative went on, "this proposal did not take into account in any manner the fact that the government of this City is the responsibility of the Common Council as well as the Mayor. The proposal did say that the consent of the Common Council would be requested before (the proposal) was implemented.

"In fact, the existence of a Common Council was totally ignored," said Rieley.

The Conservative candidate mentioned the U. S. Constitution as referring to the "advice and consent" of the Senate when it comes to Presidential appointments and he declared, "It is

Barnovitz Again Blasts Torraca on Convictions

Charging that "the district attorney has been playing with figures," in his advertising, David M. Barnovitz claimed today that the new felony conviction-felony indictment figures "continue to demonstrate that Mr. Torraca's record is the worst in the state."

Barnovitz, running for the DA's post on the Democratic-Liberal ticket, told The Freeman "the figures for 1966 show 137 indictments to only 19 convictions and the 1967 figures from January through September have the Ulster County DA's office giving 102 felony indictments to the grand jury and getting only 22 convictions in return."

"Since assuming office in January, 1965 Mr. Torraca's staff has been faced with 378 felony indictments and has obtained convictions in only 14.9 per cent of the cases," the candidate and Kingston attorney stated.

"In order to bring the record up to date," Barnovitz declared, "I phoned the director of research of the State of New York Department of Corrections and got the record, so if Mr. Torraca wants to make an argument out of it he can make one with the Department of Corrections."

Pointing to Dutchess County District Attorney's office as having a 50 per cent felony indictment-felony conviction ratio, Barnovitz said, "the Dutchess DA got his 50 per cent with one part-time district attorney and five part-time assistants."

"Our own Ulster County office has one part-time DA, five part-time assistants, and two full-time investigators as well, and their record is the worst of all the 62 counties of the state."

The Democrat-Liberal explained that "a felony is a serious crime where human life is in danger. Felonies include murder, robbery, rape, and felonious assault."

"Now either the district attorney's office is seeking indictments for cases involving a great number of innocent people, or Ulster County has the most brilliant battery of lawyers in the State."

"What seems more reasonable," Barnovitz went on to say, "is that the district attorney, Mr. Torraca, is handling his cases with a fantastic degree of ineptness."

The Democrat-Liberal said that, "During any other time but an election year, the county lawmakers would probably order an investigation of Mr. Torraca's office."

"One thing is clear, however," Barnovitz stated, "Ulster County can easily be seen as being a haven for criminals, serving as a magnet for individuals who are intent upon committing a serious crime and want the best chance possible of getting away with it should they be caught."

Ulster Shows $25,045 Gain From Bingo Games

Figures compiled by the New York State Bingo Control Commission continue to show the increasing popularity of bingo with area residents.

Ulster County, with 11 organizations reporting, grossed a total of $133,086 between Oct. 1966 and March of 1967. Prizes awarded totaled $101,786 for a net profit of $25,045. Licensing fees are deducted from the profits.

Dutchess County headed neighboring counties with 14 organizations reporting. Grosses amounted to $197,271, with prizes accounting for $138,175. Profits reached $49,671.

Greene County, with two organizations reporting, grossed $21,825. Prizes amounted to $15,056 and net profit totaled $5,859.

Will Study Air Pollution Woes

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller today appointed Syracuse Mayor William F. Walsh to the Air Pollution Control Board for a term ending July 1, 1968.

The governor also reappointed Jerome Wilkenfeld of Fresh Meadows, Niagara County, for a term ending July 1, 1971, and Edward J. Kilcawley of Troy for a term ending July 1, 1970.

Walsh was chosen to succeed W. Harry Lister of Rockville Center, who had resigned. Members of the boards serve without pay.

Sees Tax Rise If Voters Pass Constitution

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — New York State residents can expect state and local tax increases as much as 80 per cent if the proposed new constitution is adopted, the president of the New York State Association of Real Estate Boards says.

Bernard G. Meyers said Friday the cost of the charter has been estimated at $1.2 billion in the first year and $23 billion over the first 10 years.

Fiscal experts, he said, have estimated that an 80 per cent increase in state revenue would be needed under the charter. This would be reflected by jumps in state and local taxes, he said.

Meyers said the proposed charter would repeal the real estate tax limit and the debt limit for most city school systems, which are supported in part by real estate taxes.

Municipal debt limits would be increased, Meyers said. In addition, he said, real estate taxes would assume the debt service payments on local public housing bonds.

The real estate tax base, currently compiled on the average of the five-year assessed valuation of real estate, would be compiled on a three-year average, he said, permitting an increase in real estate taxes.

Meyers said the new state constitution could mean higher real estate taxes for home-owners and higher rents for tenants.

Rep. Resnick Speaker At Esopus Prep

An open house and parent's day at Esopus Prep School, Esopus, will be held Sunday, Nov. 12 with Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick as guest speaker.

Two busloads of parents from New York City, will visit their sons there, most for the first time.

The school is a prevocational academy for young men between ages 17 and 21 who are from poor neighborhoods in New York City. All 110 students have dropped out or have been discharged from regular high schools and the majority read between the third and fifth grade levels.

Esopus Prep is funded jointly by the Department of Labor and the Youth Board, New York City. Each student receives a weekly stipend during his course of study.

Heavy Fire Erupts In Jungle Sector

SAIGON (AP) — American infantrymen fought back against attacks by tough North Vietnamese regulars in South Vietnam's central highlands today and American spokesmen said the mortar and small arms clashes were the heaviest in the mountainous jungle region in three months.

American tactical fighter-bombers flew missions all day in an attempt to jar the Communists from entrenched positions along a ridge line, headquarters reported.

The new fighting in two spots near the corner of the Laos and Cambodian borders, about 310 miles north of Saigon, and another engagement some 100 miles to the south came as U.S. Viet Cong stilled their assault on Loc Ninh for the first time in a week.

U.S. spokesmen said a multi-battalion North Vietnamese force struck one 4th Infantry Division battalion Friday and continued a mortar and small arms attack today. About 10 miles to the west, helicopters lifted out an American patrol after a skirmish. The Communists then hit the rest of a second battalion with mortar fire.

Big B52 bombers joined the push and launched a saturation raid on a suspected Communist base camp, and rocket and artillery sites.

A U.S. officer in the field said American casualties were light in the initial stages of the fighting because the infantrymen were well dug in and had good air support. The 4th Division reported four Americans killed and six wounded while the North Vietnamese suffered four dead in the twin engagement at Dak To.

About 100 miles to the south, another battalion came under mortar and ground attacks. Infantrymen returning from a sweep of the area after contact broke off today claimed finding 17 enemy bodies. U.S. casualties were put at one dead and six wounded.

In the Mekong Delta, a new Army-Navy search and destroy mission fanned out in an area about 58 miles southwest of Saigon, but encountered no opposition, the command said.

The operation began Thursday but was not reported until today for security reasons.

In the air war Friday, U.S. pilots flew 113 missions, including the third raid this week on a surface-to-air missile site set up to defend Red positions against U.S. B52 bombers just above the demilitarized zone. Marine pilots reported a large secondary explosion following the attack.

Loc Ninh, some 70 miles northwest of the capital, was reported quiet by U.S. spokesmen after a 12-hour guerrilla assault on the district headquarters Friday.

The Viet Cong's desperate attempt to seize Loc Ninh has cost the Communists 860 dead since Sunday, U.S. headquarters said.

Military observers indicated the Red offensive in the rubber-growing district might be an attempt to establish a "second front" like the front near the demilitarized zone.

Asks State Aid In Medicaid Case

LITTLE VALLEY, N.Y. (AP) — The Cattaraugus County Board of Supervisors has called upon Gov. Rockefeller to convene a special session of the Legislature because, it says, the county has become a "medicaid emergency area."

The board issued its plea Friday night in a resolution that was passed unanimously. It asked the Legislature to reimburse the county for soaring local costs of the state's medical aid program.

Supervisor Joseph Eade, an Olean Democrat who presented the resolution, said 25 per cent of the county's 80,000 residents already have applied for medicaid. "What's going to happen when the rest apply?" he asked. Medicaid costs rose $800,000 in 1967 and are expected to total $3 million next year, county figures have indicated.

The board is considering a record general budget of $12.5 million for 1968, of which more than $6 million is earmarked for welfare programs, including medicaid.

In 1984, Democrat Grover Cleveland was elected president. In 1931, the League of Nations cited Japan for aggression in Manchuria.

In 1944, the World War II allies announced that Greece had been completely liberated from the Nazis.

Ten years ago — A United Nations Commission reported that about 90 per cent of those who fled from Hungary during the 1956 revolt had been resettled or repatriated.

Five years ago — It was announced that a series of U.S. nuclear tests in the atmosphere near Johnston Island in the Pacific had ended.

One year ago — The Soviets cast their 104th veto in the U.N. Security Council, killing a compromise resolution aimed at easing the tension between Israel and the Arab states.

Gunman Takes $30 Thousand As Alarm Fails

HARTWICK, N.Y. (AP) — A gunman held up the branch office of the National Commercial Bank and Trust Co. in this community north of Oneonta Friday and made off with $20,000 to $30,000 in cash.

The bank's alarm system could not be sounded, a spokesman for the Albany Protective Service said, because a hookup had not been completed.

Police said an automobile believed used by the bandit was recovered about a mile away.

The gunman, described as between age 30 and 35 and wearing a cloth jacket and dark-rimmed glasses, walked into the bank minutes before closing time, police said.

Waving a silencer-equipped revolver, he ordered the bank employees to get some money and forced the branch manager to produce cash from the vault. The money was placed in a paper bag, and the man strode from the bank and drove away in a car.

No one was injured.

Twenty and Ten Years Ago

Nov. 4, 1947—A crowd of from 4,000 to 5,000 was on hand for the formal opening of Montgomery Wards on North Front Street.

Payless Payday Facing 11,000 U.S. Workers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nearly 11,000 employees of two major federal agencies face the prospect their next payday will be payless.

Congress has yet to approve 1967-68 budgets for the Office of Economic Development, which runs the war on poverty, or the Agency for International Development, headquarters for the foreign-aid program.

And the House and Senate are still far apart on terms of a resolution to restore to the two agencies stop-gap financing authority that expired Oct. 23. Their next scheduled payday is Nov. 14.

OEO has more than 2,700 employees. Besides being unable to meet its payroll, it faces a cut-off of funds for allotments to trainees in Job Corps camps and to their families.

Also affected would be living allowances for the Volunteers in Service to America, the VISTA program.

Meantime, the foreign-aid appropriation, which provides the funds, is up for consideration by the House Appropriations Committee on Monday and will thereafter go to the floor.

The foreign-aid agency has 8,200 employees here and abroad who would not be paid.

SAUGERTIES VOTERS

The Democrats ask "Had Enough." The Republicans answer, "Yes." We've had enough of the Great Society with its Discontent, Unrest, Inflation, Flag-burnings, Draft Card Burnings, Civil Disorders, Protest Marches, etc. Things are going so badly in Washington that the Saugerties Democrats have taken a run-out powder on the Johnson Administration. The first paragraph of their literature states "In this local election, Saugerties citizens should not concern themselves with National party affiliations . . ." How about that! Don't they tell you that they know how to manage government better than Republicans? Didn't they say that in the past and won't they be repeating it again next year? If there is a credibility gap in Washington, why won't there be on one in Saugerties?

The Democrats made a lot of noise in Saugerties and a big show of fancy billboards. Strip all that away and what's left? Promises, nothing but big promises. They don't say what their hi-faluting notions will cost. They'll promise you anything now and give you the business later. Just like Washington. IF YOU CAN'T BELIEVE THEM IN WASHINGTON HOW CAN YOU BELIEVE THEM IN SAUGERTIES?

Barnovitz Again Blasts Torraca on Convictions

Charging that "the district attorney has been playing with figures," in his advertising, David M. Barnovitz claimed today that the new felony conviction-felony indictment figures "continue to demonstrate that Mr. Torraca's record is the worst in the state."

Barnovitz, running for the DA's post on the Democratic-Liberal ticket, told The Freeman "the figures for 1966 show 127 indictments to only 19 convictions and the 1967 figures from January through September have the Ulster County DA's office giving 102 felony indictments to the grand jury and getting only 22 convictions in return."

"Since assuming office in January, 1965 Mr. Torraca's staff has been faced with 378 felony indictments and has obtained convictions in only 14.9 per cent of the cases," the candidate and Kingston attorney stated.

"In order to bring the record up to date," Barnovitz declared, "I phoned the director of research of the State of New York Department of Corrections and got the record, so if Mr. Torraca wants to make an argument out of it he can make one with the Department of Corrections."

Pointing to Dutchess County District Attorney's office as having a 50 per cent felony indictment-felony conviction ratio, Barnovitz said, "the Dutchess DA got his 50 per cent with one part-time district attorney and five part-time assistants."

"Our own Ulster County office has one part-time DA, five part-time assistants, and two full-time investigators as well, and their record is the worst of all the 62 counties of the state."

The Democrat-Liberal explained that "a felony is a serious crime where human life is in danger. Felonies include murder, robbery, rape, and felonious assault."

"Now either the district at-

Sees Tax Rise If Voters Pass Constitution

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — New York State residents can expect state and local tax increases of as much as 80 per cent if the proposed new constitution is adopted, the president of the New York State Association of Real Estate Boards says.

Bernard G. Meyers said Friday the cost of the charter has been estimated at $1.2 billion in the first year and $23 billion over the first 10 years.

Fiscal experts, he said, have estimated that an 80 per cent increase in state revenue would be needed under the charter. This would be reflected by jumps in state and local taxes, he said.

Meyers said the proposed charter would repeal the real estate tax limit and the debt limit for most city school systems, which are supported in part by real estate taxes.

Municipal debt limits would be increased, Meyers said. In addition, he said, real estate taxes would assume the debt service payments on local public housing bonds.

The real estate tax base, currently compiled on the average of the five-year assessed valuation of real estate, would be compiled on a three-year average, he said, permitting an increase in real estate taxes.

Meyers said the new state constitution could mean higher real estate taxes for homeowners and higher rents for tenants.

Asks State Aid In Medicaid Case

LITTLE VALLEY, N.Y. (AP) — The Cattaraugus County Board of Supervisors has called upon Gov. Rockefeller to convene a special session of the Legislature because, it says, the county has become a "medicaid emergency area."

The board issued its plea Friday night in a resolution that was passed unanimously. It asked the Legislature to reimburse the county for soaring local costs of the state's medical aid program.

Supervisor Joseph Eade, an Olean Democrat who presented the resolution, said 25 per cent of the county's 80,000 residents already have applied for medicaid. "What's going to happen when the rest apply?" he asked.

Medicaid costs rose $800,000 in 1967 and are expected to total $3 million next year, county figures have indicated.

The board is considering a record general budget of $125 million for 1968, of which more than $6 million is earmarked for welfare programs, including medicaid.

Many other counties have complained about the financial burden that the state-mandated plan has imposed on them.

office and school superintendent.

Johnson suggested that closer enforcement of rules against smoking on school buses should be made, and he cited instances where some drivers not only smoke themselves but permit some students to smoke.

A taxpayer asked the board why students were sent home early on the day of the teachers' election in October, and why the teachers were paid for a full day when they were excused early. Arthur Withall, board president, explained that the election was conducted by the Triple A, and the early dismissal was partly because of the transportation program.

Another resident complained that relocation of a school bus stop in the Hillside Avenue area had created a hazardous condition for children. He was informed that Dr. Hoover would make an immediate study of the situation.

The board approved a resolution fixing the tuition charges for non-resident students attending Kingston City Schools for the year 1967-68 as follows: half-day kindergarten, $214.85; Grades 1-6, $549.77 and Grades 7-12 at $503.28. Trustees in the districts will be notified of the new charges which comply with the formula established by the State Education Dept.

Hoderath reported work on the new M. Clifford Miller junior high school is progressing on schedule.

The board established tuition charges for non-resident students attending Emma Wygant School for Trainees for the school year at a rate of $549.28.

Payless Payday Facing 11,000 U.S. Workers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nearly 11,000 employees of two major federal agencies face the prospect their next payday will be payless.

Congress has yet to approve 1967-68 budgets for the Office of Economic Development, which runs the war on poverty, or the Agency for International Development, headquarters for the foreign-aid program.

And the House and Senate are still far apart on terms of a resolution to restore to the two agencies stop-gap financing authority that expired Oct. 23. Their next scheduled payday is Nov. 14.

OEO has more than 2,700 employees. Besides being unable to meet its payroll, it faces a cut-off of funds for allotments to trainees in Job Corps camps and to their families.

Also affected would be living allowances for the Volunteers in Service to America, the VISTA program.

Meantime, the foreign-aid appropriation, which provides the funds, is up for consideration by the House Appropriations Committee on Monday and will thereafter go to the floor.

The foreign-aid agency has 8,200 employees here and abroad who would not be paid.

SAUGERTIES VOTERS

The Democrats ask "Had Enough." The Republicans answer, "Yes."

We've had enough of the Great Society with its Discontent, Unrest, Inflation, Flag-burnings, Draft Card Burnings, Civil Disorders, Protest Marches, etc. Things are going so badly in Washington that the Saugerties Democrats have taken a run-out powder on the Johnson Administration. The first paragraph of their literature states "In this local election, Saugerties citizens should not concern themselves with National party affiliations . . ." How about that! Don't they tell you that they know how to manage government better than Republicans? Didn't they say that in the past and won't they be repeating it again next year? If there is a credibility gap in Washington, why won't there be on one in Saugerties?

The Democrats made a lot of noise in Saugerties and a big show of fancy billboards. Strip all that away and what's left? Promises, nothing but big promises. They don't say what their hi-faluting notions will cost. They'll promise you anything now and give you the business later. Just like Washington. IF YOU CAN'T BELIEVE THEM IN WASHINGTON HOW CAN YOU BELIEVE THEM IN SAUGERTIES?

The Republicans offer to the voters of Saugerties, a hard working team, with a definite program. Keep good government in Saugerties by Voting Row A All the Way.

Assessors: No To Charter

A meeting of the Ulster County Assessors Association was held in the supervisor's room of the Ulster County Office Building.

A discussion was held on sections of the New York State Constitution to be presented at this year's election for voter approval or disapproval. Portions of the proposed Constitution which eliminate any requirement of citizen approval of changes in local government on county and town levels and substituting mandates by State Legislative bodies were examined and found faulty.

On motion of Joseph Quick and Wary Krom the association voted unanimously to oppose the package constitution offered as a complete proposition with no opportunity for selection of the designated changes and elimination of questionable items.

Suggested changes in the deed copy and property transfer reports will be discussed.

Savago, Majestic Differ on State Purchasing Plan

Opposing candidates for county legislator running in the Eighth District (New Paltz-Gardiner) this weekend debated the advantages of purchasing highway equipment and materials through the state purchasing power plan.

Incumbent Democrat Supervisor George Majestic in a statement outlined the savings he realized for his township by purchasing through the state.

Incumbent New Paltz Supervisor Peter J. Savago in his statement disputed the figures listed in the Majestic release.

Using the State purchasing power, The Town of Gardiner saves many, many thousands of dollars according to Majestic.

"It is my belief that each taxpayer in this Town of Gardiner has saved enough money to pay one year's taxes out of my first 10 years in office by the use of the state purchasing power," he states.

"To give you an idea of how much the taxpayers in the Town of New Paltz might save through this method of buying, I wish to give you the following information: Town of Gardiner purchased a front end loader for about $8,865 and the Town of New Paltz purchased a front end loader for over $15,000.

"Town of Gardiner purchased a Galion power road grader in 1967 for $13,983 and the Town of New Paltz purchased a Galion power road grader in 1964 for $22,994.

"In 1967 the Galion power road grader listed for $25,000 and the Town of Gardiner realized a $9,011.00 savings over the 1964 purchase made by the Town of New Paltz or $12,000 was saved on the list price," Majestic said.

On road oil, if the amount of road oil which was purchased had been through state contract by New Paltz it would have cost the taxpayers $6,030.59 or $3,662.17 less than was paid by the New Paltz Town Board.

"The purchase price paid by Gardiner per gallon in 1967 was $1.47. Therefore, to do the same job in New Paltz by purchase under the state contract it would have cost $3,424.22, or a saving to the taxpayer for the two months of road oil purchase, a total of $1,609.82. This would have been a total savings to the Town of New Paltz of $20,417.99, said Majestic.

Savago, who is retiring from the supervisor post to run for the County Legislature, offered a statement disputing some of the figures quoted by Majestic.

question the Gardiner supervisor's ability to use simple arithmetic.

"The Town of New Paltz taxpayers are paying $5.10 per ton for blacktop; whereas the Gardiner taxpayers are paying $7.10 per ton; plus the additional expense of traveling 5 miles more to obtain their material. In plain, everyday arithmetic this shows a $2 per ton saving to the New Paltz taxpayers. (Savago wonders if Gardiner is receiving smart State Purchasing Power).

"The Gardiner supervisor also makes mention of the fact that New Paltz paid more than $15,000 for a front end loader. New Paltz Taxpayers paid only $11,384 for a 2 1/2-yard bucket Michigan loader Model 125A, where Gardiner paid $9,000 for a small 1 1/2-yard Hough model H-50.

The Democratic supervisor of Gardiner said New Paltz paid $22,994 for the same model grader that Gardiner paid only $14,000.

Supervisors Savago observed, "The Town of Gardiner supervisor must have overlooked the fact that New Paltz' Galion power road grader is a diesel engine whereas Gardiner's is a gas-powered machine. The New Paltz grader is a Galion Model T-500 diesel, a much larger machine than Gardiner's Galion Model 118 series B. gas engine."

After consulting with qualified construction engineers, Supervisor Savago said he was informed that in the long run a good diesel-powered grader will outlast and outlast any gas-powered grader.

Savago emphasized that the above facts concerning any and all purchases made in and for the Town of New Paltz are public record. He feels that Majestic should have "had the courtesy to check all the facts and figures before making any public statement, especially a statement obviously containing many falsifications."

Consumption of distilled spirits in the United States in 1965 reached a high of 292,987,572 gallons, an average of 1.53 gallons per person.

Turck Reveals Party Switch To Republican

Explaining why he became a Republican Fourth Ward supervisor, when he had been a Democratic supervisor for eight years, Joseph J. Turck said today, "...I vigorously refused at all times to be controlled; to be a yes man, or be used as a rubber stamp."

Turck is running on the Republican ticket for the post of county legislator in the City of Kingston.

Lost Nomination

It was 1961 when Turck, a former boxer with 62 wins and 14 losses to his credit, lost the Democratic nomination for the supervisor's post during a caucus battle which he lost by 12 votes.

"During the caucus (I) was accused of voting with the Republicans on several actions at the regular supervisors meeting," a charge which he did not deny.

Turck says that he voted against a Democrat-sponsored resolution that was "to remove the Ulster County Welfare Department downtown to the former Cornell building, a building so badly in need of repair that it would cost thousands of dollars to make it suitable living quarters, a building that was earmarked for removal by Urban Renewal, and since has been demolished."

The Republican candidate also claims that he voted for Republican Joseph Fitzsimmons, Ulster's Commissioner of Welfare, because his record was "outstanding. He is more than qualified, and what's more, he is unopposed."

Turck claims that he not only voted for Fitzsimmons "but I moved that the Democrats make it unanimous."

Dems Opposed

The Democrats were opposed to a Fitzsimmons reappointment.

The Democrat-turned-Republican said that he also voted for Republican Arthur Davis Jr. to the office of Ulster County Attorney.

"I could not vote against him just because he was a Republican, which the Democrats wanted me to do."

Turck says that he "pleaded on the (Common) Council floor for better city government and ward improvements under the Radel Administration and other administrations. The Democratic leaders and other Democratic figures took vicious exception to my actions. I ignored this completely."

Republican candidate Turck says that, as a Democratic supervisor, "I opposed city budgets and gave facts and figures why city tax rate should not be revised; I pressed for Ward improvements; I took pictures of a serious drainage situation on Lincoln Street and published them in the local papers and informed the public that the city was very negligent in correcting the situation; I informed the aldermen and the City Administration that additional protection was urgently needed at the grade crossings of the N. Y. Central Railroad Company on 1st, 2nd, and 3rd Avenues in the City of Kingston."

Got 370 Votes

Because the "Democratic ring-leaders nominated another man for the office (in 1961)," Turck sought the office as an independent and collected 370 more votes than the required 70 to run as an independent.

This was when the Republicans endorsed him, "and on Election Day the citizens of the Fourth Ward returned me to office for my fifth successful election."

Turck declared that, if elected to the new office, "I will continue to offer the finest in representation."

Savago, Majestic Differ on State Purchasing Plan

Opposing candidates for county legislator running in the Eighth District (New Paltz-Gardiner) this weekend debated the advantages of purchasing highway equipment and materials through the state purchasing power plan.

Incumbent Democrat Supervisor George Majestic in a statement outlined the savings he realized for his township by purchasing through the state.

Incumbent New Paltz Supervisor Peter J. Savago in his statement disputed the figures listed in the Majestic release.

Using the State purchasing power, the Town of Gardiner saves many, many thousands of dollars according to Majestic. "It is my belief that each taxpayer in this Town of Gardiner has saved enough money to pay one year's taxes out of my first 10 years in office by the use of the state purchasing power," he states.

"To give you an idea of how much the taxpayers in the Town of New Paltz might save through this method of buying, I wish to give you the following information: Town of Gardiner purchased a front end loader for about $8,865 and the Town of New Paltz purchased a front end loader for over $15,000.

"Town of Gardiner purchased a Galion power road grader in 1967 for $13,983 and the Town of New Paltz purchased a Galion power road grader in 1964 for $22,994.

"In 1967 the Galion power road grader listed for $25,000 and the Town of Gardiner realized a $9,011.00 savings over the 1964 purchase made by the Town of New Paltz or $12,000 was saved on the list price," Majestic said.

On road oil, if the amount of road oil which was purchased had been through state contract by New Paltz it would have cost the taxpayers $6,030.59 or $3,662.17 less than was paid by the New Paltz Town Board.

"The purchase price paid by Gardiner per gallon in 1967 was $1.47. Therefore, to do the same job in New Paltz by purchase under the state contract it would have cost $3,424.22, or a saving to the taxpayer for the two months of road oil purchase, a total of $1,609.82. This would have been a total savings to the Town of New Paltz of $20,417.99, said Majestic.

Savago, who is retiring from the supervisor post to run for the County Legislature, offered a statement disputing some of the figures quoted by Majestic.

"As the Republican supervisor of the Town of New Paltz, I question the Gardiner supervisor's ability to use simple arithmetic.

"The Town of New Paltz taxpayers are paying $5.10 per ton for blacktop; whereas the Gardiner taxpayers are paying $7.10 per ton; plus the additional expense of traveling 5 miles more to obtain their material. In plain, everyday arithmetic this shows a $2 per ton saving to the New Paltz taxpayers. (Savago wonders if Gardiner is receiving smart State Purchasing Power).

"The Gardiner supervisor also makes mention of the fact that New Paltz paid more than $15,000 for a front end loader. New Paltz Taxpayers paid only $11,384 for a 2 1/2 yard bucket Michigan loader Model 125A, where Gardiner paid $9,000 for a small 1 1/2 yard Hough model H-50.

The Democratic supervisor of Gardiner said New Paltz paid $22,994 for the same model grader that Gardiner paid only $14,000.

Consumption of distilled spirits in the United States in 1965 reached a high of 292,987,572 gallons, an average of 1.53 gallons per person.

Turk Reveals Party Switch To Republican

Explaining why he became a Republican Fourth Ward supervisor, when he had been a Democratic supervisor for eight years, Joseph J. Turk said today, "...I vigorously refused at all times to be controlled; to be a yes man, or be used as a rubber stamp."

Turk is running on the Republican ticket for the post of county legislator in the City of Kingston.

Lost Nomination

It was 1961 when Turk, a former boxer with 62 wins and 14 losses to his credit, lost the Democratic nomination for the supervisor's post during a caucus battle which he lost by 12 votes.

"During the caucus (I) was accused of voting with the Republicans on several actions at the regular supervisors meeting," a charge which he did not deny.

Turk says that he voted against a Democrat-sponsored resolution that was "to remove the Ulster County Welfare Department downtown to the former Cornell building, a building so sadly in need of repair that it would cost thousands of dollars to make it suitable living quarters, a building that was earmarked for removal by Urban Renewal, and since has been demolished."

The Republican candidate also claims that he voted for Republican Joseph Fitzsimmons, Ulster's Commissioner of Welfare, because his record was "outstanding. He is more than qualified, and what's more, he is unopposed."

Turk claims that he not only voted for Fitzsimmons "but I moved that the Democrats make it unanimous."

Dems Opposed

The Democrats were opposed to a Fitzsimmons reappointment.

The Democrat-turned-Republican said that he also voted for Republican Arthur Davis Jr. to the office of Ulster County Attorney.

"I could not vote against him just because he was a Republican, which the Democrats wanted me to do."

Turk says that he "pledged on the (Common) Council floor for better city government and ward improvements under the Radel Administration and other administrations. The Democratic leaders and other Democratic figures took vicious exception to my actions. I ignored this completely."

Republican candidate Turk says that, as a Democratic supervisor, "I opposed city budgets and gave facts and figures why city tax rate should not be revised; I pressed for Ward improvements; I took pictures of a serious drainage situation on Lincoln Street and published them in the local papers and informed the public that the city was very negligent in correcting the situation; I informed the aldermen and the City Administration that additional protection was urgently needed at the grade crossings of the N. Y. Central Railroad Company on 1st, 2nd, and 3rd Avenues in the City of Kingston."

Got 370 Votes

Because the "Democratic ring-leaders nominated another man for the office (in 1961)," Turk sought the office as an independent and collected 370 more votes than the required 70 to run as an independent.

"This was when the Republicans endorsed him," and on Election Day the citizens of the Fourth Ward returned me to the City office for my fifth successful election."

Turk declared that, if elected to the new office, "I will continue to offer the finest in representation."

Supervisors Savago observed, "The Town of Gardiner supervisor must have overlooked the fact that New Paltz' Galion power road grader is a diesel engine whereas Gardiner's is a gas-powered machine. The New Paltz grader is a Galion Model T-500 diesel, a much larger machine than Gardiner's Galion Model 118 series B. gas engine."

After consulting with qualified construction engineers, Supervisor Savago said he was informed that in the long run a good diesel-powered grader will outwork and outlast any gas-powered grader.

Savago emphasized that the above facts concerning any and all purchases made in and for the Town of New Paltz are public record. He feels that Majestic should have "had the courtesy to check all the facts and figures before making any public statement, especially a statement obviously containing many falsifications."

October 17, 1967

Mr. John J. Schick
259 Fair Street
Kingston, New York

Dear Mr. Schick:

State Correction Officers are genuinely concerned about the rate of felony convictions in Ulster County. As law enforcement officers we recognize the dangerous threat to lives and property when Grand Jury indictments are dismissed and known criminals are released. In our opinion the failure to convict in many cases is the fault of the District Attorney, County Judge, or a combination of both.

It may interest you to know that in 1966 a Correction Officer at Catskill Reformatory was maliciously attacked by an inmate. The attack was without provocation. The Correction Officer was so brutally beaten he had to be hospitalized. Most of his teeth were knocked out, and his face will be disfigured for life. There is absolutely no doubt he could have lost his life. The Correction Officer preferred charges, the inmate was charged with 2nd degree assault which was reduced to 3rd degree assault and the sentence therefore minimized.

The inherent dangers that result from such leniency we have to live with every day. We know the danger and can adjust to it, but the general public must be protected. From the record of convictions in Ulster County it appears we are not being afforded this protection as guaranteed by law. We know your position. We know that you will mete out justice firmly and fairly. As State Chairman of the Committee on Political Education for New York State Correction Officers we overwhelmingly endorse your candidacy for the office of County Judge.

Former Huge Underground Missile Silos To House SUNY's Research Experiments

Two huge underground silos, which formerly sheltered atom-bomb-carrying Atlas F missiles, have been turned over to the State University of New York to house experiments on the aging process, it was announced today.

Title to the silos and to adjacent land and buildings was officially transmitted to the trustees of the state university by Bernice L. Bernstein, regional director of the U. S. Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare.

In signing the deeds, Mrs. Bernstein said, "We are proud to see this property put to educational purposes that may result in benefit to all mankind."

Constructed in 1962 The air-conditioned concrete silos—each 174 feet deep and 52 feet across—are situated in the towns of Ausable Forks and Lewis, near the Vermont border.

They were constructed in 1962, at a cost of about $8.5 million apiece, as part of a nuclear retaliation system, and were declared surplus in 1965.

Subsequently, they were made available to educational institutions under the Federal Property and Administration Services Act of 1949, as amended, and were offered to schools and universities through HEW's Office of Surplus Property Utilization.

The only cost of the installations to the State University of New York, which must meet certain requirements as to their use and maintenance, was $667 apiece—a pro-rated share of the cost of appraisal.

The eight-level depth of the silos, the thickness of the silos' concrete walls, which range from 9 feet near the surface to 25 feet at the bottom, and the shielding of earth they provide make them especially valuable for certain research projects.

Interim Permit

The silos are under the supervision of faculty members at the nearby State University of New York College at Plattsburgh, which has been using them under an interim permit, awaiting final title, for the past year.

According to Dr. Harold J. Perkins, Dean of the Faculty of Science and Mathematics, the college would take advantage of the decreased cosmic ray intensity inside the silos to study space of particular neutral particles would be carried out, diation fields were "a likely possibility," jointly with Professor Clyde Cowan of Catholic University of America.

"Little data currently exists on the significance of cosmic ray activity on rates of aging in animals," Dr. Perkins said.

Noting that the silos also "provide a unique opportunity for obtaining a very small solid angle at the lowermost level," Dr. Perkins said they would also be used to investigate the origin of cosmic rays in space.

To Share Experiment

He added that Plattsburgh College would share its experiments and programs with other units of the State University of New York, and said "experiments concerning the origin in experiments with high-level ra- the Mid-West and West.

Greater Use Of Television In Schools

New developments announced by New York Telephone are forging greater use of educational television in the classroom this school year.

The company, which now leases ETV facilities to five school districts: Baldwin, Great Neck and Centerarch, L. I., Williamsville, near Buffalo, and New Paltz, has reduced its ETV rates and doubled the service capacity from six to twelve channels.

ETV programs, produced in the school district's own studios or by other educational institutions and recorded on magnetic tape, are not broadcast to the public, but are distributed to classrooms by local ETV systems. Thirty-six or more subjects may be taught at the same time.

The new 12-channel system permits central distribution of films to schools, eliminating the need for classroom projectors and providing teachers with many more specialized films as lesson aids," the company added.

ETV has been found particularly effective in art, foreign languages, mathematics and typing.

Plan Visitation

The Commission on Stewardship and Finance of the Port Ewen Methodist Church has completed plans for its annual every-member canvass.

Sunday has been designated as Personal Commitment Sunday. A brief dedication service will take place during the regular morning worship hours to provide the membership with an opportunity to make a personal presentation and dedication of their pledges and tithes in support of the proposed program for 1968. The proposed budget has been set at $21,817.

Loyalty Sunday will be observed on Sunday, Nov. 12, and during the following week when visitation teams will call at the houses of members unable to be present at the dedication services.

Chemistry Course

The Adult Education Department of the Kingston City schools is offering a course in chemistry beginning Tuesday, Nov. 7. Sessions will be held twice a week, Tuesday and Thursday from 7 p.m. to 9:45 p.m. Satisfactory completion of the course will give the student high school credit. It will also be of value to high school graduates who want a basic knowledge of chemistry and to students who may want to enter the nursing profession. The class will meet in Room V-110 in the Vocational Building of Kingston high school.

Rockefeller Names Ad Hoc Committee

HARRIMAN, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller has named a committee of 12 business leaders—including the heads of the Ford Motor Co., the New York Stock Exchange and Xerox Corp.—to probe for solutions to the welfare problem.

He announced formation of the ad hoc committee Friday at the windup of a two-day conference called by the governor at Arden House, a conference center owned by Columbia University.

Wilson Chairman

The committee will be headed by Joseph C. Wilson, the Xerox chairman, who also served as chairman of the just-completed conference. The session attended by 100 top leaders of education, industry and labor sought to find "new approaches" to rising welfare costs.

Wilson told newsmen the conference had shown it was time to involve the private sector in helping "break the cycle of dependency," that new efforts must be made to develop jobs and that national minimum welfare standards could be foreseen.

In another development, Rockefeller said he would propose at the next legislative session a $50 million New York State Urban Development Corp. to provide incentives and loans for private industry to locate plants in ghetto areas.

Rockefeller said that the "gift and loans" provisions of the proposed new constitution would give the state more flexibility and authority to grant loans to small business and industry for such projects.

However, if the proposed constitution is not approved, Rockefeller said, he planned to seek creation of the development corporation under the existing charter.

Such a move, the governor said, would generate an additional $1 billion in investments in disadvantaged areas.

Clash With Police

During the conference, held in the 125-room mansion atop a 1,350 foot mountain, about 50 welfare recipients trying to crash the session clashed with state police. Eight women and two men were arrested and charged with criminal trespass when they sought to march up a private road to Arden House.

The stately home, and 100 acres of land around it, were given to Columbia University in 1950 by former Governor Averill Harriman.

Concluding the meeting, Rockefeller said there would be a series of seven public hearings in February and March. The demonstrators and other groups and individuals will have a chance to be heard then, he said.

Daniel P. Moynihan, director of the Joint Center for Urban Studies at M.I.T. and Harvard, in one of three major papers prepared for the conference called for payment of children allowances to all families thus eliminating the need for a "means" test which he said makes welfare costs so discriminating to the recipients.

Dr. Eveline Burns, of the Columbia School of Social Work, said that priorities should be given to the largest group receiving welfare aid, the dependent children—representing .55 per cent in the state.

"There is too much talk about what will happen to parents," she said. "Let's not think too much of parents and pay more attention to the children."

EJECTED — Bobby Schmidt, 14, a Boy Scout for two and a half years, has been summarily suspended from Troop 125 because he refused to shear his long auburn locks. Bobby, who started wearing his hair to his shoulders last year without causing any great fuss at school, said that local Scout officials were "worried that people would think Troop 125 was full of dirty hippies." Three-time merit badge winner Bobbie claims he is not a hippie, but a "kid who likes being a Scout." (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Olive Resident Attends Ithaca Dairy Conclave

Albert Fox of Olivebridge made a research report to 200 delegates of the Eastern A. I. Cooperative Inc., of Ithaca. Fox is director, representing several thousand dairy farms in District 8, consisting of eight counties in southeast New York including Ulster in this district. Fox is also treasurer of the cooperative and chairman of the finance and research committees.

This breeding cooperative, the largest cooperative of its type in the world breeds members cows in New York and all of New England. During the past year nearly 750,000 cows were bred with an operational budget of approximately $5,000,000.

This entire herd is sired by Eastern sires. Eastern is proud of the Stoekel's and also of its bull stud that serves this world record herd.

Fox is also secretary-treasurer of the Ulster County Artificial Breeding Coop., an office he has held for over 20 years.

Many Arrested, Damage Mounts

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — National Guardsmen stood atop buildings and patrolled the streets today after racial violence in which more than 100 persons were arrested, 50 injured and an estimated $350,000 worth of property was damaged.

"We're hoping the worst is over, but we're ready for whatever comes," said city Public Safety Director James B. Waller.

The 800 National Guardsmen, ordered to North Carolina's second largest city Thursday night at the height of the violence, will remain at least through tonight, Waller said.

A citywide curfew, ordered into effect from 11 p.m. Friday until 5:30 a.m. today, was credited with helping stabilize the situation. One reported injury Friday night was to a youth shot in the hand, apparently by a sniper.

A National Guardsman also was struck by a sniper's bullet but it was deflected by his jacket zipper and he was unhurt. A police report first said he had been wounded.

Sporadic shootings, a few trash basket fires and some looting was reported Friday night and early today. Just after dusk Friday about 40 policemen shot into the air to disperse a growing crowd of Negroes.

But most residents of the city observed the curfew and heeded a television appeal from Carl H. Russell, a Negro city alderman and mayor pro tem who urged Negroes to stay home.

Mayor M.C. Benton blamed the trouble on "hoodlums who took advantage of the situation" Thursday night after the funeral of a Negro who had died of injuries when struck with a blackjack by a white policeman. Negro leaders agreed with the mayor.

Gov. Dan Moore visited the city with David Coltrane, his chief racial troubleshooter who is head of the North Carolina Good Neighbor Council.

City officials told the governor they were convinced that the disorder Thursday night was a spontaneous, disorganized action involving possibly 500 persons of the city's 150,000 population.

Much of the anger and unrest among the Negro population was quieted Friday with the announcement that Superior Court Solicitor Thomas W. Moore Jr. had reopened the case of a white policeman, W.C. Owens, charged with murdering James Eller, 32, a Negro, during an arrest.

The murder charge had been dismissed in Municipal Court Monday. Moore said he was reopening the case on the basis of "other evidence." Owens said he struck Eller with a blackjack because the Negro resisted arrest.

Rockefeller Names Ad Hoc Committee

HARRIMAN, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller has named a committee of 12 business leaders—including the heads of the Ford Motor Co., the New York Stock Exchange and Xerox Corp.—to probe for solutions to the welfare problem.

He announced formation of the ad hoc committee Friday at the windup of a two-day conference called by the governor at Arden House, a conference center owned by Columbia University.

Wilson Chairman

The committee will be headed by Joseph C. Wilson, the Xerox chairman, who also served as chairman of the just-completed conference. The session attended by 100 top leaders of education, industry and labor sought to find "new approaches" to rising welfare costs.

Wilson told newsmen the conference had shown it was time to involve the private sector in helping "break the cycle of dependency," that new efforts must be made to develop jobs and that national minimum welfare standards could be foreseen.

In another development, Rockefeller said he would propose at the next legislative session a $50 million New York State Urban Development Corp. to provide incentives and loans for private industry to locate plants in ghetto areas.

Rockefeller said that the "gift and loans" provisions of the proposed new constitution would give the state more flexibility and authority to grant loans to small business and industry for such projects.

However, if the proposed constitution is not approved, Rockefeller said, he planned to seek creation of the development corporation under the existing charter.

Such a move, the governor said, would generate an additional $1 billion in investments in disadvantaged areas.

Clash With Police

During the conference, held in the 125-room mansion atop a 1,350 foot mountain, about 50 welfare recipients trying to crash the session clashed with state police. Eight women and two men were arrested and charged with criminal trespass when they sought to march up a private road to Arden House.

The stately home, and 100 acres of land around it, were given to Columbia University in 1950 by former Governor Averill Harriman.

Concluding the meeting, Rockefeller said there would be a series of seven public hearings in February and March. The demonstrators and other groups and individuals will have a chance to be heard then, he said.

Daniel P. Moynihan, director of the Joint Center for Urban Studies at M.I.T. and Harvard, in one of three major papers prepared for the conference called for payment of children allowances to all families thus eliminating the need for a "means" test which he said makes welfare costs so discriminatory to the recipients.

Dr. Eveline Burns, of the Columbia School of Social Work, said that priorities should be given to the largest group receiving welfare aid, the dependent children—representing 55 per cent in the state.

"There is too much talk about what will happen to parents," she said. "Let's not think too much of parents and pay more attention to the children."

EJECTED — Bobby Schmidt, 14, a Boy Scout for two and a half years, has been summarily suspended from Troop 125 because he refused to shear his long auburn locks. Bobby, who started wearing his hair to his shoulders last year without causing any great fuss at school, said that local Scout officials were "worried that people would think Troop 125 was full of dirty hippies." Three-time merit badge winner Bobbie claims he is not a hippie, but a "kid who likes being a Scout." (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Olive Resident Attends Ithaca Dairy Conclave

Albert Fox of Olivebridge made a research report to 200 delegates of the Eastern A. I. Cooperative Inc., of Ithaca. Fox is director, representing several thousand dairy farms in District 8, consisting of eight counties in southeast New York including Ulster in this district. Fox is also treasurer of the cooperative and chairman of the finance and research committees.

This breeding cooperative, the largest cooperative of its type in the world breeds members cows in New York and all of New England. During the past year nearly 750,000 cows were bred with an operational budget of approximately $5,000,000.

This entire herd is sired by Eastern sires. Eastern is proud of the Stockel's and also of its bull stud that serves this world record herd.

Fox is also secretary-treasurer of the Ulster County Artificial Breeding Coop., an office he has held for over 20 years.

Many Arrested, Damage Mounts

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — National Guardsmen stood atop buildings and patrolled the streets today after racial violence in which more than 100 persons were arrested, 50 injured and an estimated $350,000 worth of property was damaged.

"We're hoping the worst is over, but we're ready for whatever comes," said city Public Safety Director James B. Waller.

The 800 National Guardsmen, ordered to North Carolina's second largest city Thursday night at the height of the violence, will remain at least through tonight, Waller said.

A citywide curfew, ordered into effect from 11 p.m. Friday until 5:30 a.m. today, was credited with helping stabilize the situation. One reported injury Friday night was to a youth shot in the hand, apparently by a sniper.

A National Guardsman also was struck by a sniper's bullet but it was deflected by his jacket zipper and he was unhurt. A police report first said he had been wounded.

Sporadic shootings, a few trash basket fires and some looting was reported Friday night and early today. Just after dusk Friday about 40 policemen shot into the air to disperse a growing crowd of Negroes.

Card Catalogs Unlock Libraries

By The Reading Laboratory
(Excerpted from the World Publishing Company Book, "Study Faster and Retain More" Illustrations by Roy Doty)

"I can never find anything in a library!"

Is that a familiar complaint? How many times have you said it yourself? Unfortunately, many students feel this way about the library and avoid it whenever possible. But if you take time to learn about your library, you will enjoy using it. The first thing you should do is to visit your library—before you have to use it. Poke around. See what's there. Find out where materials are and how you can locate them. Remember, your librarian is a good friend to have. She knows a lot about books and magazines that are under her care, and she will be happy to give you assistance.

Let's begin by finding out what's there. Obviously, all libraries have books. Some of these, such as fiction, biography and general books, circulate. Others are used only in the library for reference—specialized books such as dictionaries, encyclopedias, or atlases. Libraries also have periodicals—several daily newspapers and assorted magazines. Sometimes these circulate and sometimes not. Many libraries also have special materials such as records, tapes or films. You are fortunate if your library does.

Locating specific books is no problem once you know that there are several standard systems for classifying books. Your library probably uses a combination of these. We will describe one, but you'll have

TURKEY BEAN SALAD

Cut leftover cooked turkey into strips, place in bowl with drained, canned Blue Lake green beans and pour a little bottled herb dressing and teriyaki sauce over. Marinate overnight in refrigerator and serve on iceberg lettuce leaves garnished with tomato wedges and onion rings.

GARNISH PARTY SOUP

For an easy buffet supper, serve a tureen of steaming seafood chowder. Surround it with individual bowls of take-your-choice toppings such as sliced natural almonds, grated Parmesan cheese, snipped parsley, chopped hard-cooked egg and garlic croutons.

STUFFED LAMB CHOPS

Cut pockets in thick loin lamb chops; stuff with a mixture of crumbled blue cheese, roasted diced almonds and a little butter. Broil until done as you like them. Serve with additional almonds sprinkled on top.

HAWAIIAN SLAW

Live on your holiday ham with a salad relish of finely shredded western iceberg lettuce, drained crushed pineapple, toasted flaked coconut, chopped maraschino cherries and ginger-flavored mayonnaise.

Dear Heloise:
This may surprise you, but I just learned recently never to throw away leftover pancake batter. I now put it in a little covered bowl in my refrigerator. The next morning I add a bit of milk to it and use it to make French toast!

It's quick, it's easy and it's good.

Mrs. C. H. D.

Folks this works like a charm. Why it fills the bread and keeps it from being greasy. I'll never know. But it sure makes a different kind of French toast.

After trying it, I experimented by adding cinnamon to the leftover batter before adding the milk. I then had cinnamon French toast. Delish!

They are easily washed, require no ironing, and keep the wooden backs of the chairs from being scratched by zippers and buttons. Also they lend a fresh and decorative appearance to the eating area.

Mrs. Callahan

Dear Heloise:

I've found a wonderful space stretcher for closets. I use a child's closet rod which has a wire on each end that extends up to the large rod for hanging. And it's low enough for a child to use.

This small rod allows enough room on one side of the closet for ladies dresses and blouses to be hung from the higher rod. Folded slacks, skirts, and short garments are hung on the small lower rod and on the regular rod just above it.

The space saving is being able to hang two rows of short garments where only one row hung before.

Warringer-Kuebler Nuptials

Miss Suzanne Warringer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Warringer, 18 John Street, Saugerties, became the bride of George Kuebler Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. George Kuebler Sr., 5 Forest Drive, East Northport, Saturday, Oct. 21, at Trinity Episcopal Church, Saugerties.

Officiating clergymen were the Rev. C. G. Meyer, St. Paul's Lutheran Church, East Northport, and the Rev. R. G. Shepherd, Trinity Episcopal Church, Robert Moore, organist, accompanied Donald Fellows who sang traditional wedding selections. The altar was decorated with white chrysanthemums and white bows marked the family pews.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white peau de soie and re-embroidered rose point lace gown which was designed and made by herself. The gown was fashioned with a scoop neck and empire waist and had an A-line ankle length skirt and long lace sleeves. A lace train which was chapel length fell from the shoulders. Four tiers of imported French silk illusion were secured to a double queen's crown of aurora borealis crystals and seed pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of white roses, ivy and Stephanotis.

Miss Felicia Peluso, Saugerties, was maid of honor. She wore a full length A-line empire styled gown with short sleeves, accented with a bow at the front. The gown, in autumn gold crepe, featured a scoop neckline. Her headpiece was a Dior bow which matched the gown. She carried a bouquet of red chrysanthemums.

Bridesmaids were Miss Judith Calderwood, Saugerties; Miss Helen Trenkle, Jamaica; Miss Mildred A. Warringer, sister of the bride. Their autumn red gowns were fashioned identically to that of the honor attendant. Miss Calderwood and Miss Trenkle carried bouquets of gold colored chrysanthemums and Miss Warringer carried a bouquet of red and gold chrysanthemums.

Robert Tacke, East Northport, was best man. Ushers were Fred Ostuni, East Northport; George J. Warringer and William David Warringer, Saugerties, both brothers of the bride.

After the wedding a reception for 90 guests was held at the Flamingo Restaurant, Saugerties.

For her wedding trip to Miami Beach, Fla., the bride selected a navy blue coat and dress ensemble with red accessories.

The bride, a graduate of Saugerties High School and Benedictine Hospital School of Nursing, Class of 1967, is a staff nurse at Benedictine Hospital.

Her husband, an alumnus of Northport High School and Mineola Police Academy, is employed by Nassau County Police Department.

Mr. and Mrs. Kuebler will reside at 29 Tompkins Street, East Northport.

Permits Dancing

STERLING, Kan. (AP)—Sterling College is going to permit dancing on its campus for the first time in 80 years.

William McCreey, president of the United Presbyterian Church College, said the new policy may lose Sterling some acceptance by more conservative people.

"I'm hopeful," McCreey said, "this will be at a minimum. We still will emphasize wholesome Christian values."

CHEESE THE BEANS

Top hat canned Blue Lake green beans with dollops of pasteurized processed cheese spread and crumbled corn chips. Let cheese melt before serving.

Warringer-Kuebler Nuptials

Miss Suzanne Warringer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Warringer, 18 John Street, Saugerties, became the bride of George Kuebler Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. George Kuebler Sr., 5 Forest Drive, East Northport, Saturday, Oct. 21, at Trinity Episcopal Church, Saugerties.

Officiating clergymen were the Rev. C. G. Meyer, St. Paul's Lutheran Church, East Northport, and the Rev. R. G. Shepherd, Trinity Episcopal Church, Robert Moore, organist, accompanied Donald Fellows who sang traditional wedding selections. The altar was decorated with white chrysanthemums and white bows marked the family pews.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white peau de soie and re-embroidered rose point lace gown which was designed and made by herself. The gown was fashioned with a scoop neck and empire waist and had an A-line ankle length skirt and long lace sleeves. A lace train which was chapel length fell from the shoulders. Four tiers of imported French silk illusion were secured to a double queen's crown of aurora borealis crystals and seed pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of white roses, ivy and stephanotis.

Miss Felicia Peluso, Saugerties, was maid of honor. She wore a full length A-line empire styled gown with short sleeves, accented with a bow at the front. The gown, in autumn gold crepe, featured a scoop neckline. Her headpiece was a Dior bow which matched the gown. She carried a bouquet of red chrysanthemums.

Bridesmaids were Miss Judith Calderwood, Saugerties; Miss Helen T. Renkle, Jamaica; Miss Mildred A. Warringer, sister of the bride. Their autumn red gowns were fashioned identically to that of the honor attendant. Miss Calderwood and Miss Trenkle carried bouquets of gold colored chrysanthemums and Miss Warringer carried a bouquet of red and gold chrysanthemums.

Robert Tacke, East Northport, was best man. Ushers were Fred Ostuni, East Northport; George J. Warringer and William David Warringer, Saugerties, both brothers of the bride. After the wedding a reception for 90 guests was held at the Flamingo Restaurant, Saugerties.

Mr. and Mrs. Kuebler will reside at 29 Tompkins Street, East Northport.

ACTORS SOUGHT

WANTED—SIX ACTORS AND ONE ACTRESS: That's the cast of characters needed for Performing Arts of Woodstock's first Workshop production of Luigi Pirandello's "By Judgement of Court."

PAW has slated tryouts for the play, to be directed by Edith Le Fever, Wednesday and Thursday, Nov. 8 and 9, and Monday, Nov. 13, at 8:30 p. m. Roles are wide open for six men and one young girl.

Tryout will be at the Little Theater off the Green, adjacent to Woodstock Guild of Crafts, men, Tinker Street, Woodstock. It is not necessary to be either a Woodstock resident or member of PAW to tryout for "Judgement."

Membership Supper

Sisterhood Congregation Agudas Achim, 24 West Union Street, Kingston, will hold a paid-up membership supper Wednesday at 7 p. m. Entertainment has been planned.

Members are reminded to contact Elta Schneider for reservations for Dr. Joseph Jacobson's testimonial dinner which will be held Sunday, Nov. 19, at the Grand Hotel.

By The Reading Laboratory

(Excerpted from the World Publishing Company Book, "Study Faster and Retain More." Illustrations by Roy Doty.)

"I can never find anything in a library!"

Is that a familiar complaint?

How many times have you said it yourself? Unfortunately, many students feel this way about the library and avoid it whenever possible. But if you take time to learn about your library, you will enjoy using it.

The first thing you should do is to visit your library—before you have to use it. Poke around. See what's there. Find out where materials are and how you can locate them. Remember, your librarian is a good friend to have. She knows a lot about books and magazines that are under her care, and she will be happy to give you assistance.

Let's begin by finding out what's there. Obviously, all libraries have books. Some of these, such as fiction, biography and general books, circulate. Others are used only in the library for reference—specialized books such as dictionaries, encyclopedias, or atlases. Libraries also have periodicals—several daily newspapers and assorted magazines. Sometimes these circulate and sometimes not. Many libraries also have special materials such as records, tapes or films. You are fortunate if your library does.

Locating specific books is no problem once you know that there are several standard systems for classifying books. Your library probably uses a combination of these. We will describe one, but you'll have

Tiny Tips

TURKEY BEAN SALAD

Cut leftover cooked turkey into strips, place in bowl with drained, canned Blue Lake green beans and pour a little bottled herb dressing and teriyaki sauce over. Marinate overnight in refrigerator and serve on iceberg lettuce leaves garnished with tomato wedges and onion rings.

GARNISH PARTY SOUP

For an easy buffet supper, serve a tureen of steaming seafood chowder. Surround it with individual bowls of take-your-choice toppings such as sliced natural almonds, grated Parmesan cheese, snipped parsley, chopped hard-cooked egg and garlic croutons.

HAWAIIAN SLAW

Live up your holiday ham with a salad relish of finely shredded western iceberg lettuce, drained crushed pineapple, toasted flaked coconut, chopped maraschino cherries and ginger-flavored mayonnaise.

REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE FOR ALDERMAN 8th WARD VOTE "LOU" SCHAFER FOR 1968

LOUIS "LOU" SCHAFER

I have resided in the 8th Ward for over 23 years while I was Physical Director and Secretary of the local YMCA. I served many people, as well as their children in the 8th Ward. I have also been of assistance and service to people throughout the city.

Fraternally, I am a member of the Trinity Lutheran Church Council. A member, and with many years perfect at of the Ulster County Council of Social Agency and now on the executive committee. I now assist as a substitute instructor in Physical Education for the Consolidated School District. I have been in official capacity in many YMCA groups for the State and National and was President of the Connecticut State Physical Directors Society.

Serving with groups of this distinction, I feel that I can assist the people of the 8th Ward in improving its local area in hope that the 8th Ward will be the equal of other wards in Kingston.

I make no promises. If elected, I will cooperate with the people of the ward to the best of my ability.

VOTE FOR ME — TUES. NOV. 7

Kingston Shades Hudson, 15-14, in Wild Grid Tilt

Working Press

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Sports Editor

At its homecoming football game each year, Michigan State honors its Half Century Club members with seats on the 50-yard line and extends other forms of recognition to its "patriarchs."

You qualify for this exclusive club 50 years after you have won a varsity sports letter at MSU.

By the time this edition hits the streets, we hope to be safely settled on the 50-yard line in Spartan Stadium in the company of one of these patriarchs and an Ohayo Mountain Road neighbor who has had close ties with Michigan State for many years.

The patriarch and host for the day is the venerable Woodstock octogenarian, Bruff Olin, a former Ulster county seniors golf champion who was track star at MSU at the turn of the century. The third member of the party is M. Leslie Denning, who is a former close associate of head coach Duffy Daugherty and Biggie Munn, the Spartans athletic director.

It doesn't figure to be much of a game. The once mighty Buckeyes are 14-point underdogs on the line and it could be worse. Daugherty's battered legions however will seek to recoup some of their prestige by pouring it on Ohio State.

They say you've never really seen American college football until you watch a Big 10 game. We're indebted to Mr. Olin for the chance to visit one of the football shrines in our nation. It should be a pleasant experience and only an Ohio State victory could spoil the occasion for our gracious host.

THEY ALL LAUGHED when the wag predicted that by 1970 women will have taken over the golf courses and permit the males to play only on Tuesday? Well, gentlemen, it's gone a step further than that but there's a catch to it.

The Nevele, a plush country club at Ellenville, is constructing the first "strictly" ladies golf course in the Catskills. Alfred Tull is designing this earthly paradise which will be a nine-hole. And listen to this. Alongside the fifth hole will be a Pink Powder Room!

Electric carts will be powder puff pink, the sand traps will be pink and decorated with flower beds. Special tea cart service will be available on order from caddies. Now how about some pink champagne and pink golf balls to make the setting complete!

SHORT TAKES: Hudson Valley Crusaders, who played six games in Kingston before returning to Poughkeepsie have not been greeted with enthusiasm by Bridge City fans. Averaging only 300, they are about to throw in the towel for good. Booking suitable opponents has not been easy. The Troy Titans, a tough aggressive team, has appeared on the Crusaders schedule three times this season. . . just to give you an idea. . . Wiltwyck Country Club has signed its excellent greens superintendent, John Espey, for another two years. . . A new drainage system has been installed on the 5th hole to take care of the wet spot in the fairway. Other fall activity at Wiltwyck includes draining of the water system, top dressing tees, fertilizing, felling of dead trees and planting of 30-40 new trees. . . Has there ever been a golf season with so many bonus days as this fall? . . . Woodstock Country Club, meanwhile, is in the throes of a $25,000 refurbishing program. . . It isn't unfair to compare Green Bay's second half heroics with the Five O'Clock Lightning of the old New York Yankees, is it? . . . Dave Davis of Phoenix, Arizona, is leading money winner on the Professional Bowling Tour with $42,865. . . Some golfers have won that much in a single tournament. . . Quote of the week: Remi Prudhomme, Buffalo Bills' defensive end who eats only raw meat, on why he has preference for it: "It's just a good habit I got into. When I was a sophomore in college, they made my steaks too well done. I just told one of the waiters to take a steak, don't touch it, and put it on a plate raw. You can't overcook that way. There's only one problem. Nobody wants to be around when I'm eating."

Colts Slim Choice To Defeat Packers

By DICK COLICH
Associated Press Sports Writer

The unbeaten Baltimore Colts once again find Green Bay's fearsome Packers blocking their path to a National Football League division championship.

This time, however, the danger has been cut in half for the Colts. . . and Johnny Unitas might have enough healthy horses at his command to make it disappear altogether.

Unitas and the Colts, beaten in their last five duels with the Bart Starr-led Packers, are slim favorites to end the hex Sunday in their only regular-season confrontation with the defending NFL champs.

The Colts and Packers, who met twice each year as long-time pennant rivals in the Western Conference, are playing in different divisions this year. In order to set up a rematch, both must win their division titles.

"We've got the team to go all the way this year," says Colts veteran Lenny Moore. "But to do it, we've got to beat the Packers. It sure would be nice to give it to them twice this season."

Injured Return

Green Bay, 5-1-1, has other ideas, but the oddsmakers lean to the 5-0 Colts, who will be bolstered by the return of two units targets—Jimmy Orr and Ray Perkins—and massive tackle Jim Parker from the injured list.

Gale Sayers, plagued all year by injuries, will start for the Chicago Bears at Detroit, but the Cleveland Browns won't know until game time whether battered Frank Ryan will be available against Pittsburgh.

Elsewhere Sunday, Los Angeles is at San Francisco, New York at Minnesota, Atlanta at Dallas, St. Louis at Washington and Philadelphia at New Orleans.

Baltimore pits the NFL's top passing attack against Green Bay's league leading defense. In the clubs' last three tilts, the Packers defenders have held the upper hand, holding Unitas' offensive unit to one touchdown.

Sayers, who broke loose for 142 yards as the Bears beat Detroit 14-3 three weeks ago, sat out the next game and gained only 13 yards in last Sunday's 28-17 loss to Los Angeles.

Chicago is counting on the gifted halfback to bounce back against the Lions, who stunned San Francisco 45-3 a week ago behind quarterback Karl Sweetan.

The Browns, who share the Century Division lead with St. Louis and New York, have been grooming reserve quarterback Dick Shiner for their rematch with Pittsburgh should Ryan be unable to play. Ryan, who has started every game despite a

Namath Slated To See Action In Kansas City

By RON RAPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Kansas City Chiefs will match their little injuries against the New York Jets' big one Sunday and the Houston Oilers will try to scratch their seven-year itch.

The Chiefs and Jets square off in Kansas City and the game is a big one for both American Football League clubs. A defeat would all but knock Kansas City, now 4-3, out of the Western Division race, while a victory would give the Jets a commanding view of things in the East.

Denver has lost seven in a row and Coach Lou Saban alternated Steve Teni and Jim LeClair at quarterback last week.

Miami, 1-5, is at Buffalo, 2-5, with the Dolphins trying to break a five-game losing streak. Rookie quarterback Bob Griese figures to start for Miami. Jack Kemp will guide the Bills, the defending Eastern Division champs, who have been hit hard by injuries.

"Bizarre." That's the only way to describe Friday night's non-league football game at Hudson High as Kingston nipped the home gridders, 15-14, in a wild affair.

In addition to the usual long runs, penalties, fumbles, etc., the struggle was enlivened by a fourth period fracas near the Hudson bench.

Though only feelings were hurt, coach Frank Hamblet of the hosts was seen swinging at Jon Meiers, KHS defensive end. Cooler heads prevailed, however, and that might have turned into a free-for-all was just another battle between a pair of super-charged clubs.

Just moments later, a disgruntled home town fan, who claimed he paid his "buck" to get in and couldn't see because Kingston statisticians kept walking in front of him on the sidelines, proceeded to carry his young daughter and walk to the middle of the field to observe the action.

While a play was being run, this fan was a 12th man on the field before the local gen-darmes convinced him to stay behind the ropes.

Abusive Fans
To compound matters, fans rooting for the home gridders, were abusive to the KHS players, cheerleaders and rooting section. It was a classic display of poor sportsmanship.

In addition to the game, a good feature was the dazzling halftime show which saw the crowning of queens from all four classes.

Despite the closeness of the score, the visitors outplayed the losers from here to Newburgh. In addition to scoring a pair of touchdowns, coach Bill Hurley's gridders were inside the Hudson five on three occasions and controlled the football most of the way. It was an evening of missed opportunities which could have made a close contest into a rout.

Halback Rick Scalera and quarterback Craig Hamblet (son of the head coach) tallied for the losers. Kingston's scores came on a nifty 67 yard run by Marshall Byrd, a safety when a Hudson fumble went out of the end zone and a 10 yard pass from quarterback Mike Hoffman to end Fred Kachura.

The home side, which closed its season without a victory, marched 65 yards in 12 plays early in the opening period. A 26 yard scamper by Hamblet highlighted the surge.

The HHS quarterback threw a pitchout to Scalera on the five and the swift halfback carried it over for the TD. Jim Merrill then booted the PAT.

Byrd Runs 67
It took only two plays after the ensuing kickoff to even the count. Byrd, who had the best game of his brief varsity career, took a pitch from Hoffman on the 33. He cut for the right side-lines, was aided by key blocks on the part of Hoffman and Tim Bowens, and scored without being touched. Bowens' kick made it a 7-7 contest.

A 38 yard run by halfback Ed Adams gave the visitors impetus in the second quarter. However, with a first and goal to go from the five, the Hudson line dug in and stopped Hoffman inches short of the goal on fourth down.

Reserve quarterback All DeCrosta fumbled in trying to run the ball out of danger. The pigskin bounced around in the end zone and finally went over the line. This gave the winners a safety and sent them into the locker room with a 9-7 lead at the interim.

Before halftime, however, the KHS eleven had a first and goal to go on the one. Two plays failed to gain the yardage and then time ran out.

Second KHS Score

Rich Oakley recovered a fumble on the Hudson 41 in the third period and the visitors covered the distance in eight plays. The payoff was a third down pass from Hoffman to Kachura. The KHS end caught the ball at the goal line and jogged in for the score. Bowens was wide with his PAT attempt, his first miss of the season.

The fourth period scuffle began when Hamblet was forced out of bounds on the Hudson side of the field.

Players from both sides came up swinging. Coach Hamblet was seen throwing a punch at Meiers and the KHS player said he was struck by the blow.

When the action commenced once more, the home side narrowed the margin with a touchdown, after having had one called back because of a clip.

Big gainer in the 53-yard drive was a pass interference penalty against Kingston. The score came when Hamblet rolled to his right and carried the ball to the end zone from 14 yards out. Merrill's placement made it a 15-14 nail biter. With 8:30 still remaining, this one was up for grabs.

Loss on 10
Hoffman ate up most of the clock as he moved his teammates from the 28 to the Hudson 10 before the home side took over on downs. A 24-yard screen pass from the KHS quarterback to Byrd keyed the drive. However, it fizzled and died and the losers had one more chance.

They didn't take advantage of it. Scalera was stopped at the line of scrimmage, a pass went incomplete and Hamblet was thrown for a loss to the four. On the final down, the HHS quarterback threw to Scalera but he was stopped on the 17, short of a first down.

The local ran three plays and were on the 10 when time ran out.

Hurley took an extra precaution after the game. He kept his players on the bench until much of the crowd had filed out. Kingston is now 2-4 for the season. The Maroon gridders entertain Middletown next Saturday and close with Newburgh Free Academy on Thanksgiving Day.

Whatever might happen the rest of the season, the contest at Hudson will long be remembered.

KHS Harriers Cop Section 9 Title

7th Straight For Maroon; Boice Is 1st

Kingston High School captured its seventh straight Section 9 cross country championship Friday at Bear Mountain. While coach John Gilligan's harriers were winning the Class I title, Sufferin finished first in Section B and Highland Falls gained Class C honors over the 2.5 mile course.

Class A results: Kingston, 39; Middletown, 76; Newburgh, 78; Tappan, 81; Clarkstown, 113; Valley Central, 133; Spring Valley, 179; North Rockland, 206. Class B results: Sufferin, 33; Pearl River, 125; Port Jervis, 131; Nyack, 133; Monticello, 136; Nanuet, 137; Rondout Valley, 151; Washingtonville, 154; Onteora, 185; Monroe-Woodbury, 192.

Class C results: Highland Falls, 29; Highland, 81; Pine Bush, 105; Minisink Valley, 108; Fallsburgh, 146; Narrowsburg, 155; Walkkill, 187; Liberty, 195; New Paltz, 199; Marlboro, 248.

Gary Boice, Kingston's premier runner, added another victory to his collection. His time of 13:09 was 16 seconds ahead of teammate Bill Brinnier, a surprising second place finisher. Other KHS runners were Jim Gilpatrick, 9th; Wayne Sickler, 13th and Gary Flowers, 14th. Gene Ballou and Tom Salzmann finished 16th and 17th to earn the champions displacement points.

Balance was the keynote for the powerful KHS squad, which captured one of its easiest sectional championships. Sufferin was a winner in Class B, where Onteora's Craig Hubbell suffered his first defeat of the season. His 13:11 effort was a good but couldn't compare to the near record-shattering run of Walt Averner of Sufferin. He was clocked in 12:49, just six seconds off the record.

Pat Lopiano of Rondout Valley finished 11th and will participate in the state finals in Buffalo. Jim Lopiano of Rondout was 14th and is listed as an alternate.

Highland Falls, as expected, captured the Class C title. The Orange County school had its ace Bob Malkemes take individual honors in 13:11.

Top seven runners from the winning schools plus seven other best finishers will compete in the Intersectional Meet Saturday in Buffalo. Gilligan will again coach the Class A team from Section Nine.

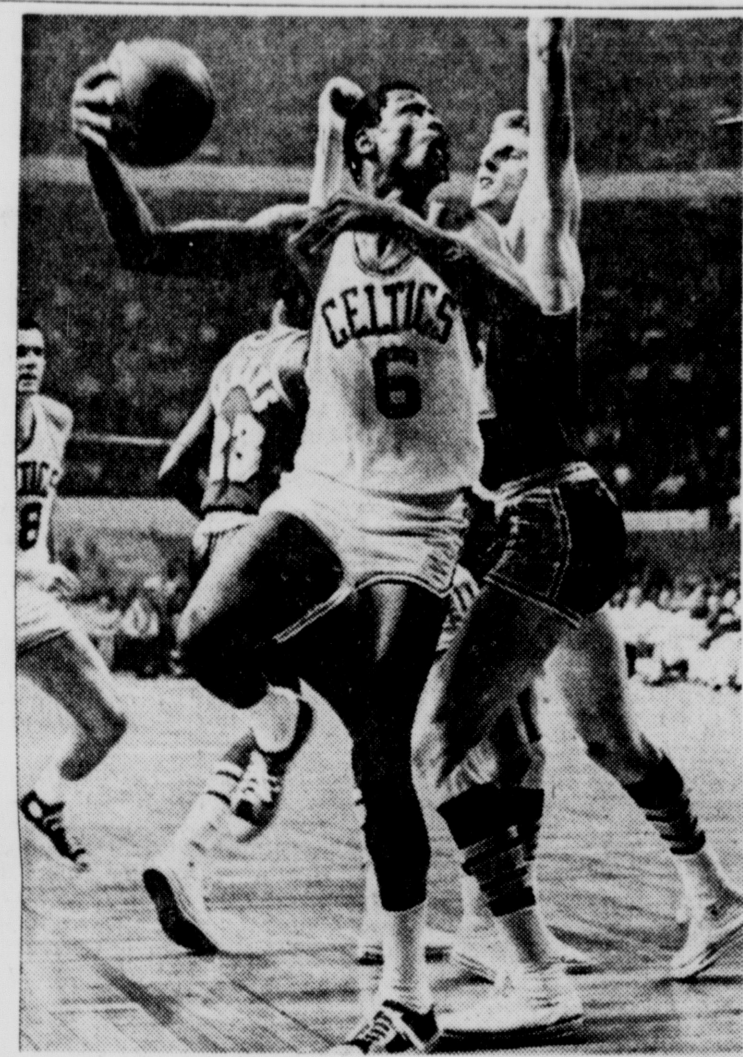

Class A Results: Boice, K, 13:09; Brinnier, K, 13:24; Antinori, N, 13:31; Hattton, N, 13:34; White, M, 13:35; Schmidt, VC, 13:39; Meehan, C, 13:40; Halpor, M, 13:41; Gilpatrick, K, 13:47; Arbolino, TZ, 13:53; Bright, M, 13:56; Halen, TZ, 14:01; Sickler, K, 14:02; Flowers, K, 14:09; Tegen, TZ, 14:12; Ballou, K, 14:16; Salzmann, K, 14:21; Perna, N, 14:22; Wooly, C, 14:24; Laconte, TZ, 14:26.

Class B results: Averner, S, 12:49; Hubbell, O, 13:11; Donovan, M, 13:19; VanDolt, S, 13:22; Enright, PR, 13:30; Stewart, S, 13:34; Keyes, P, 13:40; Mapes, M-W, 13:46; Englander, PR, 13:50; Witman, S, 13:52; P. Lopiano, RV, 13:56; J. Lopiano, RV, 14:00; Arzuaga, O, 14:20; Greenwood, O, 14:50; Quick, O, 14:52; Rubin, O, 14:56; Shultis, O, 15:00; Kelder, O, 15:20.

Class C results: Malkemes, HF, 13:11; Wilber, MV, 13:20; Cook, HF, 13:29; White, N, 13:38; Nostrand, H, 13:42; Parry, HF, 13:48; Johnson, HF, 13:50; Benitez, PB, 13:52; McGuire, NP, 13:53; Totten, H, 13:56.

Dog Racing Pays

DENVER (AP)—Fewer persons seem to be going to the dogs in the Denver area, but Mile High Kennel Club officials aren't worried. A new high of $20,446.026 was wagered in 61 nights of greyhound racing this year. Yet attendance dropped from the 1966 figure and at 454,566 was far below the record of 579,109 set in 1959.

Bing's 42 Points Lead Piston Victory

Dave Bing amassed 42 points for the Detroit Pistons Friday night but it was his last-minute pass that saved the game.

The Pistons beat Baltimore 115-113 in a National Basketball Association game, and the key play was Bing's pass under the basket to John Tresvant who stuffed in a shot that made the score 112-109 with a minute left.

Just to make certain, Bing scored with 10 seconds remaining to put the Pistons up by four points at 115-111.

In other NBA games Friday night, Boston edged Los Angeles 105-104 and New York walloped Seattle 134-100. In the lone American Basketball Association game, Anaheim beat Pittsburgh 101-94.

Bing scored 26 points in the first half, but Gus Johnson, who scored 36 points, had the Bullets up by as much as 18 points in the opening periods.

The unbeaten Celtics staved off a desperate late rally by the Lakers with Bill Russell and John Havlicek scoring the key baskets that saved the victory. Boston led by 21 points in the third period. Russell had 25 points and 33 rebounds and Elgin Baylor had 25 for the Lakers.

New York had little trouble making it two in a row by crushing Seattle. Willis Reed led the Knickerbockers with 24 points. Walt Hazzard topped the Sonics with 19.

Ben Warley's 27 points paced Anaheim over Pittsburgh in the ABA. The Pipers, led by Connie Hawkins' 27 points, took an early six-point lead, but Anaheim rallied to take the lead for good at halftime 53-49.

Kingston Shades Hudson, 15-14, in Wild Grid Tilt

Working Press

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Sports Editor

At its homecoming football game each year, Michigan State honors its Half Century Club members with seats on the 50-yard line and extends other forms of recognition to its "patriarchs."

You qualify for this exclusive club 50 years after you have won a varsity sports letter at MSU.

By the time this edition hits the streets, we hope to be safely settled on the 30-yard line in Spartan Stadium in the company of one of these patriarchs and an Ohayo Mountain Road neighbor who has had close ties with Michigan State for many years.

The patriarch and host for the day is the venerable Woodstock octogenarian, Bruff Olin, a former Ulster county seniors golf champion who was track star at MSU at the turn of the century. The third member of the party is M. Leslie Denning, who is a former close associate of head coach Duffy Daugherty and Biggie Munn, the Spartans athletic director.

It doesn't figure to be much of a game. The once mighty Buckeyes are 14-point underdogs on the line and it could be worse. Daugherty's battered legions however will seek to recoup some of their prestige by pouring it on Ohio State.

They say you've never really seen American college football until you watch a Big 10 game. We're indebted to Mr. Olin for the chance to visit one of the football shrines in our nation. It should be a pleasant experience and only an Ohio State victory could spoil the occasion for our gracious host.

THEY ALL LAUGHED when the wag predicted that by 1970 women will have taken over the golf courses and permit the males to play only on Tuesday? Well, gentlemen, it's gone a step further than that but there's a catch to it.

The Nevele, a plush country club at Ellenville, is constructing the first "strictly" ladies golf course in the Catskills. Alfred Tull is designing this earthly paradise which will be a nine-hole. And listen to this. Alongside the fifth hole will be a Pink Powder Room!

Electric carts will be powder puff pink, the sand traps will be pink and decorated with flower beds. Special tea cart service will be available on order from caddies. Now how about some pink champagne and pink golf balls to make the setting complete!

SHORT TAKES: Hudson Valley Crusaders, who played six games in Kingston before returning to Poughkeepsie have not been greeted with enthusiasm by Bridge City fans. Averaging only 300, they are about to throw in the towel for good. Booking suitable opponents has not been easy. The Troy Titans, a tough aggressive team, has appeared on the Crusaders schedule three times this season. . . just to give you an idea. . . Wiltwyck Country Club has signed its excellent greens superintendent, John Espey, for another two years. . . A new drainage system has been installed on the 5th hole to take care of the wet spot in the fairway. Other fall activity at Wiltwyck includes draining of the water system, top dressing tees, fertilizing, felling of dead trees and planting of 30-40 new trees. . . Has there ever been a golf season with so many bonus days as this fall? . . . Woodstock Country Club, meanwhile, is in the throes of a $25,000 refurbishing program. . . It isn't unfair to compare Green Bay's second half heroics with the Five O'Clock Lighting of the old New York Yankees, is it? . . . Dave Davis of Phoenix, Arizona, is leading money winner on the Professional Bowling Tour with $42,865. . . Some golfers have won that much in a single tournament. . . Quote of the week: Remi Prudhomme, Buffalo Bills' defensive end who eats only raw meat, on why he has preference for it: "It's just a good habit I got into. When I was a sophomore in college, they made my steaks too well done. I just told one of the waiters to take a steak, don't touch it, and put it on a plate raw. You can't overcook that way. There's only one problem. Nobody wants to be around when I'm eating."

Fed Action Is Awaited On U.S. Money Supply

By JOHN CUNIFF
Ap Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — The pressing economic question of the day is: What action will be taken in the next few weeks by the Federal Reserve Board, that semiautonomous group that regulates the nation's money supply?

Effects Either Way
Either way it moves, to increase the amount of money or slow the flow, will effect to some degree interest rates, prices, wages, stocks, profits, savings, jobs, urban development, buying decisions, production.

The board's job, in its own words, is "to foster a flow of credit and money that will facilitate orderly economic growth, a stable dollar, and a long-range balance in our international payments."

None of these functions is now being fulfilled perfectly, but the board ideally should have the assistance of fiscal policy, which means government policy on taxing and spending.

Since spending probably won't be cut and taxes probably won't be raised soon, the entire job of containing inflation currently falls on the board.

This puts the managers of our monetary system in a terrible predicament, and a dangerous one. If it moves to tighten money supplies, some businessmen who remember last year's credit crunch might be inclined to ward panic. Yet it must not permit runaway inflation by making borrowing easy.

Already the board is criticized as contributing to inflation by those who feel too much money is flowing to the economy. An excess of dollar bills permits buyers to increase their demand for goods. Production, however, is not spurred. Instead, manufacturers increase prices.

During inflationary times, the board generally can be expected to order member banks to restrict their flow of credit to borrowers. This slows the flow of money available for spending. It presses down on demand. Prices stabilize.

Should the board then begin now to lessen the flow of money and help stifle inflation? And, say the critics, send interest rates even higher? Wouldn't this cause a depression in some industries, notably housing? Above all, wouldn't it make the government's task of financing and fighting a war all the more difficult?

Charge Portuguese In Congo Coup Try

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — Members of the U.N. Security Council conferred behind the scenes today on Congolese charges that Portugal has conspired with mercenary invaders to overthrow the government of the Congo.

Congolese Foreign Minister Justin-Marie Bomboko appealed for an urgent meeting of the 15-nation council to deal with "collusion of Portugal with the mercenaries in order to overthrow the existing order of the Congo."

In Lisbon the Portuguese foreign minister issued a statement declaring that the Congo "was not invaded or threatened by Portuguese troops nor by any foreign forces operating from Portuguese Angola."

Despite official denials, foreign observers in Lisbon report that they have been aware of mercenary activities in the Portuguese capital for some time.

Ambassador Mamadou B. Kante of Mali, president of the council, immediately began consultation with council members, but no meeting was expected until the first of the week.

The request for council action came as a U.S. transport plane shuttled Congolese troops to Lubumbashi to head off white mercenary invaders from Angola, diplomatic sources in the Congo capital of Kinshasa reported.

The informants said the invaders were thrusting northward to relieve pressure on mercenaries under Maj. Jean Schramme who were reported battling Congolese troops around Bukavu. The reports said both sides had suffered casualties.

Bomboko said the mercenary force invaded from Angolan soil Wednesday, three days after fighting had erupted between Congolese government troops and Schramme's men at Bukavu. He claimed that the Congolese had seized half of the city.

Bomboko said his government had intercepted "several appeals by Maj. Schramme to Angola asking for armed intervention in behalf of the mercenaries."

The Congo minister charged that the facts provided "irrefutable proof of the collusion of Portugal with the mercenaries in order to overthrow the established order in the Congo."

Poughkeepsie Guardsmen Given Superior Rating

Reports of training performance of each unit of the 2nd Battalion (Honest John) 156th Artillery, New York Army National Guard, of Poughkeepsie, as compiled by the First United States Army Evaluation Team at Camp Drum, during the annual field training period June 24 through July 8, have been received by Major John E. Martell, commanding officer. The reports were forwarded through Headquarters, 27th Armored Division Artillery, Albany.

Major Martell was highly pleased with the overall ratings given to the three batteries in his command. All were rated "Superior." "This is no small accomplishment for any military unit," the Major commented. "It covers a fifteen-day full-time training period, including a four-day bivouac and tactical periods, and the training not only of the assigned personnel but of some 221 officers and enlisted men attached for training."

Training Performance
Headquarters and Headquarters Battery A conducted advanced individual training during the entire AFT period with the assigned mission to organize, support and train personnel assigned to the 4.2 inch and 81 mm mortar platoons of the 27th Armored Division. The evaluation report indicated that the training program was well-organized and supervised by the commander and the battalion staff. The training enabled personnel to learn, improve and perfect individual qualification necessary for a well-trained mortar crew. Classes were progressive; prior planning, outstanding preparation and resourceful execution of the training program provided superior training for all personnel.

Other Items Evaluated
The First Army teams noted that unit mess facilities were operated by competent and knowledgeable personnel, personal hygiene and field sanitation both in the field and in garrison was excellent throughout the training period. Unit maintenance provided superior support to subordinating units and was able to make all repairs necessary within its capabilities. Troop morale, esprit and military courtesy was superb throughout the AFT period. No major training deficiencies were noted in the report. Testing procedures were listed among the outstanding accomplishments.

Elizabeth May Be Hiding Among 'Flowers'
NEW YORK (AP) — The Friday night scene in Hippieland's Lower East Side swung into action amid reports that "the politician's daughter" was hiding out with the Flower Children—successfully evading a massive police dragnet.

Weekend "hippies" and "outsiders" jammed the psychedelic discotheques and theaters in the St. Marks Place area. Further east near Tompkins Square Park, the "regulars" squatted outside their favorite haunts, strumming guitars and talking of drugs and sex.

Neither group seemed terribly upset that the 16-year-old daughter of New York's Republican State Chairman Charles A. Schoenbeck Jr. had run away to join them. But word was out that she had made the scene at two favorite hippie hangouts—The Something luncheonette on East 10th Street and the Communal Diggers Free Store down the block.

"The politician's daughter was in here, but she left before I could get to her," said the manager of the Something. "Just think—a $1,000 reward down the drain."

There has been no public announcement of a reward for blonde brown-eyed Elizabeth Schoenbeck, but word was also out that "somebody" was willing to pay high stakes for her return.

The subject of "reward money" sparked more interest in hippie circles than the girl's disappearance, though the exact amount was in question.

"What would I do with the money?" mused one long-haired bearded youth. "Strangely enough, I'd probably put it in the bank."

Tenn. Man Killed
ONEONTA, N.Y. (AP) — Ronald Brightman, 20, of Oak Ridge, Tenn., was killed early today when State Police said the automobile in which he was riding struck a utility pole beside Route 7 near here.

SAUGERTIES NEWS
Candidate

SAUGERTIES NEWS Candidate

Joseph R. Mizerek, Saugerties Conservative Party candidate for county legislator, was cited for his courage in taking stands and then acting upon them, according to a spokesman for the Conservative Party, at a recent gathering.

"Joe is a competent, trustworthy and sincere individual, with an excellent record in business, and community endeavors," the spokesman commented.

"Joe served as a pilot in World War II and is a former State Trooper who received several commendations, including one from Gov. Dewey, and at the same time, was interested in helping the youth of his patrol area, and in starting sports teams and giving guidance to those who needed it."

"Joe returned to engineering in 1950 and worked for some of the largest consulting firms in the country, including IBM," the spokesman stated.

He came to Ulster County in 1954, while working for IBM, and was one of the first engineers in this area, according to the spokesman. In 1958 Mizerek went into the engineering consulting and construction business.

"Since then," the spokesman said, "Joe has designed and constructed a multi-million dollar industrial and residential complex on land sold by IBM in Owego, and engineered marinas for New York and Florida. At present he is associated with one of the finest professional engineering firms in the country, now in the process of engineering a 14-million dollar sewerage system for the City of New York."

Joe Mizerek's activities have always been directed toward helping our community and the younger men," said the spokesman, "by spending countless hours training would-be delinquents and giving them a better start in life."

"At this very moment, he is trying to organize a school that will train young boys for a job with a future," the spokesman stated.

Mizerek is 43 years of age, married, and lives with his wife, Claire, and two young daughters near the junction of Shultis Corners and the Glasco Turnpike.

Lack Speaks On Justices
The Town of Saugerties needs active justices. Candidate Joseph Lack gave a brief explanation at a recent meeting of his feelings about the justice office and what can be done to better serve the community, saying, "I feel that people who have been accused of breaking the laws of a community should have the right of a fast and fair trial. Also, there is no need to bandy or harass a person to show authority. Most people who are brought into a local court are apprehensive about what will happen. Or maybe some people have had a bad experience in Justice Court."

It is time we do something, Lack said. "An impression should be left on the people who pass through our courts; a good impression invites respect for law and law enforcement and will best serve our community. This impression, of respect for the law and its enforcement will, in my opinion, act as a deterrent."

"I do not believe in lacerant justice but I do not believe in blind justice either. I shall not, I will not, allow myself to be prejudiced for or against any one because of his or her party affiliation. Every case which falls within my jurisdiction, will receive a fair and just deliberation."

"Our Justice Courts are set up to handle cases of a local nature. These courts and the justices who must operate within them are there to serve the people and the community. The Democratic candidates will fill our town's needs for active justices, he concluded."

Louisiana Dems Voting Today 3 Key Issues

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Gov. John McKeithen's bid for a second straight term, Negro chances to crack the all-white state legislature, and the loyalty of the state party to the national party in 1968 were on the line today in Louisiana's Democratic primary election.

Despite the possibility the election could make modern political history in Louisiana, a light turnout of the state's 1.3 million registered voters was predicted.

Cool, crisp weather greeted voters across the state. Polls opened at 6 a.m. and close at 8 p.m.

McKeithen, 49, a moderate on racial matters, was the odds-on choice to become the first man this century to win election to a second straight term. The Republicans have not qualified a candidate for governor for next year's general election.

Although charges of "mobster" influences in state government rocked the campaign, the governor's race turned out to be one of the tamest in the state's history.

The governor's principal challenger, U.S. Rep. John R. Rarick, a supporter of former Alabama Gov. George Wallace, slashed away at the organized crime issue in hopes of upsetting McKeithen or forcing him into a Dec. 16 runoff.

Perhaps far more important in the long run to Louisiana politics will be the outcome of races for the 117-member Democratic State Central Committee.

Leading conservatives, headed by segregationist leader Leander Perez Sr. of Plaquemines Parish, sought to gain control of the committee in hopes of giving Wallace the preferred spot on Louisiana's 1968 presidential ballot.

More than 350 candidates sought election to the party posts. National party loyalists charged the conservatives with subterfuge in attempts to relegate President Johnson to a third-party role next year.

The committee will decide next year whether Wallace or Johnson receives the state party endorsement, and thus the top ballot position.

Twenty-six Negro candidates sought to break the color line in the legislature for the first time since Reconstruction.

Political observers gave one attorney, Ernest N. Morial, New Orleans, the best chance of being elected. Morial has the endorsement of the New Orleans Times-Picayune.

FCC Approves Kingston Radio Transfer Deal

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission announced approval Friday of the transfer and assignment of construction permits for two New York radio stations.

The permit of State WNDN-FM of Kingston was transferred from Donald P. Nelson and Wilbur E. Nelson, doing business as Nelson Broadcasting Co., to Kingston Broadcasters Inc., for $15,600.

The permit of WBAU-TV of Buffalo was assigned from Beta Television Corp. to Evans Broadcasting Corp.

Dear Abby

Mom Has Much to Learn

BY ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Dear Abby: I have seen some real "pips" in your column, but I think this one will take the cake.

My husband and I recently attended the opening of a new shopping center. Everyone who made a purchase of one dollar or more got to put his name in the pot for a chance at the grand prize, which was a trip to Hawaii for two—all expenses paid.

Well, they drew my husband's name! When they called and told us we couldn't believe it. Now, here comes the unbelievable part. My husband's mother heard about the prize he won, and she told him it would be easier for her to get away for that trip than because I have other responsibilities and she hasn't, so she thinks he ought to take her. My husband never was one to speak up to his mother, so now he says he doesn't see how he can get out of taking her without hurting her feelings. If he takes her, what do you think would be a suitable punishment?

Dear Abby: From the description of his mother, just taking her would be punishment enough.

Dear Abby: Please help me! My problem is a jealous husband. He follows me everywhere I go. I can't even walk alone (night or day) to my mother's two blocks away without his following me to be sure I'm really going there.

If I go outside to water the flowers, he comes out and stands over me until I'm finished. He says he wants to make sure I don't wave to any man who happens to be driving by. I can't look at a man in a car or on foot unless I am trying to get his attention. If I speak to a man, he accuses me of being "in love" with him.

He follows me to work to make sure I don't stop off anywhere first. If I drive home from work, he asks me which way I came, why I came that way, whom I saw, etc.

No matter what I say, I'm lying. I've been cursed at and called names for things I've never even thought of doing. I have been married for one year and 15 days and I don't think I can take it much longer. Is he sick or not?

We live in a small town and there's no psychiatrist here. We couldn't afford one anyway.

What can I do, short of killing myself.

Miserable Dear Miserable: I am no psychiatrist, but I have read your letter to one of the best, and he says your husband is sick. And if treatment, you might very well be sick, too. Ask your family doctor how to get professional help for your husband, and follow thru.

Your town may not have a psychiatrist, but there are larger cities near you where psychiatric help is available. You say you can't afford it? I say, you can't afford NOT to have it.

Dear Abby: My son, who is a physical education instructor, has a good solution concerning what to do about the "hippies."

He says the rest of us should quit our jobs, let our hair grow, stay away from bathtubs shun all responsibility, etc., and the hippies, not wishing to be like us, would clean up, get haircuts, and go to work.

South's final five club bid was a last ditch effort to play in his partner's suit. North didn't have spades, hearts or diamonds thus his suit had to be clubs. Naturally enough, South expected to find a better club suit in the North hand.

West led the king of clubs. South won in dummy an returned the ten. He covered with the jack but retained the six as an entry. West took his ace of diamonds and shifted to the king of hearts. South won with the ace and played the innocent-looking three of spades. West fell into the trap and ducked. Dummy won with the eight.

A spade to the ace and another spade followed. West had to play his king. South ruffed high in dummy, entered his hand with the six of trumps and discarded all dummy's red losers on the rest of the spade suit.

The spade play caused a lot of discussion. Most people sympathize with West, but we think that he made a careless play. He wasn't going to get many spade tricks and he should have visualized the possibility that East could not beat dummy's eight.

Mike Douglas in No Hurry

BY DEAN GYSEL
CHICAGO — Mike Douglas, the ladies' home companion, is getting just what he needs — another female viewer. That makes 5,200,001 a day. That's a lot of ironing boards. And a few men homesick.

'Man of Year'
The latest fan is his second granddaughter, born Tuesday, a few hours before he came to hometown Chicago to be honored as "Man of the Year" by the Illinois Broadcasters Assn. "I don't know why he was honored. How many broadcasters can watch television in the daytime? My guess is the broadcasters' wives see Douglas."

The Mike Douglas show is the most popular daytime TV program. It is syndicated by Westinghouse Broadcasting Co. to 283 stations. (It is seen in this area on New York Channel 9 and over WAST, Channel 13 in Albany.)

Douglas conducts a talk show such as Johnny Carson or Joey Bishop, except rather than a Manhattan or Beverly Hills cocktail party it is Saturday night in Philadelphia. Recently, for example, his guest co-host Tony Martin sang, Woody Herman played clarinet and Fannie Flagg did a comic monologue. Douglas surprised singer Marge Day by bringing her on her son to accompany her on the piano and then he roasted marshmallows with two girl scouts and a suave Martin.

Douglas is less conspicuous a star than Carson or Bishop. "My function is a catalyst," Douglas said. "I turn my guests on."

Instead of a sidekick, Douglas uses a weekly co-host or co-hostess "It's something to look forward to — to see them in a different light."

Network Offers
Each network has offered Douglas a show. His name was mentioned when Carson struck NBC and last year ABC offered him a weekly variety series. "It took me five months to decide not to," said Douglas. "It would be like shooting craps. I want a prime-time show. But might have a great show that I'm in no hurry. Westinghouse could be shot down against a has been very good to me."

The 46-year-old Douglas has a generous contract with Westinghouse. "I'd be crazy if I didn't house through 1972."

BARBS
By PHIL PASTORET
Last Halloween, the most confused kid in the neighborhood was the little fellow who was asked if he knew what the "trick" in "trick or treat" meant.

It's always dear season for the office wolf.

It's always Halloween for the neighborhood lurch — he commutes with the spirits every night.

We cherish the case of the fearless nimbrod killed by another myopic bravo while hunting bunnies — he applied at the Pearly Gates for a hunting license.

Plenty of Fords in Future; Chrysler Faces Negotiation

By KIT KINCADE
Associated Press Writer
DETROIT (AP) — United Auto Workers President Walter P. Reuther, having won a record contract from Ford Motor Co., today re-enters negotiations with Chrysler Corp., where the union seeks to match or better the Ford pact.

Ford will start Monday producing its first cars since Sept. 6 when contracts expired at all big three automakers and the union struck Ford. Chrysler and General Motors employees have been working without a contract.

UAW and Chrysler negotiators are bargaining under a deadline set by the union.

Wednesday Deadline

Since the union tries to avoid shutting down more than one major producer at a time, union officials are expected to press Ford locals to settle by Wednesday their contract disputes which have kept Ford plants closed since the national agreement was reached Oct. 22.

Ford announced Friday that workers would man assembly lines Monday in Dearborn, Mich., where Cougars and Mustangs are turned out and at a truck plant in Mahwah, N.J. Tentative agreements are still unsettled at six assembly plants and Ford's Fairfax-Sharonville automatic transmission plant near Cincinnati, Ohio.

A union spokesman said bargainers for the Cincinnati facility and the UAW, meeting in Dearborn, "were confident they would have a settlement" today. The union has scheduled a ratification vote for Sunday at the transmission operation.

Local ratification votes are planned at a number of Ford facilities over the weekend.

Chrysler indicated it will follow the Ford settlement in many areas.

But issues involving salaried workers who are UAW members, unique at Chrysler, and equal pay for Canadian and American workers, the only major demand the union did not win at Ford, could present problems.

The UAW represents some 94,000 hourly rated workers and 9,000 salaried workers at Chrysler.

At Chrysler's Belvidere, Ill., plant some 1,400 workers returned to their jobs Friday night, ending a wildcat strike that halted production for two days. The strike apparently was triggered when a worker refused a new job classification and was fired.

The union began presenting new contract demands to American Motors Corp. Friday in their first meeting since Aug. 29.

The union's contract at AMC has been extended on a day-to-day basis since it expired Oct. 16.

County CSEA to Hear Taylor Law Provisions

The Ulster County Civil Service Employees Association Chapter has scheduled a meeting of general information for all county employees Wednesday, Nov. 8, at 8 p.m. on the fifth floor of the County Office Building.

Edward J. Gusty, area field representative for the statewide CSEA announced that the purpose of this meeting would be to explain the provisions of the newly enacted Taylor Bill which provides for the right of the employees to bargaining with their employer.

It is expected that employees from all departments in county government will attend this meeting, which according to Gusty shall also include plans for drawing up a unit composed exclusively of county employees for the purpose of initiating collective negotiations with the board of supervisors.

In the past, Gusty said that the local CSEA chapter was made up of membership from not only county employees but also from the City of Kingston and the school district as well. As the terms of the new bill provide for the employees right to bargaining with the county as the employer the CSEA Chapter is undertaking the task of setting up a separate and independent unit of all county employees in order to more effectively deal with the Board of Supervisors.

Extra Ulster Districts Listed

Residents of the Town of Ulster who wish to vote in Tuesday's election may do so between the hours of 6 a.m. and 9 p.m.

Enlarged to 10 districts this year, the town will have the following polling places open: District 1, Boice's Hall, opposite Howard Johnson's Motel; District 2, Lake Katrine School; District 3, East Kingston Firehouse; District 4, Marasack's Store, Edenville; District 5, Ulster Hose Fire Company, Albany Avenue Ext.; District 6, Spring Lake Firehouse, Lucas Avenue Ext.; District 7, Ruby Rod and Gun Clubhouse, Main Street, Ruby; District 8, Chambers School Library; District 9, Lake Katrine Grange Hall; District 10, Wallace Department Store, Ulster Shopping Plaza, Albany Ave. Ext.

Those residents of the new District 10 register at Wallace's. The district starts at the city line at Wrentham Street and Richmond Park to Stahlman Place. Persons in that district who wish to vote between 6 and 10 a.m. should use the rear door of the furniture department at Wallace's. After 10, all doors will be open.

Costello Gives Williams Reply On 'Two Hats'

Hitting out at Saugerties Supervisor Peter M. Williams "wearing two hats" by running for supervisor and county legislator, the town's Democratic chairman said today "if Mr. Supervisor feels that we have no issues, then why (has he) not tried us in a public debate as has been challenged over and over?"

Democrat Frank Costello said that he would be "happy to supply the answer as to what's wrong with wearing two hats."

"In case the incumbent supervisor hasn't heard, we would like to refer him first to the Sullivan County Court case."

"Secondly, we refer him to the decision of a recent case in Dutchess County where a name was ordered off the ballot for trying to run for supervisor and county legislator."

"Thirdly and most important, we suggest the incumbent supervisor find out from his good neighbor in Woodstock, as to why he decided it wasn't the proper thing to run for two offices."

Costello further charged that "this bit of playing welfare officer does not require another hat since this work is done by the stroke of a pen."

"The county provides a welfare officer to do the actual work involved," said Costello. "As for the Democrats not having a catchy issue," the Democratic chairman said, "we are still waiting for an answer to the many issues presented. The loss of $10,000 from monies not invested properly; the hole in the ground, on a private piece of land, without an option; the reasons why nothing has been done about parks in the area, and many, many more which are too lengthy to enumerate."

"We would be happy to debate candidate for candidate at any level, at any time," Costello concluded.

Tobin Packing Near Accord

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Tentative agreement on the major issues in a month-long strike at the Tobin Packing Co. in suburban Colonie was announced early today.

State Mediator Harry Livingston told a reporter the "major differences have been settled tentatively" for most of the company's 800 employees, represented by the Independent Employees Union.

Terms for drivers, Mechanics and office workers still had to be worked out, Livingston added.

He said he hoped further negotiations today would enable union members to vote on the accord Sunday.

Terms of the agreement were not disclosed.

The strike began Oct. 2 over wages and working conditions. Labor and management officials had met with Livingston for 12 hours Thursday and 14 hours Friday.

Management Group Will Meet Monday

The Poughkeepsie Chapter of the Society for Advancement of Management will meet on Monday, Nov. 6 at the Red Door Inn on Rt. 44. The meeting will begin at 6:15 p.m. Reservations may be made by calling Miss Agnes Borg.

The Society will meet jointly with the National Secretaries' Association. A cordial invitation is extended to all members of both organizations.

The highly acclaimed motion picture entitled "The Small World of John J. Pennyfeather" will be seen. Following this, John E. Mack will lead a roundtable discussion at which time the main topic Interpersonal Relations of People in a Business Environment will be discussed relating both to the movie itself and also to its application in everyday life in the complex business world of today.

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Cambodia's ruling Prince Norodom Sihanouk, host this week to Mrs. John F. Kennedy, said today Americans "will be out of South Vietnam within two years."

"I cannot win," he said. The prince expressed support for the Viet Cong and North Vietnam and called the American battle against them misguided. He said the United States did not realize the Viet Cong was "the last barrier to Chinese encroachment."

Sihanouk offered at the same time to resume the diplomatic relations with Washington he broke in 1965 on the condition the United States recognizes Cambodia's present frontiers and stops "violating" its territory with land and air forces from Vietnam. The United States has accused Cambodia of harboring Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops and sheltering their supply routes.

Sihanouk's statements came at a news conference attended mainly by American reporters, who were permitted in the country on the occasion of Mrs. Kennedy's trip to see the historic ruins of Angkor and to dedicate a street named for her late husband.

The prince disclaimed any "new" rapprochement with Communist China, but said recent disagreements concerning Chinese support of Cambodian Communists evidently have been cleared up. He described Cambodia's relations with Peking as "very close" — as long as his nations' sovereignty and integrity are respected. He noted, however, that Peking "will doubtless continue clandestine support" for local Communists. Condemning the United States as the "aggressor" in Vietnam, Sihanouk said "America will be out of Indochina in two years, you will see."

"I have nothing against the United States but I must say that America's war in Vietnam has no reason to exist."

"The United States is on the wrong road. She says that she is fighting communism. What kind of communism? I think that the United States is afraid of the communism of China but she is trying to destroy the communism of Vietnam which is not the same thing at all."

"The United States is trying to destroy the nationalists in Vietnam who are actually the last barrier against Chinese encroachment. Ho Chi Minh is the real representative of the Vietnamese people. We will continue to support Ho Chi Minh and the National Liberation Front (Viet Cong) in their fight against you," he said.

The prince characterized this support as moral and political and derided accusations that Viet Cong arms are being shipped across the Cambodian frontier.

UAW and Chrysler negotiators are bargaining under a deadline set by the union.

Wednesday Deadline

Since the union tries to avoid shutting down more than one major producer at a time, union officials are expected to press Ford locals to press Wednesday their contract disputes which have kept Ford plants closed since the national agreement was reached Oct. 22.

Ford announced Friday that workers would man assembly lines Monday in Dearborn, Mich., where Cougars and Mustangs are turned out and at a truck plant in Mahwah, N.J. Tentative agreements are still unsettled at six assembly plants and Ford's Fairfax-Sharonville automatic transmission plant near Cincinnati, Ohio.

A union spokesman said bargainers for the Cincinnati facility and the UAW, meeting in Dearborn, "were confident they would have a settlement" today. The union has scheduled a ratification vote for Sunday at the transmission operation.

Local ratification votes are planned at a number of Ford facilities over the weekend.

Chrysler indicated it will follow the Ford settlement in many areas.

But issues involving salaried workers who are UAW members, unique at Chrysler, and equal pay for Canadian and American workers, the only maior demand the union did not win at Ford, could present problems.

The UAW represents some 94,000 hourly rated workers and 9,000 salaried workers at Chrysler.

At Chrysler's Belvidere, Ill., plant some 1,400 workers returned to their jobs Friday night, ending a wildcat strike that halted production for two days. The strike apparently was triggered when a worker refused a new job classification and was fired.

The union began presenting new contract demands to American Motors Corp. Friday in their first meeting since Aug. 29.

The union's contract at AMC has been extended on a day-to-day basis since it expired Oct. 16.

County CSEA to Hear Taylor Law Provisions

The Ulster County Civil Service Employees Association Chapter has scheduled a meeting of general information for all county employees Wednesday, Nov. 8, at 8 p. m. on the fifth floor of the County Office Building.

Edward J. Gusty, area field representative for the state-wide CSEA announced that the purpose of this meeting would be to explain the provisions of the newly enacted Taylor Bill which provides for the right of the employees to bargaining with their employer.

It is expected that employees from all departments in county government will attend this meeting, which according to Gusty shall also include plans for drawing up a unit composed exclusively of county employees for the purpose of initiating collective negotiations with the board of supervisors.

In the past, Gusty said that the local CSEA chapter was made up of membership from not only county employees but also from the City of Kingston.

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Cambodia's ruling Prince Norodom Sihanouk, host this week to Mrs. John F. Kennedy, said today Americans "will be out of South Vietnam within two years."

The prince expressed support for the Viet Cong and North Vietnam and called the American battle against them misguided. He said the United States did not realize the Viet Cong was "the last barrier to Chinese encroachment."

Sihanouk offered at the same time to resume the diplomatic relations with Washington he broke in 1965 on the condition the United States recognizes Cambodia's present frontiers and stops "violating" its territory with land and air forces from Vietnam. The United States has accused Cambodia of harboring Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops and sheltering their supply routes.

Sihanouk's statements came at a news conference attended mainly by American reporters, who were permitted in the country on the occasion of Mrs. Kennedy's trip to see the historic ruins of Angkor and to dedicate a street named for her late husband.

The prince disclaimed any "new" rapprochement with Communist China, but said recent disagreements concerning Chinese support of Cambodian Communists evidently have been cleared up. He described Cambodia's relations with Peking as "very close"—as long as his nation's sovereignty and integrity are respected. He noted, however, that Peking "will doubtless continue clandestine support" for local Communists. Condemning the United States as the "aggressor" in Vietnam, Sihanouk said "America will be out of Indochina in two years, you will see."

"I have nothing against the United States but I must say that America's war in Vietnam has no reason to exist."

"The United States is on the wrong road. She says that she is fighting communism. What kind of communism? I think that the United States is afraid of the communism of China but she is trying to destroy the communism of Vietnam which is not the same thing at all."

"The United States is trying to destroy the nationalists in Vietnam who are actually the last barrier against Chinese encroachment. Ho Chi Minh is the real representative of the Vietnamese people. We will continue to support Ho Chi Minh and the National Liberation Front (Viet Cong) in their fight against you," he said.

The prince characterized this support as moral and political and derided accusations that Viet Cong arms are being shipped across the Cambodian frontier.

Management Group Will Meet Monday

The Poughkeepsie Chapter of the Society for Advancement of Management will meet on Monday, Nov. 6 at the Red Door Inn on Rt. 44. The meeting will begin at 6:15 p. m. Reservations may be made by calling Miss Agnes Borg.

The Society will meet jointly with the National Secretaries' Association. A cordial invitation is extended to all members of both organizations.

The highly acclaimed motion picture entitled "The Small World of John J. Pennyfeather" will be seen. Following this, John E. Mack will lead a roundtable discussion at which time the main topic Inter-personal Relations of People in a Business Environment will be discussed relating both to the movie itself and also to its application in everyday life in the complex business world of today.

Firearms Charge
Fillmore Scruggs, an Albany man, stopped Friday afternoon by State Police outside of Leeds on a routine check, was arrested for possessing a pistol, troopers disclosed. Scruggs, who listed his age at 39 and resides at 96 Madison Avenue, is currently in the Greene County jail awaiting grand jury action, police report. They stated he didn't own a permit.

Scruggs was arraigned before Leeds Justice of the Peace George Carl.

Smashed Truck Found
Kingston troopers report investigating a smashed stolen truck Friday night found abandoned on Route 212, Town of Saugerties. The thief is unknown, police said.

The truck, registered to A.K.T. Industries, Prince Street, Kingston, was stolen from the city yesterday afternoon, police figure.

A witness told authorities the truck was headed west when it struck an embankment.

A Kingston man suffered minor injuries Friday morning in a spectacular four-car collision on Route 209 north of Ellenville, Ellenville state police said.

Officers said Ronald Bennett, 29, was lucky to be alive. They noted that his car was completed destroyed.

Troopers told The Freeman that Bennett was driving north when he stopped to turn left into a gas station. A truck, operated by Ade Gooch, 56, of Liberty, failed to stop and rammed the Bennett auto forcing it into the southbound lane, police stated.

Pushed into the opposite lane, Bennett's car struck the rear wheels of a tractor-trailer, police declared. The tractor-trailer, driven by Lynwood Dries, 33, of Pennsylvania, knocked Bennett's car into that of Alvin Lipton, 36, of Kerhonkson, who was also traveling south.

Bennett complained of a stiff neck.

Inn Operator Held on Charge
Robert Nuzzo, manager of Port Ewen's Tropical Inn, a nightspot located on Route 9W, was arrested early this morning and charged with selling liquor after hours, Highland state troopers report.

Nuzzo, appearing before Town of Esopus Justice of the Peace John Bever, pleaded innocent. He is scheduled to return before Judge Beaver at a later date, troopers said.

Police said Nuzzo was taken into custody at 4:20 a. m. People were still drinking in his establishment, arresting officers charged.

Dem Candidate For 12th Ward Scores Opponent

James G. Gardiner, Democratic candidate for alderman in Kingston's 12th Ward, said today, "If the residents of the 12th Ward would like to try efficient, progressive, and personal representation for at least a year, then I hope they will give me their support on Election Day."

Hitting out at the present alderman, Republican John L. Machione, Gardiner asked the ward residents, "During the past six years has our alderman kept us informed about issues that affect us; has our alderman even requested any improvements for our ward—or even our city; has our alderman shown any consideration for the people he represents?"

The Democratic-Liberal challenger also asked, "During the past six weeks has our alderman even bothered to visit his constituents and explain why he is seeking reelection?"

Gardiner then declared, "The obvious answer to these questions is definitely no," and he went on to say that, "If the residents of the 12th Ward are satisfied with this type of representation then they should return my opponent to his Common Council seat."

"I sincerely believe that it is the moral obligation of an alderman to act according to the wishes of his constituents. I pledge to meet monthly with 12th Ward residents," Gardiner said, adding, "to keep people advised on all important matters, and I pledge that the people of the 12th Ward will be my first concern."

Tobin Packing Near Accord

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Tentative agreement on the major issues in a month-long strike at the Tobin Packing Co. in suburban Colonie was announced early today.

State Mediator Harry Livingston told a reporter the "major differences have been settled tentatively" for most of the company's 800 employees, represented by the Independent Employees Union.

Terms for drivers, Mechanics and office workers still had to be worked out, Livingston added.

He said he hoped further negotiations today would enable union members to vote on the accord Sunday.

Terms of the agreement were not disclosed.

The strike began Oct. 2 over wages and working conditions. Labor and management officials had met with Livingston for 12 hours Thursday and 14 hours Friday.

"What's the Dream, Kitty Duval"

Back in those not-so-distant but somehow rapidly dimming days when people took their politics far more seriously, their movies with a cast of thousands, and their dramas based on The Great American Dream, The Time of Your Life bowed on Broadway. First presented in 1939, it won for its author, William Saroyan, the Critics Circle Award and the Pulitzer Prize.

Now this American classic will be revived by Ninety Miles Off Broadway as the big fall production for 1967. Rehearsals are currently underway and performances will be at the Duzine School in New Paltz on Nov. 30, Dec 1 and 2 at 8:30 p. m.

Time of Your Life, as those with long memories know, is a delightful portrayal of a group of bizarre unfortunates who inhabit a San Francisco waterfront saloon. "I believe dreams more than statistics," says one bemused character . . . suggesting to some modern day readers that the play is pre-beatnik in philosophy.

The Ninety Miles Off Broadway company, however, prefers to believe that the play is many things to many people. And it well may be, for it is a sentimental comedy that captures, in addition to humor, the aggressive mood of the 1930's. It has been lauded as a social fable turning away from society, yet brimming over with infectious humor.

The Comforts of Dreams

Today's sociologists and historians are prone to the opinion that Americans wanted comforting drama rather than disturbing realism in the '30s. It is their theory that a dream — any sincere, well-intentioned dream — was what attracted audiences to the theatre.

Highlights of Africa Costume Show at New Paltz

UTILIZING THE CUSTOMS, LEGENDS AND COLORFUL sociological and religious influences of ancient and modern day Africa, State University College at New Paltz brought its 10-day Africa Festival to a close this week. There was little voodoo in the multitude of activities and events which went into making up the festival, but the constant "Conversation of the Drums" provided the background for a wealth of artistic, musical and dramatic presentations with the African continent itself as the keynote. One of the highlights of the mammoth event came Sunday night when "African Safari" bowed onstage. Safari was an intriguing, live show of male and female native costumes from 12 African countries. To bring the audience up-to-date, the show also included American clothing of the '60s which had been strongly influenced by Africa's bold, spectacular designs, currently setting fashion trends across the globe. Twenty African and American students at Paltz modeled the traditional and contemporary clothing shown, and three of them parade across TEMPO'S page above. The costumes selected by our photographer illustrate the intricate use of embroidery and sunburst colors. Drums, bare feet, sandals, a sheathed machete, golden earrings, high heels, knee length trousers, ankle length skirts — slit and unslit — and vivid prints all contribute to the mingling panorama of old and new. Safari brought a native fair atmosphere to the stage of the College Theatre . . . and, as for the Africa Festival itself, it was just one weeklong carnival.

Unusual Talents at Bard Expo

The Bard Craftsman's Exposition and Sale which opens Nov. 10 will not be an ordinary display of handcrafted objects. Care has been taken to make it a rare exhibit of talent, with some artists traveling many miles to participate.

Arthur Sennett, a potter who lives and works in Potsdam, N. Y., has won numerous awards, among them the first prize in this year's New York State crafts competition. His work is sold at America House in New York and has been shown in galleries in Buffalo, Rochester and Cleveland. Sennett's pottery has extraordinary workmanship and beauty, and some of it, experts agree, will eventually show up in museum collections.

Richard Crane of Woodstock, who will be showing and selling his work at the Bard show, took third place in a global competition of metal crafts. The collages of Hal Boyer, Saugerties, have been exhibited in New York and have won numerous prizes. Mrs. Fitzhugh Bostwick of Annandale has won ribbons with her expertly woven materials. She will also be demonstrating her technique at the loom during the Bard exhibit. Erica Ducornet, whose decorated stones will be available for sale, has just finished illustrating a new edition of Beauty and the Beast to be published by Knopf next spring. Heinz and Elizabeth Bertelsmann, both on the Bard faculty, are gifted photographers who will be exhibiting and offering for sale some of their abstract color photographs. Their work has been seen in many two-man shows in New York and on the west coast, and has been purchased by the Metropolitan Museum of Art and the Museum of Modern Art for their permanent collections.

Part of the profits from the Exposition will go into a gift of select art books for the Bard Art Library. There will be a large variety of handcrafted objects on sale including silver, jewelry, pottery, hand-mirrors, lamps, decorated linens, woven materials, hanging planters, papier mache jewelry, with prices starting as low as a dollar.

The Bard Craftsman's Exhibition and Sale will begin Friday, Nov. 10, at 11 a. m. and will run for three days, through Sunday night at 5 o'clock, at the Procter Art Center, Bard College campus, Annandale - on - Hudson, off Route 9G. Signs starting at the 9G-199 intersection will help newcomers find their way to the exhibition.

Journal Accepts 'Critique'

A critique of Tennessee Williams' play, The Glass Menagerie, written by an Honors English II class at Roy C. Ketcham Senior High School, Wappingers Falls, will be published in The English Journal. EJ is the official publication of the National Council of Teachers of English; is compiled at the College of Education, University of Hawaii, Honolulu.

In notifying Dennis J. Hannan, head of the Wappingers English department, that he would be happy to publish the critical piece, entitled "Through A Glass Starkly," editor Richard S. Alm commented:

"Usually, I shy away from accepting the work of students for a number of sound reasons. But your students have written well about a widely-read (and acted) American play."

Ralph Capasso, instructor of the 1966-67 class which wrote the article and whose remarks will open the EJ presentation, told TEMPO this week that each member of the class participated in the essay. Said Capasso: "In the course of our discussion, I'm afraid that inductive techniques and the polite amenities became somewhat strained, but our student editing committee was somehow able to come up with a consistent position paper on Williams' play." Committee members included Francis Menton, Jean Schab, and Nina Young, now members of this year's senior class.

Area Dealers, Artisans at Garden

As the old Madison Square Garden closes its doors on its exposition of all time in that venerable arena, local personalities will be on hand to bid it adieu.

The Garden says farewell to the public with the annual National Arts and Antiques Festival, holding forth for seven days from Nov. 15-21 and, among the more than 300 collectors, dealers and country stores to be featured in the center arena of the mammoth Garden Exposition Hall will be many from Ulster and Dutchess counties.

Karl F. Wede, whose Saugerties shop is a local landmark, will exhibit his rare antique models of ships and sailing vessel. Intricate in detail are his eye-catching reproductions of a Dutch admiralty yacht of 1750, Napoleonic prisoner of war in bone and ivory, U. S. frigate Constitution, Grand Banks fishing schooner, tea clipper ship and the old river boat, "Robert E. Lee."

Room by Ordway

Among the distinguished interior designers who will decorate model rooms at the Arts and Antiques Festival will be David Ordway, of the Village Store and Hyde Park Antiques. He'll combine traditional antiques with the "antiques of tomorrow," handcrafted by contemporary masters, in his model domicile.

Among area craftsmen (150 from 10 counties are showing) will be Ronald Burke of Rock Tavern, who will exhibit some of the most unusual mirrors ever displayed in the area of art-crafts.

The festival, unique in the annuals of antique shows, will present for the first time in the U. S. an exhibit of the "antiques of tomorrow" in conjunction with the show's traditionally famed acre of antiques. The upcoming double header will feature not only the cream of treasures which have survived 60 centuries, but a complete area of contemporary art-crafts from major cultural centers around the nation.

Guild Elects Margo Taylor

Newly elected president of the Woodstock Guild of Craftsmen is Margo Taylor, daughter of the late artist-photographer Konrad Cramer, who served in that position for many years. Mrs. Taylor was named recently as the Guild members met in conjunction with the Craft Exhibition which has just closed at the Guild Gallery in Woodstock. The annual meeting is traditionally held at Craft Exhibition Time.

Mrs. Taylor, long active in civic endeavors locally, is expected to bring to the presidency the same guiding spirit as that of her father, who helped form policies and principles of the organization. Because of the high esteem in which he was held, the Guild now gives an annual award for merit in the crafts in his name.

In voting for the other offices, former president Percy Warner was elected to serve as first vice-president; Isabel Doughty as second vice-president; Mrs. Jerry Parke as secretary, replacing Dolly Rose; and Ken Osterhoudt won re-election as treasurer. Five new Board members named include: Mrs. Taylor, Osterhoudt, Mrs. Parke, Ed Van Westerborg and Thomas Dendy. All were elected to fill terms expiring this year. Other Board members are: Kotty Wangler, Max Houghland, John Sharp, Miss Doughty, Warner, Arthur Hansen and Harry Schmidt.

The new president has already appointed a committee to arrange and plan programs and activities for the coming year to augment the educational and crafts stimulation program of the organization for both area craftsmen and the public.

The concept of the festival is described as the revival of the Pantechnicon, the presentation of the works of artists and craftsmen which was an annual event in ancient Greece, contributing to the artistry which flowered then.

City and Country

Hundreds of collectors, galleries and antiques dealers — from New York's teeming Madison Avenue and Third Avenue areas — along with hundreds of suburban and country stores, and small specialists working from home . . . they'll all be a part of the center arena scene in the Garden Hall.

Among the more than one million objects on display will be heirloom jewelry, automata, Canton china, Wedgwood, Lowestoft, Gaudy Dutch, Irish Belleek, art glass from America and abroad, pewter, country painted tin, military accoutrements, and enamels and coins. There'll also be Agateware, fire tools, Sheffield plate, daguerreotypes, Currier and Ives, folk art, statuary and garden ornaments, early lighting devices, needlework, examples of the wrought art of bygone blacksmiths, and historical buttons. And let's not forget the steins and rare bottles, Georgian and Victorian wood pieces, clocks, mirrors, rare books, dime novels, jade carvings, snuff bottles, iron kitchen utensils, scrimshaw and whaling artifacts, wood panels, antique maps and historical documents.

Autographed letters, bronze figures and marquetry and old brass will appeal to collectors. Browsers who just came to look will enjoy the unique private collections on view—some of which feature perfume bottles, pewter work covering 400 years and including wine flagons, Tiffany lamps, and rare pocket watches displaying Oriental pearls and precious stones in delicate hand painted scenes.

Pull out and stand up antique Valentines will find a place alongside jeweled knives, daggers and swords, pre-Columbian artifacts, American Indian and Western memorabilia, and ecclesiastical collections. There will also be demonstrations of enameling, candling and other arts by specialists.

Mid-Hudson Ballet Does "Match Girl"

The annual "Invitational Ballet" down Poughkeepsie way has been set for Sunday evening, Nov. 19. The Mid-Hudson Regional Ballet Company is once again presenting this gala fete as part of the cultural enrichment program of Dutchess County.

There will be no charge to the public but balletomanes should bear in mind that the Poughkeepsie High School auditorium seats only slightly more than 1,000 people and they should make an effort to come early.

The "Invitational Ballet" has proved highly popular in the past, attracting theatrical luminaries and culturally hungry audiences. It has also served to bring this particular art form to many who might never have otherwise seen a ballet.

Walt Biscardi, president of the Mid-Hudson Ballet Company, says the group will be performing "The Little Match Girl," that delightful but oh-so-sad tale based on a story by Hans Christian Andersen. Choreography will be by Estelle and Alfonso, the company's artistic directors.

Planned for later this year are guest performances by Westchester Ballet Company, well known for its work at White Plains County Center; The Delaware Ballet Company, an outstanding group of artists from New Jersey; The Newburgh Ballet Guild in a return engagement with all new works; The Middletown Ballet Company with an excellent repertoire.

Biscardi told TEMPO this week that producing a program of this calibre entails mammoth work for his local company in the planning of an entire day for visiting companies. Associate members serve as a welcoming committee; prepare lunches, dinners and receptions; and work in cooperation with Poughkeepsie's Chamber of Commerce and city officials. Says Biscardi, "A program of this scope would never be possible without the necessary assistance of patrons, donors and sponsors."

Painting, Folklore And Disney Honored

Next year U. S. postage stamps will commemorate a variety of things and people—from Walt Disney to art and culture . . . and probably much to the delight of collectors all over the world.

Among the commemoratives to be issued in 1968 will be one tribute to Walt Disney, the creator of many beloved cartoon characters. Disney, who died last Dec. 15, was the recipient of 700 honors and awards including the Presidential Freedom Medal.

There will also be 1968 stamps of one subject each in the American Painting series and the American Folklore series.

DESTINATION MONTREAL — The Kings Men, that harmonizing hum-alonging chorus from the Kingston Chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barbershop Singing in America, is in Montreal, Canada, today. They're competing in the Northeastern District chorus competition; hoping to be selected the winning group to represent the district at the international contest in Pittsburgh next June. Readying the repertoire (L-R) are: Al Roos, Norm Franz, John Halbohm and Dan Murphy, members of the Montreal Committee. (Freeman photo by Kruh).

Folk Singing Patons In Two-Night Stand

Sandy and Caroline Paton, folk music collectors and recording artists, will present a concert of traditional folk songs and ballads in this area on Friday and Saturday, Nov. 10 and 11.

The Patons, who favor presentation of folk music in the authentic and spontaneous style in which it was created, will give concerts both nights at 8:30 p.m. at the Unitarian Fellowship, 67 South Randolph Avenue, Poughkeepsie.

Their program will include a number of songs and melodies they heard and tape-recorded in Vermont while living there over the past five years. They will also offer well-known and little-known songs from various parts of the U.S. and some Scottish and English ballads learned while living in England.

The couple, who recently moved to Sharon, Conn., met in Berkeley, Calif., in 1957 where Sandy was performing and Caroline working for the university. After their marriage, they traveled through the country and lived in England — researching, locating, and recording folk songs and melodies as they encountered them.

In 1961, they moved to Huntington, Vt., and formed their own folk record company, Folk-Legacy-Records Inc. The company has since issued 30 records, by other artists and one album by the Patons. Headquarters for the company is now in Sharon.

The Patons have appeared at the Newport Folk Festival, and at colleges, schools, and folk music clubs in various parts of the country. While they were living in Vermont, they sang before many local groups including one appearance before the members of the Vermont State Legislature.

Tickets for the Poughkeepsie concert can be had by calling Mrs. Richard Bird (462-0813) or Mrs. Ralph Bean (229-5883), or by writing to the Fellowship. A maximum of 175 persons will be permitted at each concert.

Bard Still Big Draw

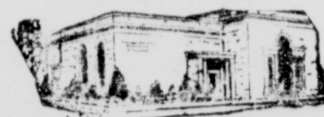

The four-play summer season of the American Shakespeare Festival grossed $681,813, an increase from $567,350 the previous year.

The biggest draw was "The Merchant of Venice" followed by "A Midsummer Night's Dream," "Antigone" and "Macbeth."

Area Dealers, Artisans at Garden

As the old Madison Square Garden closes its doors on its exposition of all time in that venerable arena, local personalities will be on hand to bid it adieu.

The Garden says farewell to the public with the annual National Arts and Antiques Festival, holding forth for seven days from Nov. 15-21 and, among the more than 300 collectors, dealers and country stores to be featured in the center arena of the mammoth Garden Exposition Hall will be many from Ulster and Dutchess counties.

Karl F. Wede, whose Saugerties shop is a local landmark, will exhibit his rare antique models of ships and sailing vessel. Intricate in detail are his eye-catching reproductions of a Dutch admiralty yacht of 1750, Napoleonic prisoner of war in bone and ivory, U. S. frigate Constitution, Grand Banks fishing schooner, tea clipper ship and the old river boat, "Robert E. Lee."

Room by Ordway

Among the distinguished interior designers who will decorate model rooms at the Arts and Antiques Festival will be David Ordway, of the Village Store and Hyde Park Antiques. He'll combine traditional antiques with the "antiques of tomorrow," handcrafted by contemporary masters, in his model domicile.

Among area craftsmen (150 from 10 counties are showing) will be Ronald Burke of Rock Tavern, who will exhibit some of the most unusual mirrors ever displayed in the area of art-crafts.

The festival, unique in the annals of antique shows, will present for the first time in the U. S. an exhibit of the "antiques of tomorrow" in conjunction with the show's traditionally famed acre of antiques. The upcoming double header will feature not only the cream of treasures which have survived 60 centuries, but a complete area of contemporary art-crafts from major cultural centers around the nation.

Guild Elects Margo Taylor

Newly elected president of the Woodstock Guild of Craftsmen is Margo Taylor, daughter of the late artist-photographer Konrad Cramer, who served in that position for many years. Mrs. Taylor was named recently as the Guild members met in conjunction with the Craft Exhibition which has just closed at the Guild Gallery in Woodstock. The annual meeting is traditionally held at Craft Exhibition Time.

Mrs. Taylor, long active in civic endeavors locally, is expected to bring to the presidency the same guiding spirit as that of her father, who helped form policies and principles of the organization. Because of the high esteem in which he was held, the Guild now gives an annual award for merit in the crafts in his name.

In voting for the other offices, former president Percy Warner was elected to serve as first vice president; Isabel Doughty as second vice-president; Mrs. Jerry Parke as secretary, replacing Dolly Rose; and Ken Osterhoudt won re-election as treasurer. Five new Board members named include: Mrs. Taylor, Osterhoudt, Mrs. Parke, Ed Van Westerborg and Thomas Dendy. All were elected to fill terms expiring this year. Other Board members are: Kotty Wangler, Max Houghland, John Sharp, Miss Doughty, Warner, Arthur Hansen and Harry Schmidt.

The new president has already appointed a committee to arrange and plan programs and activities for the coming year to augment the educational and crafts stimulation program of the organization for both area craftsmen and the public.

The concept of the festival is described as the revival of the Pantechnicon, the presentation of the works of artists and craftsmen which was an annual event in ancient Greece, contributing to the artistry which flowered then.

City and Country

Hundreds of collectors, galleries and antiques dealers — from New York's teeming Madison Avenue and Third Avenue areas — along with hundreds of suburban and country stores, and small specialists working from home . . . they'll all be a part of the center arena scene in the Garden Hall.

Among the more than one million objects on display will be heirloom jewelry, automata, Canton china, Wedgwood, Lowestoft, Gaudy Dutch, Irish Belleek, art glass from America and abroad, pewter, country painted tin, military accoutrements, and enamels and coins. There'll also be Agateware, fire tools, Sheffield plate, daguerreotypes, Currier and Ives, folk art, statuary and garden ornaments, early lighting devices, needlework, examples of the wrought art of bygone blacksmiths, and historical buttons. And let's not forget the steins and rare bottles, Georgian and Victorian wood pieces, clocks, mirrors, rare books, dime novels, jade carvings, snuff bottles, iron kitchen utensils, scrimshaw and whaling artifacts, wood panels, antique maps and historical documents.

Autographed letters, bronze figures and marquetry and old brass will appeal to collectors. Browsers who just came to look will enjoy the unique private collections on view—some of which feature perfume bottles, pewter work covering 400 years and including wine flagons, Tiffany lamps, and rare pocket watches displaying Oriental pearls and precious stones in delicate hand painted scenes.

Pull out and stand up antique Valentines will find a place alongside jeweled knives, daggers and swords, pre-Columbian artifacts, American Indian and Western memorabilia, and ecclesiastical collections. There will also be demonstrations of enameling, candling and other arts by specialists.

Art...Music... Wines And Cheese for HVPS

That slightly overindulgent mouse in the cartoon drawing accompanying this article reminds those of us who are more mannerly that the Second Annual Wine and Cheese Tasting Benefit arrives on the calendar this weekend. Gala event will aid the Hudson Valley Philharmonic Society and will be held tomorrow, Nov. 5, from 5 to 7 p. m. in the Crystal Room of Kingston's Governor Clinton Hotel.

Donations to the party will include food, drink, musical entertainment and exhibit of paintings. Tickets are still available from Dr. Richard Messina, Saugerties; Robert Schneller, Kingston; or Jon Doyle, Community Theatre.

Like our overindulgent mouse friend, who at least didn't forget to wear his tie to the party, area residents attending will have opportunity to sample some of the fanciest cheeses and finest imported wines on the market. In addition, they'll be contributing to the coffers of the local Philharmonic at one and the same time.

In addition to the novel menu and music, the exhibition of paintings will feature the works of Brock Brokenshaw, Stefan Lokos, James Kamen and Gladys Brodsky Plate.

Repeat Performance

Brokenshaw, the deft draftsman whose one man show highlighted last year's Wine and Cheese Tasting gala, will be showing some of his most recent work. Vibrant and vital new canvases by the Shady artist will be seen in a special selection of oils and drawings, geared specifically for presentation at the party.

A Brock show last spring at Loring Art Gallery on Long Island drew critical acclaim; moved the reviewer of one local paper to salute his nudes as "odes to eternal youth."

The show also drew praise for the textural totality and skillful linear perfection of his work. In late summer, local residents saw the powerful impact of his key color tones at the annual exhibit of his work at Woodstock's Lewis Gallery.

The artist, who resides in a 200-year-old farmhouse in Shady was born in Cornwall, England; educated in India and Britain; had his first one-man show at the age of 19; resided for various periods in Paris Antwerp and Spain; and served in the Black Watch regiment of the Canadian Army during World War II.

Sometimes called an avant garde abstractionist, he is a prodigious but never a repetitious painter; works in oil, water color, mixed media and ink. His talent has been seen in a variety of moods, from figure paintings to landscapes, seascapes, animals and children — all of which evoke a multi-dimensional charm and subtle use of color. His paintings and drawings are found in many local collections as well as others in Europe, Canada and other parts of the U.S.

Man of Many Talents

Painter-musician Lokos, formerly of Saugerties and now of Woodstock, is a native of Hungary and the son of a Protestant minister. Following schooling at the reformed Gimnasium of Miskolc, he served with the military and studied at Budapest's Royal Academy of Fine Arts. He has also delved into the study of philosophy, law and music, and is an accomplished concert violinist.

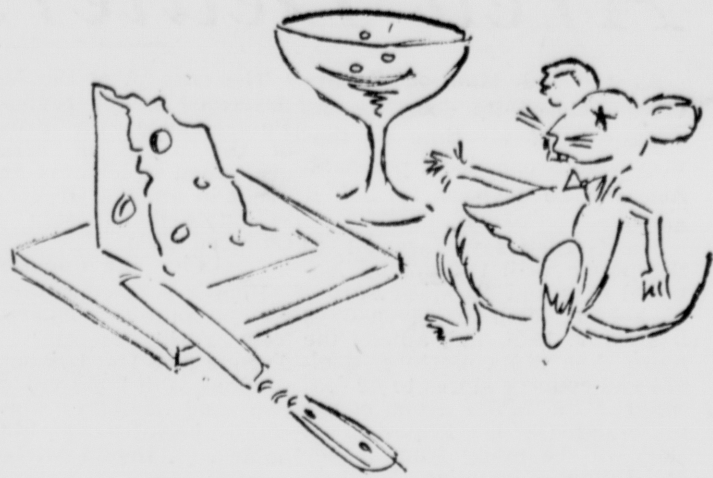

After being recalled to military service, he escaped from a Russian prison camp, and via Rumania, Hungary, Austria, Italy, Syria and Lebanon, eventually arrived in the U.S. to become a citizen in 1960.

He has devoted full time to his painting since then and has had exhibitions in Budapest, Warsaw, Vienna, Rome, Damascus, Beirut, New York City and locally. He owns his own gallery in Woodstock and has conducted private and group classes in painting.

Gladys Brodsky Plate is a long time resident of Woodstock, a consistent awards winner, and has taught in the elementary schools of Catskill and the Onteora Central Schools, as well as private adult classes in Florida.

A native of Brooklyn, she is a graduate of Temple University's Tyler School of Fine Arts, and has studied at the Art Students League and in France, Italy, Spain. Awards from a lengthy list of foundations and museums have come her way, and her landscapes and figure paintings have been seen in one-man and group shows in the South and East.

Married to artist Walter Plate, an associate professor at RPI, she has recently turned to executing murals, and her work is represented in the collections of various museums, art centers and private owners.

Work Seen Recently

Kamen, the final exhibitor at the Philharmonic party, recently showed his work at the Artcraft Gallery here in Kingston. A resident of Hurley, his one-man show there was on view during September.

A skillful artist, he also teaches art at J. Watson Bailey Junior High School here and his paintings are in many private collections throughout the country. One such work was presented to Princess Beatrix of Holland when she visited Hurley in the fall of 1959.

Kamen's landscapes have been praised for their sensitiveness to the light and colors in nature. Strongly influenced by artist John Pike, with whom he has studied for several years, Kamen often paints mountain scenes and portraits of his three daughters.

A former Air Force photographer, he is a graduate of Florida Southern College; has worked as a commercial artist and Rondout Valley Central teacher.

A chance to view the prolific talents of all these fine artists, to listen to symphonic and chamber music, and to sample rare cheeses and wines comes with the price of the donation to Sunday's Tasting Benefit. Public support is encouraged for this worthwhile project, and TEMPO urges all to attend.

'Minim' Music Expert Brings Discs to Paltz

A Britisher who became the world's leading authority on African music and who is now closely-tied to the Broadway musical hit, "Wait A Minim," is currently presenting a series of lecture-demonstrations at State University College, New Paltz.

Dr. Hugh Tracey, whose sons conceived the "Wait A Minim" production and are touring it in the U.S., interprets African folk music and song in a number of public presentations and lectures to college classes. Films, slides, and records accompany his talks.

Dr. Tracey's kinship with "Minim" long-playing African-based musical, is not limited to siring its creators. One of the African songs he recorded and studied is the show's opener, and a number of others are used in the performance.

He started collecting songs of African workmen in the cotton fields of Rhodesia in the early 1920's; has since gathered thousands of items and published over 3,000 on records. He brought to the U.S. 2,000 of these discs on central and southern Africa folk music.

Music is one of the most important public opinion makers in Africa, Tracey says. People there "sing about each other" to communicate ideas about what is going on around them. Since the majority of the people neither read nor write, music is used to teach manners, to repeat the history and legends of the people and to carry on the culture and customs of the individual tribes, he says.

One such musical legend is similar to the story of the Israelites crossing the Red Sea, except that in the African myth the Zambesi river was the waterway which parted miraculously.

Dr. Tracey will also lecture at Northwestern University in Chicago, where his sons will be with the "Minim" show, and the University of California.

In 1961, he toured 26 universities throughout the U.S. under government sponsorship he founded the International Library of African Music 20 years ago and today it is an organization of several hundred scholars for the study of the nature and significance of folk-music of Africa. He also publishes the African Music Annual Journal which receives contributions from specialists in a variety of symbolic arts. Andrew and Paul Tracey, the "Wait a Minim" creators, picked the title for the musical from the word "minim," a half-note in music. Dr. Tracey said that while the show was being built suggested changes frequently were introduced by an exclamatory "Wait a minute!" The twist of that phrase gave birth to the title idea.

Williams Play

NEW YORK (AP) — The new Tennessee Williams play "The Kingdom of Earth" has been added to David Merrick's production schedule, bringing to six his current season lineup.

The drama, to be directed tentatively by Jose Quintero, is pegged for February arrival. Other Merrick exhibits are "Keep It in the Family," "Rosencrantz and Guildenstern Are Dead," "How Now, Dow Jones," "The Happy Time" and "Facade." The latter three are musicals.

Tsuru Crafts

A brass and copper exhibit of handicrafted work by Seyeu Tsuru is on display in the entrance hall of Mount Saint Mary College, Newburgh. The public is welcome to view the art pieces.

Tsuru, a Newburgh resident for the past 50 years, was born in Japan over 80 years ago. He is drawn to ships and specializes in models of sailing vessels, ferry boats and Japanese fishing sloops.

He uses simple tools and makes each piece entirely by hand, including the screws. Working 12 to 14 hours a day "keeps me going," the artist says.

Before coming to the U. S. at the turn of the century, Tsuru studied engineering in Japan and built several bridges with his brother. Because of international laws he was unable to continue his work as an engineer in his native country.

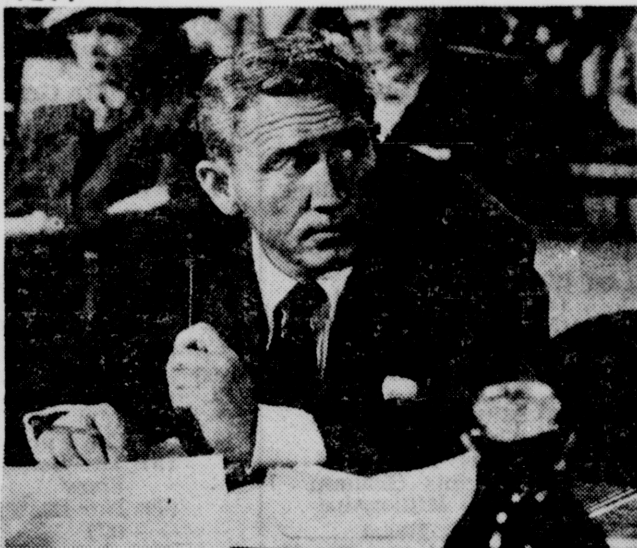

The exhibit is the second of several monthly displays at the college.

MOVIES

If you saw "Up the Down Staircase" and liked it, then see "To Sir, With Love" . . . at least once. Both are similar in plot, and it's this reviewer's firm belief that if Sandy Dennis (Staircase) and Sidney Poitier (Sir) were on the Board of Education, there just wouldn't be any "juvenile delinquency."

Acclaimed by all who have seen it, the new Sidney Poitier picture is about 1967, about a teacher, and about the reckless teens of London who teach him the principles of real, raw living. Poitier plays Mark Thackeray, a trained engineer who becomes a teacher when unable to find work in his profession. His decision to tame his class of roughneck boys and mod-garbed girls by treating them as adults and ladies, ever-so gradually imparts standards of decency, manners and responsibility to the rebellious group. Poitier portrays a novice teacher "hip" enough to make the unruly students "cool" it and call him, "Sir" . . . and believe it or not, make them love it.

Starring with Poitier in this award-deserving flick, is Susy Kendall as Gillian, a honey blonde English girl who, as a teacher in the same school, helps him to overcome the student antagonism.

dominates the "ladies" in the class, turns in a memorable performance as Pamela Dare.

Introduced in her first movie role as Barbara Pegg, the dynamic mini-skirted "live-wire" of the class, is "Lulu," British recording and television favorite.

Produced by James Clavell, the technicolor Columbia Pictures release offers four hit tunes including the title song, "Off and Running," "Stealing My Love From Me," and "It's Getting Harder All the Time," all played by the "Mindbenders," popular British recording team.

After "Lilies of the Field," for which he won an Academy Award as best actor of the year, and "A Patch of Blue," Sidney Poitier might have been asked, "Where do you go from here?" "To Sir, With Love" is the finest, most heart-warming answer he could have given.

The realism of the picture must be attributed to the fact that the author, E. R. Braithwaite, lived the story himself when he taught in an East End London school. One hesitates in this day of "Bonnie and Clyde" worship to mention that a movie has a moral, but the lesson the author so beautifully puts across is, if you look for and expect to find the "best" in someone, you will not be disappointed.

There were no "bit" parts in "To Sir, With Love." If any one of the players had been omitted (from the colored boy who lost his mom, to "Fats" who was no athlete) it would have been a decided loss and the public would have been the loser.

Dramatically speaking, Poitier has "reformed" considerably since playing the rebellious high school student in "The Blackboard Jungle." On the opposite side of the fence in "Sir," he now curbs the same tendencies in his students. In his own words, he did not "become an actor by plan, but in order to find expression."

For theatre-goers who enjoy smiling through tears, and who "feel" the moments of touching silences which shout louder than any words, "To Sir, With Love" is a must. And with "Sir" and "In the Heat of the Night" behind him, it looks as though this year will be 19-Sidney Poitier.

At Kingston's Mayfair Theatre, where the film opened Wednesday for two weeks, a statement (overheard Thursday evening in the line-up waiting for the second performance), summed up the movie's very personal impact in one short sentence. Said the anonymous speaker, who had apparently seen it elsewhere and more than on one occasion: "This is positively the LAST time I'm coming to see it."

Turandot-Fable for Theatre

A spectacular production of "Turandot," tragi-comic fable for the theatre by Carlo Gozzi, will be presented Nov. 8-11 by the New Paltz Players at State University College Theater, New Paltz, as the drama group's major fall production.

Based on a tale from the Thousand and One Nights, this family entertainment focuses in on the fabulous Chinese court of the cruel Princess Turandot and the antic characters of the Italian Commedia dell'Arte.

Curtain time for the nightly performances Wednesday through Saturday is 8:30 p. m.

Reserved tickets are available at the College Theater Box Office daily from 10 to 4.

The sumptuous audience fare is directed as his first Paltz presentation by Dr. Alfred Staudmanis, associate professor of theatre arts. The glittering sets of Pekin have been designed by designer-in-residence Raymond T. Kurdt with the colorful Italian and Chinese costumes done by David Roberts, junior art major, of Syracuse. The antic movements of the Commedia clowns and the pageantry of the Chinese court are the work of Miss Vija Vetra, of the Vetra Dance Studio, New York City.

Toni Tunney as the Princess Turandot heads the cast of 37 students which includes Bernard Bartz, Highland, as Princess Calaf; Kevin Barkausen as the Emperor Altoum; Dennis Brida, King Timur, and March Salzman, Barbara Hyslop, and Kammy Gray in the court. Commedia characters are played by Gio Cerreta, Richard Garrison, Mike Horowitz, and Wally McGuire. Ann Kubik and Richard Casselman are among the brilliant array of Doctors of the Divan, Eunuchs, Soldiers, Slaves and Zannies.

Africa Moves to Ashokan

A State University of New York invitational conference, hosted by the University's New Paltz College at its Ashokan Reservoir camp last Saturday and Sunday, drew 75 SUNY faculty members and administrators from throughout the State to examine "Current Approaches and Methods in the Study of Africa South of the Sahara."

Lecturers from Dartmouth College, Columbia, McGill, and Boston Universities, IBM, and New Paltz discussed Africa Studies in relation to geography, anthropology, sociology, music, literature, computer research, and interrelationships in the study of the African continent.

The conference was one in a State University series, "Conversations in the Disciplines," designed to provide a forum for the examination of new trends in various fields of study and teaching, to review promising research findings, and to acquaint University faculty members with professional developments throughout the State system.

Among guests participating were James Fernandez, Dartmouth anthropologist; Columbia University geographer William A. Hance; McGill University sociologist Peter Gutkind;

Daniel McCall, Boston University; Hugh Tracey, African Music Society, and Martin Faherty, IBM. Session moderators were Glenn A. Olds, University Dean, International Studies and World Affairs, SUNY; Jay Walker Geneseo; Claude Welch, Buffalo; Fred Tickner, Albany; Robert Stevenson, Stony Brook; Nasser Sharif, SUNY International Center; and Richard Greenfield, University of Ghana, Africa; and Parbati Sircar and Mphiwa Mbatha, both of New Paltz.

New Paltz lecturers were Africa sociologist George O. Roberts and Austin J. Shelton, specialist on African literature.

Sergeant Musgrave's Dance at Bard

The second production this season at Bard College Theatre of Drama and Dance, "Sergeant Musgrave's Dance" by John Arden, will open tonight and run through Tuesday evening November 7.

The play, called by its author "An Unhistorical Parable," is set in a mining town in the north of England during a time of labor troubles at home and unpopular war abroad. Although its period is a deliberately vague time during the nineteenth century, it was written during Britain's engagement with the problems of the Greeks and Turks in Cyprus, and it has a similar immediacy with the current question of Vietnam. Arden says of the play, "I have endeavored to write about the violence that is so evident in the world, and to do so through a story that is partly one of wish-fulfillment." The Bard production is directed by David Rieff Crabbs.

Admission to the Bard College Theatre is free, and all seats are reserved. Curtain time is 8:30 p. m. Reservations may be made by telephoning the Bard Theatre, weekdays from 3 to 5 p. m.

The Magic Wood Offers Poetry

Selections of poetry and prose readings will compose the program to be presented by the Writers' Guild of the Mid-Hudson Valley tomorrow. Entitled The Magic Wood, the special program will be held Sunday, Nov. 5, at 10 a. m. at the Unitarian Fellowship, South Randolph Street, Poughkeepsie.

area will read from their own works. Among those featured will be: Irene Cassidy, Eve Rizbo, Rosalie Orlando, Mil Blake, June Canino, Roberta Collier and Sidney Reitman. Also, Jeanne Bakey, Maude Ulrich, Frances Ettinger, Mary Ross Welch and Karen Gaudent.

The public is cordially invited to attend.

HOMO DERELICTO, as expressed in this 67-inch, sheet bronze figure in 1964-65 by Ludvik Durbachek, wrought its impact on upwards of 1,000 persons who poured into the State University of New York's opening of its new art gallery at Albany recently. The first night crowd, which included some half-dozen Ulster County artists, seemed to agree the newly dedicated Fine Arts building is extraordinarily impressive. There were kudos for Architect Edward Durrell Stone, who was also present at Gov. Rockefeller's side, and praise for the feeling of freedom and space the gallery gives. For the premiere, Rockefeller lent his own private collection, of which Homo Derelicto is a part.

MOVIES

If you saw "Up the Down Staircase" and liked it, then see "To Sir, With Love" . . . at least once. Both are similar in plot, and it's this reviewer's firm belief that if Sandy Dennis (Staircase) and Sidney Poitier (Sir) were on the Board of Education, there just wouldn't be any "juvenile delinquency."

Acclaimed by all who have seen it, the new Sidney Poitier picture is about 1967, about a teacher, and about the reckless teens of London who teach him the principles of real, raw living. Poitier plays Mark Thackeray, a trained engineer who becomes a teacher when unable to find work in his profession. His decision to tame his class of roughneck boys and mod-garbed girls by treating them as adults and ladies, ever-so gradually imparts standards of decency, manners and responsibility to the rebellious group. Poitier portrays a novice teacher "hip" enough to make the unruly students "cool" it and call him, "Sir" . . . and believe it or not, make them love it.

Starring with Poitier in this award-deserving flick, is Susy Kendall as Gillian, a honey blonde English girl who, as a teacher in the same school, helps him to overcome the student antagonism.

Christian Roberts as the "ring leader" of the East End boys, is convinced during a boxing match that he still has a bit to learn. Judy Geeson, who dominates the "ladies" in the class, turns in a memorable performance as Pamela Dare.

Introduced in her first movie role as Barbara Pegg, the dynamic mini-skirted "live-wire" of the class, is "Lulu," British recording and television favorite.

Produced by James Clavell, the technicolor Columbia Pictures release offers four hit tunes including the title song, "Off and Running," "Stealing My Love From Me," and "It's Getting Harder All the Time," all played by the "Mindbenders," popular British recording team.

After "Lilies of the Field," for which he won an Academy Award as best actor of the year, and "A Patch of Blue," Sidney Poitier might have been asked, "Where do you go from here?" "To Sir, With Love" is the finest, most heart-warming answer he could have given.

The realism of the picture must be attributed to the fact that the author, E. R. Braithwaite, lived the story himself when he taught in an East End London school. One hesitates in this day of "Bonnie and Clyde" worship to mention that a movie has a moral, but the lesson the author so beautifully puts across is, if you look for and expect to find the "best" in someone, you will not be disappointed.

There were no "bit" parts in "To Sir, With Love." If any one of the players had been omitted (from the colored boy who lost his mom, to "Fats" who was no athlete) it would have been a decided loss and the public would have been the loser.

Dramatically speaking, Poitier has "reformed" considerably since playing the rebellious high school student in "The Blackboard Jungle." On the opposite side of the fence in "Sir," he now curbs the same tendencies in his students. In his own words, he did not "become an

Setting a Box Office Record

Behind 8 Ball Productions, Ltd. A Protest Against Home Movies

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

The impossible has happened and it picked TEMPO'S environs in which to do it.

The implausibility of it all was hard to believe. Some 150 Ulsterites (and there would have been twice that number or more had there been room at the inn) happily parted with approximately $1,200 last Saturday night to sit through an hour or so of home movies.

At least the films boasted all the accoutrements of home movies. The men and women behind the cameras could just as well have been your next door neighbor of mine. The faces and actions of those being photographed resembled the man down the block or the housewife up the road. For background scenery, the lenses roamed over sections of easily recognizable local landscaping; utilized the living rooms of area homes as sets; paused on occasion upon the children of the adults involved; and drew for any costuming needed mostly from the closets of everyday living.

Still they bore so little resemblance to the typical home movie that most of those who had paid to see them must have entertained thoughts of consigning any such efforts of their own which might be stored around the house to the rubbish heap.

HUVREP Benefit

The occasion for this unusual box office stampede was a benefit evening for the new Hudson Valley Repertory Theatre. To aid the theatrical company in its desire to remain in this area as a non-profit regional theater, four local couples who have been making movies for fun since 1962 agreed to surrender whatever privacy they have maintained by opening their films to the public.

And the public responded with alacrity; poured into the Woodstock studio of famed illustrator John Pike where the films were shown, in droves. The only lure had been little more than the promise of possible entertainment by what was billed as "Woodstock's only film company" . . . and refreshments and dancing later. But entertained they were and, in the process, their response has definitely assured the repertory theatre of budgeting and planning a spring season in 1968.

There can be no argument that HUVREP deserved both the benefit (requiring the gargantuan arrangements efforts of some two dozen people) and the financial support of the benefit by the public. The company which gave two fall productions here during October, is an excellent one and contributes much to the community in entertainment and culture.

But deserving of praise, too, are those home movies and the men and women behind them. In protest against all home movies, they have made their own . . . and they are like no others ever seen before on the home screen.

The new approach to this not-so-old art is the brainchild of Eight Ball Productions, Ltd. Making up its membership are Haschi and Kurt Marek and Eleanor and Alex Semmler, of Zena; Jane and Abe Molyneaux and Penny and Eric Carlson, of Woodstock.

A Self-Conscious Art

This "family" of celluloid enthusiasts has managed to do something for photography which it seldom manages to do for itself. Their films strip the medium of its reputation for being the most self-conscious of the arts. The very act of aiming a camera from a tripod somehow has always called for glorification of some sort, it has always seemed to critics.

But it is improbable to think of Haschi Marek (who handled the camera and titles for Eight Ball's latest opus, "Marriage Under the Gallows") shoptalking with the other devotees involved about "our best shots" or voting on which still deserves the title of "picture of the week."

Eight Ball's shutterbugs bear no resemblance to that breed of home movie manufacturers who can usually be billed as the biggest bores on the block. Too often, they are prone to quibble over the results of retouching or to beg admiration for some "stunning picture" or other. Eight Ball knows how to communicate the sort of camaraderie photographers and film makers have in common, while avoiding the worst of its pitfalls.

Where other home movies simply focus on the little darlings in their cribs or high chairs; Dad playing ball with the kids on the beach last summer; or Fido chasing the neighbor's cat up a tree, Eight Ball manages the unusual. And does it without trying to prove that the moments of artistic creation with a camera come from hanging upside down by the heels to get a shot . . . or filming scenes through a knothole or cheesecloth curtain.

With lens focussed and shutter cocked, most home movie makers preserve scenes of such intrinsic graphic value as those showing mom peeling potatoes, or Junior as an indiscernible speck in mid-air between the side of the house and the snowman he's building. The home cameraman challenges the privacy of everyone in the family. Flashbulbs explode on a child in peaceful slumber, the unwary are taken by surprise in a variety of personal actions, and there's a man around to catch a woman with her hair rolled up in curls. The Leica in steady hands can be deadly in more ways than one as the predator stalks his prey . . . then forces his quarry to watch the results as the projector rolls in his darkened living room.

Audio-Visual Wealth

That very privacy is turned to hilarious use by Eight Ball and, in the audio-visual results, there are no unwilling subjects.

Credit for this goes to the members of the group and while they could indeed be any one's neighbors, they are far more talented individually than most of us.

Alexander Semmler, when he is not emoting for Eight Ball's cameras, is a distinguished composer and musician. Jane Molyneaux and Penny and Eric Carlson are professional singers who appeared together with Fred Waring and, since the ladies retired into motherhood, Eric has gone it alone with the Ray Charles Singers of Perry Como television fame and other groups. Haschi Marek is a scene designer who has done some of the finest work ever seen in the Hamburg Theatre, and her husband, Kurt, is an internationally known archaeologist-writer, who penned the best-selling "Gods, Graves and Scholars," among other critically acclaimed books. Eleanor Semmler and Abe Molyneaux bring a stage presence to their movie work that could result only from the former's close ties to the world of art and music, and the latter's career as attorney and politician.

BILL SKILLING

The forthcoming production of "Goodbye Charlie," the comedy to be staged by Coach House Players on the evenings of Nov. 16, 17 and 18 at George Washington School here, will be directed by Bill Skilling. As a director and personality, he needs no introduction to area audiences in view of the fact that he has completed five successful years with the local theatre group.

Skilling has been associated with theatrical circles most of his life. Born into a show business family, he made his own debut at the age of three. For 11 years, he was with the Starlight Theatre in Pawling; did stints as an actor and director. In the past he has appeared on many of the top television programs, including Studio One, Kraft Theatre, Kaiser Aluminum Hour, Omnibus, and the very popular "I Remember Mama" with Peggy Wood.

Skilling studied Shakespeare under Norman Barrs of Stratford-on-Avon; was named winner of the famed John Golden Award in 1946, and currently serves as program director for WGHQ-AM-FM locally, a position in which his voice has become familiar in many Ulster households.

Among the successful shows he has directed previously for Coach House Players are: The Pleasure of His Company, Anastasia, Say Darling, The Potting Shed, Strange Bedfellows, South Pacific, Guys and Dolls, Enter Laughing and The Pajama Game.

Could Run Forever

The long-running historical pageant, "The Lost Company," was viewed by 54,680 spectators during its 50-performance run this summer, at Manteo, N.C. The tally marked a 7 per cent attendance drop from 1966, with rain and cool weather blamed.

one who orders the disc will be able to play it with the knowledge that he or she has helped to make possible its existence.

Scheduled for waxing are such major poems by Raley as Strange Lights, Blind Journey, The Elegy of the Living, Break of Day, Mors Dei and Salute to the New-Born. Shorter works will also be recorded to help make the album one of lasting significance.

Anyone wishing to be a part of this pioneering project may do so by ordering the record in advance through Box 355, Woodstock, N. Y. 12498.

The Twentyeth Annual Grossinger-Weizmann Reception and Dinner on Thursday, Nov. 16, will be celebrated as an Israel Nite, says Mrs. Elaine Grossinger Etes, chairman of the event. The atmosphere of a Tel-Aviv cabaret will be re-created, and among the entertainers will be top artists especially imported from Israel for the occasion.

The Israel Ambassador, His Excellency Mr. Michael Arnon, New York Consul-General, will greet the assembly on behalf of the Government of Israel. Mrs. Etes announced that guests of the Grossinger dinner include representatives from Ellenville, Kingston, Liberty, Middletown, Monticello, Newburgh, Port Jervis, South Fallsburgh, Walden and Woodbridge.

The proceeds of the dinner will, as in the past, be allocated to the further development of the Asher Selig and Malke Grossinger Memorial Library in the Molecular Biology sciences at the Weizmann Institute of Science.

The library was founded 20 years ago as an expression of affection for the Grossinger family and as a tribute to Jennie Grossinger's late parents.

Those supporting the pressing point out that everyone who orders the disc will be able to play it with the knowledge that he or she has helped to make possible its existence.

Scheduled for waxing are such major poems by Raley as Strange Lights, Blind Journey, The Elegy of the Living, Break of Day, Mors Dei and Salute to the New-Born. Shorter works will also be recorded to help make the album one of lasting significance.

Anyone wishing to be a part of this pioneering project may do so by ordering the record in advance through Box 355, Woodstock, N. Y. 12498.

Israel Cabaret Night

The Twentieth Annual Grossinger-Weizmann Reception and Dinner on Thursday, Nov. 16, will be celebrated as an Israel Nite, says Mrs. Elaine Grossinger Etess, chairman of the event. The atmosphere of a Tel-Aviv cabaret will be re-created, and among the entertainers will be top artists especially imported from Israel for the occasion.

The Israel Ambassador, His Excellency Mr. Michael Arnon, New York Consul-General, will greet the assembly on behalf of the Government of Israel.

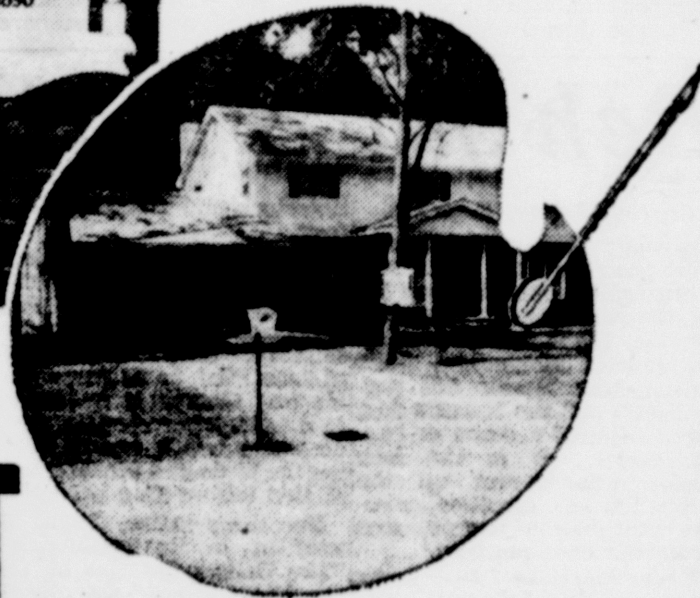

Mrs. Etess announced that guests of the Grossinger dinner include representatives from Ellenville, Kingston, Liberty, Middletown, Monticello, Newburgh, Port Jervis, South Fallsburgh, Walden and Woodbridge.

The proceeds of the dinner will, as in the past, be allocated to the further development of the Asher Selig and Malke Grossinger Memorial Library in the Molecular Biology sciences at the Weizmann Institute of Science.

The library was founded 20 years ago as an expression of affection for the Grossinger family and as a tribute to Jennie Grossinger's late parents.

..... BUILDER'S CHOICE FOR QUALITY HOMES!

Francis J. Cornell, builder of the fine homes shown above, turns out several homes a year . . . and he builds only for the selective buyer who wants the best of everything.

A true "artist" in the building field, Mr. Cornell knows what makes a home a home. "Mainly it's comfort," he says, "and that's why I choose OIL HEAT. Oil heat is clean, dependable, safe and economical."

Focus on Folk Hero

... Congratulations on your new weekly feature TEMPO. You are to be commended on the idea and the high quality of its execution. For a paper of The Freeman's size, it is admirable.

It is not only handy to have all entertainment events assembled together, but the articles the editor has been running have been of unusual interest and refreshingly presented. Of particular excellence is the writeup of the book on Sojourner Truth (Tempo's "A Monument to Colonel Chandler... But None for Sojourner," issue of Oct. 28).

This kind of selective reporting—to make the book a meaningful piece of news specifically related to the community it serves, deserves highest praise. I am delighted that astute journalism has uncovered and presented with effect, a folk hero of national importance, whose local impact is unquestioned and who is a woman and a Negro.

This kind of enlightened journalism should receive the widest support and particularly in the local school system—where most often books do not provide this kind of historical focus. In fact, if extra copies are available, I feel sure librarians in the Kingston School system would welcome them.

Looking forward to future issues of TEMPO I am sincerely,

Commercialism Guilty

... May I say that I thought your articles on Halloween (TEMPO'S "Halloween—How It Used To Be," issue of Oct. 28) was the very best I have ever read in your paper.

The writer caught, I think, the essence of why this children's holiday no longer holds the fun it did in earlier years. Commercialism has ruined it—just as it long ago ruined Christmas. There is no joy or surprise to Christmas anymore, when youngsters see each and every toy on the market demonstrated time and time again on television. They know what to expect even before they open their packages and miss the pleasure of experimenting with new toys and assembling things.

As for Halloween, nothing could be more commercial than those cheaply made, unattractive, sometimes inflammable costumes which have flooded the market. In our family, at least, we STILL make our own costumes.

Until Halloween becomes less commercial and until we return to the feeling of past fun, it will remain in the hands of the vandals. Vandalism, unfortunately, offers children at least SOMETHING to do, an outlet for their need to experiment, use their imaginations, and work off some of their tremendous energy. The commercialism of Halloween no longer fulfills these needs.

Sincerely,
ANN WILLIAMS

A Historic Classic

... I have just come into possession of your issue of Sept. 30th and offer my congratulations for "The City's Cup of Water... Was Ulster's Bitter Draught."

The article is a historic classic. I am 79 years old and well remember when New York City "attacked" Ulster County. It was akin to the British burning of Kingston, or the Indians burning down Hurley... perhaps even worse. Both the British and the Indians, at least, let the dead rest in peace, as was carved on the monuments. New York City had no respect for the dead.

One angle that deserves an honorable mention, too, is the possible part greed, graft and corruption played in the story. One can only wonder if villages, farms, homes, businesses, cemeteries and other Ulsterites' properties were not "sold out."

dons baggy trousers and cavorts before their cameras in the role he created for himself, Jean Pique, the pantomimist. Occasionally, too, Eight Ball's octet allows Janette Molyneaux, John Carlson, Max Marek (all teenagers) and the Marek's dog, Jester, to steal a scene or two. But, mostly, it is the four couples who dream up the scripts, do the direction, compose the original music, and handle the camera titles.

If ever there were four home movies to end all home movies, Eight Ball found them in the quartet of one-reelers spun off Saturday night at the HUVREP Benefit.

Why Be Punctual

In the "Rewards of Punctuality," which had the deftly humorous touch of Eric Carlson in its script, direction and music, we were treated to a thoroughly professional portrayal by Kurt Marek of a man who lives by the clock and the etiquette book. Only when he arrives at the Carlson home, to early for a cocktail invitation and to find his hostess still in cold cream and housecoat — and his host barefoot in Bermudas — does he wonder if his devotion to punctuality is worth it.

When he leaves the party at the designated hour on the invitation, he is convinced the primrose path is far more fun than the punctuality trail. For behind him, he has left Carlson and Molyneaux mixing martinis by the ton, seductive Haschi Marek as the only unattached femme fatale at the party, Penny Carlson dancing the chandeliers from their hangings, and Jane Molyneaux singing her lungs out. Playing it cool, the hero rewards himself by throwing away his timeclock and returning to the fray.

The second offering of the premiere program was a brief episode in the life of Jean Pique. It showed to advantage the considerable Chaplinesque talents of John Pike, as he pantomimed his way through a nature walk to a newspaper reading session on a park bench, and on to feeding the birds and the dire results of this leisure-time occupation.

For sheer satire, Eight Ball excelled in its production of "The Underestimation of Camelia Morningdew," starring Haschi Marek in a combination Mata Hara-Lizzie Borden takeoff, and with script and direction by the star, Camelia, beautiful, gentle, favoring flowers and knitting in public, is secretly a female Bluebird. In the autumn foliage of the woods near her home, she stalks her prey — in this particular case, Kurt Marek as an innocent woodsman. How Camelia has her evil way and what happens to poor Kurt's tie guarantees laughter from any audience.

Major Opus

Finally, Eight Ball presented what must have been its biggest undertaking Saturday when "Marriage Under the Gallows" debuted. With Kurt Marek handling script and direction, Carlson contributing original music, and Haschi behind the camera and titles, the plot revolved around the fate of Ladrone (Abe Molyneaux in red fright wig), an incurable thief, who is not above plundering the Zena Church of its silver candlesticks.

His faithful, hardworking wife is played by Penny Carlson and, faithful or not, she turns her wayward affections toward Eric Carlson (as an untrustworthy soldier) when Ladrone is arrested for theft. Sentenced to death by an unsympathetic judge (Kurt Marek in full courtroom regalia), he is carried away to the gallows by Carlson and another soldier (this one trustworthy and played by Alex Semmler).

On his way to the rope, he is taunted by two ladies of easy virtue (Jane Molyneaux and Haschi Marek), and manages to frighten the three youngsters and the dog of some of the principals.

Death and Rebirth

Eight Ball genius bails Abe out from any actual physical swinging from the gallows, once hanged, by substituting a life-size dummy modeled on his physical proportions. While the Molyneaux brand of acting leaves nothing to be desired, it must be admitted that the dummy adds an all too appropriate touch to the script when it is forced to limply observe how fast love can die and be reborn. As Ladrone's widow turns from his lifeless body to meander hand-in-hand down lover's lane with her new-found soldier lover, Ladrone's corpse dims in the distance, the judge's stern countenance is forgotten, and life goes on.

All in all, it was a fine evening of entertainment and it is to be hoped that Eight Ball Productions, Ltd. will be persuaded to do it again and again. It is to be hoped, as well, that home movie makers will follow Eight Ball's lead. Obviously, talent, ingenuity and imagination are all that's needed to turn a film which would normally be a dreadful bore into a movie of some actual artistic merit. And besides, it looks like fun.

PAINTING BY BRUCE DORFMAN was included in his "Female Images '67" exhibition, which closed recently at the Krasner Gallery, 1061 Madison Avenue, New York City. It was loaned for the show from the collection of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Morgenstern. Woodstock resident Dorfman's show in the downstate metropolis had attracted crowds all through its run, and no less a personage than John Canaday, the fearsome art critic of the New York Times, dropped by to review the Dorfman works for a flattering column in his paper.

Young Pianists Competition

Piano auditions for the Dimitri Mitropoulos music scholarships for Stephens College 1968-69 school year will be held in New York City, Saturday, Nov. 11 at 2 p. m. at Steinway Hall, 109 West 57th Street.

Presently on the Stephens campus in Columbia, Mo., in her sophomore year under the Mitropoulos Awards program is a New York girl, Sheryl Cohen, of Flushing.

The scholarships, purported to be the world's largest, are for $6,000, $4,500 and $3,750, with 10 additional awards of up to $1,000 each.

Given for the study of piano at Stephens College, the auditions are open to talented young ladies including any from Ulster who are seniors in high school and interested in studying for their BFA in Music. They are given for the eighth year by William G. Helis Jr., New Orleans philanthropist and oil man who was a lifelong friend of the last composer Dimitri Mitropoulos.

Judges in New York will be Richard S. Johnson, Director of the Mitropoulos Awards and head of the music department at Stephens, and David Milliken, head of the college piano department.

Further information can be obtained from Mr. Johnston who will be at the Plaza Hotel in New York from Wednesday, Nov. 8 through the auditions on the 11th.

Howard Directs OCCC 'Antigone'

The Queen's Court Players of New York City will present the Greek tragedy "Antigone" at Orange County Community College this Sunday, Nov. 5, at 8 p. m. in the Orange Hall theater at Middletown. The play, directed by Mel Howard, is a program of the 1967-68 Lyceum Series at OCCC and is open to the public.

"Antigone" is a chronicle of the house of Thebes, in which the heroine of the title flouts the orders of Creon, the king, and gives her brother burial, an act that affords the play its tragic theme.

Mr. Howard has directed more than a dozen plays in Paris, including the prize-winning "Impromptu a Loisir" by Rene de Obaldia and "Naives Hirondeles" by Roland Dubillard. He organized La Contrescarpe-Paris Rive Gauche, a production so well received that it represents France yearly at major music festivals throughout Europe and tours the U. S. under auspices of the French government.

Tickets may be obtained at the box office.
